LETTER OF THE MONTH!

RISKY BUSINESS

How do companies like Acclaim, Capcom, Virgin Games, EA Sports, etc. know if new games they make will be liked or not? If they don't sell, how can they take losing the money it cost them to make these games? If possible, please send and/or print the addresses of any video game companies that you can find.

Brian Eng
Hamilton, Ontario, Canada

(Ed. Companies usually do market tests to see if certain games have the interest to keep on developing them. The companies you mention make games that have already proven themselves in the market. Acclaim's Mortal Kombat II didn't need any market testing, because of course it's suitable for the market. Sometimes market testing goes too far, and a company will not release a game because of its results. Some of these games are ones that gamers really want to see [Dragonball, etc.]. Since today's video game companies rely too much on these tests, we'll be missing some great games. If they lose money on the games, then they'll stop developing titles. Let's make up a scenario here. You're the head of a new video game company. You've surrounded yourself with the best video game programmers in the industry, and you're ready to start your first game. Of course, you feel a need to test market because you're not sure if the game you have will be a hit. It's the same for porting over a Japanese game. If the big companies are telling you that they won't sell, of course you're going to stay away from any imports. If companies do take the risk to release a Japanese game here, they make changes, like the voices, the Story Mode is taken out, etc., to make it "fit" the American audience. Video game companies wonder why imports are such a hot market! But if you do want a Japanese game to be released here, the best thing to do is to write the companies, Sega, Nintendo, etc. Their addresses are in instruction manuals.

How do companies know that a game from overseas will be successful in the States?

WIN A PAIR OF ACCLAIM JOYSTICKS!

The best letter submitted each month will win his/her choice of either the Super NES or Genesis version of Acclaim's hot, new Dual Turbo Wireless Remote System.

COMING TO AMERICA?

I'm always on the lookout for new action/RPGs on the Genesis (such as Landstalker), so I was wondering if you had any info on a few that had caught my eye. The first one is a game called Ragnacenty, which you previewed in issue #56. Will this game be brought over to U.S. shores anytime soon? Another game I was wondering about is one you previewed in the August issue, called The Story of Thor. Will Sega be bringing this one to the U.S.? I was also wondering if Sega was planning on a sequel to Crusade of Senti (Japan's Ragnacenty) will be coming to the U.S., but not from Sega.

Landstalker. Thank you for your time and I hope you can answer my questions.

Chris Carter
Ft. Worth, TX

(Ed. You may just be in luck on one of your questions. Ragnacenty will be coming to the U.S., but not under Sega's banner. It's undergoing a name change. Now it will be known in the U.S. as Crusade of Senti. As for Story of Thor, it's not likely that it will make it here, at least not this year. Same goes for a sequel to Landstalker. Undoubtedly, we'll see it in Japan first, as with all other RPGs. So, keep looking in International Outlook in EGM and EGM² for more info.)

It doesn't seem fair does it?

STICKING WITH SEGA

When the new systems come out, like the Saturn and 32X, will games be available for rental? I don't want to go to a store and buy a game I think is cool and find out it stinks. Could you also tell me when these two systems are coming out and which would be the better system to buy? I really want to stick with Sega so I doubt I will buy a PlayStation or Project Reality. When the Saturn does come out, will they keep making lots of games for the Genesis, Sega CD, and the 32X? One last thing, what is the difference between the 32X and the Saturn if they are both 32-Bit?

Junior
Milwaukee, WI

The only place to find Street Fighter II for $26 is across the sea in Japan.

(Ed. Like anything else, it will take a while for the new systems to collect a large enough library of games in order for rental stores to devote shelf space to them. Look at how long it took for the Sega CD to show up on rental store shelves. The 32X will appear this November, and the Saturn, well, even Sega doesn't know [they won't tell if they do]. The better of the two will be up to you when you see the games. If the others have impressive games at their launch, you'll be less interested in waiting for Sega to get the Saturn out. While the 32X does use some of the same chips that the Saturn will use, that doesn't mean that the 32X is the Saturn or vice versa. The difference is that the 32X is cheaper, it hooks on to your existing Genesis system, and it can still play Genesis and Sega CD games when it's on top of your Genesis. They may both be 32-Bit, but the 32X is 32-Bit working off of the Genesis.)

A S Y L U M
LETTER OF THE MONTH!

The craziness of our readers never seems to stop! There's been a multitude of "psycho" readers sending in their scribbles! This one, literally! But, if you think you're particularly crazy, write us a letter in your worst case of psychosis! We read it, print it if we like it, and send an EGM T-Shirt!!!

Dear EGM:

You'll never believe this, but last week while I was playing a game of Super Metroid, there was a power surge at my house. The power went through my Super NES, through my controller, and then through me. Suddenly, I found myself about 20 years in the future ... The first thing that went through my mind was that I've got to see the new arcade games. So I took the hover-transit bus to where my old arcade was. Surprisingly, it was still there; but the games were totally different. I saw everything from Virtual Gal's Panic (Shwinggg!) to a 128-bit version of Pong. But there was one game there that seemed familiar to me. It was Street Fighter!! But not an ordinary version of Street Fighter, it was the 14th upgrade to the series entitled: Ultra Mega Hyper Maximum Super Extended Street Fighter II Enhanced Turbo Champion Tournament Extra Edition. I was shocked that even in the 21st century, Capcom still couldn't count to three. Some things never change ... By the way, my Super NES is now a $120 door-stop!

Rip Van Winkle lives ... under the alias of Kert Gartner of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada! Now that he's a seasoned time-traveler (and got back to 1994 somehow to send this letter), he'll be happy to receive his EGM T-Shirt. Virtual?

SEAL OF APPROVAL

The other day I was looking at some of my old comics when I spotted an ad for Pac-Man on the 8-Bit NES by Tengen. I noticed that the game had a Nintendo seal of approval on it! In another comic I saw another Tengen ad that had pictures of Pac-Man and some other games, but this time the games did not have a seal of approval. What happened?

Also in your June issue, Quartermann said that Nintendo and Tengen had settled their differences. Does this mean that Tengen is now a Nintendo licensee? I sincerely hope so.

Amjid Qureshi
Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada

(Ed. Ah, yes, the Tengen/Nintendo skirmish. It's correct that now Tengen can produce games for Nintendo's system under their own label, but Tengen has recently been grouped with a bunch of other companies to form Time Warner Interactive. The first ad you saw with Pac-Man having a seal of approval was correct, the first few productions of the cartridges did have Nintendo's seal. After the Tetris battle, Nintendo yanked their approval from all of Tengen's games, and some copies of the NES Pac-Man cartridge carry Tengen's own quality seal. Tengen also ported over some of the Sega Master System's hits after Nintendo yanked their seal. Games like Shinobi, Alien Syndrome, After Burner, and a few others came out [not Phantasy Star though, DARN!!]. By the way, the Tengen copy of Tetris is worth quite a bit of money. And some think that it blows away Nintendo's NES version.)

Introducing the game that actually lets you control the destinies of America's leading morons.

IT'S THE GAMES, MAN!

Let me start out by saying I love your magazine. I get it every month. Lately I've been unhappy. About seven months ago I purchased a Super Nintendo. I've been happy with it until about the last two or three months. Let's face it—in a year or maybe less, the two major 16-Bit video game systems (Super Nintendo and Genesis) will be gone or close to gone. Also the Neo•Geo could be close to gone because it's not a CD-based system. CD-based systems are taking over because of capabilities. Who cares what a system can do? Most people buy a system because they like the games that can be played on it. They don't care if a system can move millions of trillions of polygons or anything per second. The old Atari 2600 was successful and not because of capabilities. The regular Nintendo did not become popular for its capabilities. Both of those systems (Atari 2600 and Nintendo) did not become popular for what they could do. They became popular because they had what people wanted. Another thing is that new systems cost way too much. Why pay $400 some odd dollars for a 3DO when they could stop making games for it weeks after you buy it? The Atari 2600 sold for about $49.95, and the Nintendo sold for about $99.99. If a 3DO or a Jaguar sold for the price of the Atari 2600 or the Nintendo I would get it in a minute. If video game manufacturers want to be successful, just design systems and games that appeal to what the public wants at a good price. Don't just focus on what the system can do. What do you think?

Tony Piechoki
Becher, IL

(Ed. I would have to agree with you. I think that companies nowadays choose to do a CD system, and then fall back on full-motion games to save themselves when they see that the system isn't doing as well as they had planned. But systems can still be successful without CD capabilities. For instance, it takes a long time to develop a CD game, while cartridge systems don't take as long. This could mean the life or death of a system—it's in the games. Lately, people have been asking for us to elaborate on specs of these new systems, and maybe they should pay attention to your views. You're wrong on the prices. The Atari 2600 did sell for that price, at one time. At the beginning of its life, it was over $100 easily. Same for the NES, although the NES was released at a time when video game systems weren't supposed to be released, so anything above that price probably wouldn't have sold as well. It won't matter, at least at first, which machine has a CD drive, because it'll take a while for developers to learn the programming.)

READER REVIEW CREW

That's right ... we want you to send in reviews for the hottest new games. Here's the deal: we pick the game, and you write a short review of about 30 words and of course, that all-important numerical rating. We'll select the best ones and print them. Oh yeah, include a list of three of your favorite games, and NO pseudonyms please. The first game is:

BAD PHOTOCOPY CONTEST!

A great feature to EGM is the official Bad Photocopy Contest. You'll find this contest in every Interface issue. You don't win anything, but you can congratulate yourself if you find it!

Here it is! Attempt to find this picture in the magazine, if you can!

Game gets gore back

Bowing to competitive pressure and customer preferences, Nintendo of America Inc. says it will release a new version of the controversial video game "Mortal Kombat," containing all the graphic violence and gore that the company excised from the original version.

Could it be? Mortal Kombat re-released with blood? No!

REVENGE OF MORTAL KOMBAT

Enclosed with this letter is a clipping that I took from my local newspaper. I called Nintendo about it and they said they didn't know anything about it. Do you know anything about this? If it is true will Nintendo have some sort of way to compensate the people who bought the original version of MK?

Chris Capasso
Inverness, FL

(Ed. Your local newspaper is right, but they've misled you. It is true that 'a new version of Mortal Kombat' will be released, but that new version is MKII. When I spoke to Acclaim, they said that there are no plans at this time to re-release Mortal Kombat with the blood and fatalities intact, or a Game Genie-type device that would strap onto the bottom of the existing cartridge.)

SHOCK THE MONKEY

I've been reading a lot about Donkey Kong Country lately. The game looks fantastic, but what's even more amazing is that there is no special chip in the cartridge, like StarFox. The Super NES hardware is responsible for those great graphics. But don't forget the game's developers. They deserve a lot of credit for producing such an awesome game.

My question is, are there anymore games that use this new technology? I sure hope this doesn't turn out like StarFox. You know, a game is released that uses new technology, but we end up waiting over a year to see another game that uses the technology again.

Faisal Ali
Pasadena, TX

(Ed. So far, we don't know of any that will use the same graphics as DK Country. If Country sells as well as Nintendo thinks it will, then of course there will be another game using the technology. As for what that game will be, who knows. You can bet it'll be really good. Maybe Nintendo realized polygons don't cut it.)

ED SEMRAD

Never before have I seen a game with this much depth and detail. Few RPGs can hope to have the emotional draw this one has. The graphics and sounds blow away all other RPGs. This is the new standard. The Mode 7 scenes are pretty cool, albeit a little pixelized. If you've ever wanted an epic story and lots of hidden things to find, Final Fantasy III is a must. It's almost a 10. It's going to be near impossible to top this...

AL MANUEL

Square can do no wrong with this game! Final Fantasy III is quite possibly the best role-playing game I have ever played! From beginning to end, the game's intricate and involving story line will keep RPG fans playing this from hours on end. With its 24-Megs of muscle, FF III boasts some of the most beautiful graphics and music in any video game. It's gonna be tough to beat this game out for RPG of the year!

DANYON CARPENTER

Forget every other RPG out there. Square has produced a killer RPG that few companies will ever be able to match. FF III has everything: stunning graphics, incredible music, and so many twists and turns to the plot that you could just play this forever, and heck, why not? The interface is superb and you really do get involved with the game. Welcome to the new standard of role-playing games, folks.

SUSHI-X

If you don't already get the picture, this is the RPG to get. If you're a fan of the genre, you'll die for it. If you've never played one, it will draw you in. What makes it so special? From the movie-like intro to the beautifully woven story it is as good as it gets! It's not just all cerebral—there are awesome tunes accompanying the story and the graphics are great. If you don't get the hint... get this game!

MAJOR MIKE'S GAME ROUNDUP

Maximum Carnage Acclaim/Super NES

Spider-Man just doesn't have it in this one—the graphics are sloppy (like the kicks and punches), and the control is adequate at best. The cameos by other superheroes are cool, but can't make up for the other poor elements.

ED DAND AL SUSHI MIKE

Virtual Bart Acclaim/Super NES

Hey, why not an adaptation of the Simpson's Arcade Game? This one just plain misses the mark. The control is awful (like on the dinosaur stage), the stages unappealing, and the whole thing seems rushed.

ED DAND AL SUSHI MIKE

Bonkers Capcom/Super NES

Another good Disney entry from Capcom that isn't quite as good as the others (like the Mickey Mouse games). Nevertheless, Bonkers has cartoon-like graphics, decent control, but the sound is a little subtle.

Vortex Electro Brain/Super NES

An interesting concept for fans of the "simulator"-type flight games. Being able to change into different vehicles is a good option, and the levels are very challenging. The pace may be slow, nevertheless a unique game.

Super Return of the Jedi JVC/Super NES

The latest installment in the Star Wars saga is more like Jedi in that you can't just run through the levels: You will definitely have to take your time and carefully move through the levels. Excellent graphics and nice Mode 7.

Super NES	Acclaim
Mortal Kombat II
Fighting	Release: Now
Levels: N/A	24 Meg

This is the version of Mortal Kombat II to get. It plays very well ... well, perhaps a little bit looser than the arcade. It looks almost the same, and a lot of the sounds are here. The hits sometimes sound annoying, but it's a small price to pay. All the secrets you could want are here, except for Reptile's floor move in the Armory. I'm surprised at how well this one plays. All my combos worked. That won't do it for me...

MK II fans can finally shut up. Their game is here and what an excellent translation it is. It plays great. All the combos are here plus the graphics and sounds are right on par ... well, most of the sounds anyway. Acclaim really wanted the game to be the best it could be and their persistence has paid off in a big way. The added Tournament Mode is a welcome addition that can really get your thumbs cramped up.

There will be much rejoicing among fighting game aficionados. Mortal Kombat II for the Super NES is as close to the arcade as it's gonna get. This near-perfect translation has all the elements that made the coin-op such a smash hit. The graphics are super awesome. The sounds and digitized speech have all been faithfully replicated. Put in a cool Group Battle Mode and you've got a "must-buy" cartridge.

Let's just say after the first translation I wasn't expecting them to be able to pull it off. With more characters, and moves how could they do it. Well, they did! This is an excellent reproduction that truly is "as close to the arcade as the hardware would allow." All the moves and little nuances are here to make you feel right at home. Graphics and sounds are excellent. The big thing though, it plays very well!

Super NES	Capcom
Demon's Crest
Action	October
Levels: N/A	16 Meg

Demon's Crest will probably be one of those sleeper games, similar to how the Game Boy Gargoyles's Quest was. The graphics are beautiful, and the game play is top-notch. When you get the different forms, you have to go into a subscreen, which interrupts the action a little. The audio is very well done and is good at setting the mood. You would do well to try this one out—you might be surprised.

Capcom's not hyping this one. What's up with that? Demon's Crest will prove to be a good game for Capcom for many reasons. It has some of the most detailed graphics seen in an action game, plus Demon's Crest has a bit of an RPG quest flair for those looking for more than a boring old side-scroller. The mysterious nature of the game really draws you closer to the action. Those Bosses are HUGE!

Capcom has delivered the goods with Demon's Crest! I don't think I have to go over how great the graphics are and how the background music and sound effects are super cool! And what about the awesome game play? We've come to expect all that from Capcom. What I didn't expect was how big the game is. I love the fact that there are multiple endings. The different attacks are great too! I like this game!

That pesky little gargoyle hits the big time with Capcom's Demon's Crest. It seems they can do no wrong as this is another hit on par with Mega Man X. The graphics are very good and the sounds are eerie and catchy. There is a lot of game play and technique. However, the only drawback for me was the control took getting used to and seemed to get a bit frustrating trying to hover at different levels. Still a big hit!

Genesis	Acclaim
Mortal Kombat II
Fighting	Release: Now
Levels: N/A	24 Meg

Mortal Kombat II for the Genesis looks a lot better compared to the first game, and the control is about the same. The graphics, however, are also improved. The sounds could have been added in, though. Only a few sounds are really there. I miss when Raiden roars, and everything is muffled. For me this was a good conversion, but also check out the other versions. It is a great game nevertheless.

Despite the obvious color and sound limitations of the Genesis, Mortal Kombat II comes off in an excellent way because it has the strongest factor going for it: play control. The great control really helps to offset the lack of voices and the strange sound effect choices. Overall, this version will no doubt keep Genesis owners happy. But sorry guys, now you aren't the only ones to get the blood and guts action like before.

Genesis owners will have much to cheer about with one of the most highly anticipated games of the year. Mortal Kombat II is nearly identical to the arcade in every respect. Remember, I said nearly. Although the graphics are good, they are slightly inferior to the Super NES. The same goes with the music, sound effects, speech, and game play. Overall, this is probably the best fighting game for the Genesis.

You have to face some of the limitations of the Genesis. If you do, you'll have to admit that MK II is a great translation. If you compare it to the Super NES, sure it isn't quite as detailed or colorful, but it is good nonetheless. Play control is a bit lighter on this platform but controls well enough to get some heated battles going. Genesis owners should check it out, it is definitely one of the best fighting games for the system.

MAJOR MIKE'S GAME ROUNDUP

Crazy Chase Kemco/Super NES

A unique perspective "racing" game, where you must race against a bomb fuse and collect several items along the way. There could be a few more continuums, as this one requires a lot of skill and technique, but the various antics and animations (especially on Kidd's enemy) are incredibly lifelike and make this one of the better games around.

Sparkster Konami/Super NES

The best Konami game in recent months puts them back to form: this one has all the company's landmark elements: huge levels, gigantic Bosses, outstanding graphics and excellent music. There is plenty of technique to learn and you won't master this in one sitting. The shooter level is also a really nice touch and just adds to the variety.

Wild Guns Natsume/Super NES

One of the best shoot 'em-ups for the Super NES system! The two-player simultaneous play, and very challenging levels, make this one a real blast. It seems to go by a bit too fast (and is very reminiscent of the Neo arcade shooter Nam '75), but that is more a tribute to how good the game is. Thea choice of quality!

You've all played the 8-Bit (and every other possible) version, now here comes more of the same on the 16-Bit platform. If you were a fan of the first one, then this one will definitely please. This time there are more backgrounds (some of them pretty clever). The two player is an absolute addictive blast and will keep a pair playing all night!

Genesis Konami Contra Hard Corps

Action	Release: Now
Levels: N/A	16 Meg

I've always been a fan of Contra. I even bought the arcade version of Contra, and Super Protobotter. The first level area is really good, but a little too difficult. The cheap hits are everywhere, so it could be frustrating for some players. I like all the special effects used, and Konami has really outdone themselves this time. If you're into guns, don't miss this great shooter! I guarantee you won't put it down for hours.

For those in the know, the name Contra invokes thoughts of all-out action and excitement, and that's exactly what you're treated to: however, all that action leads to some serious confusion, because there's so much stuff flying around that it's easy to get hit by hidden bullets. Anyway, the game uses incredible special effects to the extreme which make it cool. On the down side, the game's hard difficulty will make it rough.

Contra heads into a new direction in the Genesis version of the classic military shooter. I like having to choose between four new characters and the weapons are very cool. The graphics and special effect are done well and the music gets you totally into the action. On the down side, I thought there were too many Mid-Bosses and not enough real enemies. It's also really difficult. Overall, a good game.

Not quite the same juice as the original Contra, but this is a tough game to test your skills. Four characters with different weapon sets keep you guessing. The graphics and sounds are good as is the control. The levels are rather simple and there seems to be an abundance of Mid-Bosses. The game is rather pattern-orientated and can get frustrating being so tough. If you have a pal, go two players for a better time.

Genesis Playmates Earthworm Jim

Action	Release: Now
Levels: N/A	24 Meg

Earthworm Jim is one of the best action games I've seen all year. I love the warped jokes and visual effects in this game. There's a number of cheap hits, but any true gamer should be able to beat it with practice. It's always a challenge. The graphics and sounds have every little detail to them. It plays great, and the diversity of techniques is nice. This game was made by a gamer, and it shows.

This game just kicks @$$ in every way, shape, and form! EWJ is simply the coolest character to arrive in a long time. The game has perfect control, awesome voices and a long, fun quest. The humor really sets EWJ apart from the rest. The levels are all unique, especially the bungee jump. Too cool! Earthworm Jim gets my vote as the coolest character and your hottest action game of the year. What more can I say?

Awesome! Absolutely incredible! Earthworm Jim is one of the best platform games I have played this year. This game is loaded with more than just great graphics, fantastic sound, and awesome game play. I totally loved the originality put into the game, especially with the cow-launching. Hysterical! The character mannerisms and animation have to be seen to be believed! It's a total riot! This is one hot game!

What an unlikely hero to make such a big hit. This little worm is larger than life (sort of like James Carrey)! Just the animations of the character alone are incredible enough for anyone to be drawn to it like a moth to a flame. But it doesn't stop there, the graphics and sounds complement the cool character. There are big levels with different types of scenes to keep you entertained. Simply put—this game is smokin'!

Sega CD Data East Panic

Puzzle	Release: N/A
Levels: N/A	CD-ROM

Panic is not much of a game, rather it's a series of visual gags. It's fun to watch all the hilarious things going on, and a lot of it is downright twisted. The graphics and animation are top-notch, and most players will take note. Panic is meant for an older crowd perhaps, though almost anyone will enjoy the bizarre scenes. The replay value is good, because no one can see all the jokes in one sitting. You should try it.

With the real downfall of Sega CD games lately, it's nice to see originality with Panic. Although a real game is practically nonexistent, you get some serious laughs out of the hilarious skits that occur. Unfortunately, the fun quickly wears away after you've seen these animations a few times. In other words, you can get bored with it way too quickly. Also, if you bought the Mega Mouse, now you can finally use it with a game.

Panic has a strange concept that is very welcome as far as originality goes. I like the cartoon-like graphics and the CD music was whimsical. The idea of how you must save the world is pretty cool and so original it hurt! It's full of cute and sick humor—the latter always a big plus. The problem is it got boring pretty fast. I lost interest and just wanted to get to the end without really playing. It's good for passing time.

This is a very unique type of game that involves a lot of guessing. Basically all you're doing is sitting back and pressing buttons to proceed to the next scene. Yet, the humorous reactions and sound that respond to the buttons are quite entertaining. I must admit that it can get repetitive and somewhat boring after a while since there is really no skill involved. However, for a relaxing game it can help pass the time.

THE GREEN FLAG

Back in the early days of 16-bit gaming, Sega of America made the claim of sports superiority, and they were right. Early games like John Madden Football from EA Sports were designed for the Genesis and were later adapted to the Super NES without making use of the technical capabilities of Nintendo's 16-bit system. It was like taking the paddle out of a canoe and trying to use it on a hydro plane. But once developers realized what they could achieve by using the Super NES' custom graphics processors, a new generation of sports games quickly redefined what a sports video game could be. Super NES sports games are now technically advanced, more realistic, and there's more of them. And where's Sega? Let's just say that they're somewhere without a paddle.

Nigel Mansell's World Championship, SNES

HEAD-TO-HEAD COMPETITION

Many games from sports software leaders like EA Sports, Acclaim, Sony, Accolade and Tecmo are now custom designed for both 16-bit game systems. Even when the screen perspective and play characteristics are the same, the larger number of colors on the Super NES, its Mode 7 capabilities and its superior sound processor allow for more realism in the Super NES versions. The differences are dramatic in some titles, like Tecmo's new Tecmo Super Baseball. The Super NES version gives you a unique, rotating fielder's point of view that is missing from the Genesis game. The simple fact is that you get more with most Super NES sports games—more color, more sound, more realism.

NBA Live '95

SUPER NES EXCLUSIVES

Ken Griffey Jr.
Presents Major League Baseball

The most realistic sports games available are found only on the Super NES. Why? It's not just a matter of licenses. The name on the box doesn't put fun in the game. The reason that Super NES sports games play more like the real game, look more like the real game and sound more like the real game is due to the custom hardware inside the Super NES control deck. The Super NES' two graphics processors contain special graphics modes including Mode 7 which allows for the easy manipulation of objects in a 3-D environment. Sports take place in three dimensions, not two. The Super NES' ability to rotate perspective and scale objects lets designers create realistic fields, courts, race tracks and even mountain slopes. Imagination is the only limitation. The Genesis, on the other hand, is limited because it doesn't have the custom graphics processors or a 16-bit sound processor, which means that Genesis sports games simply can't compete on a level playing field with Super NES games. They're behind from the very start.

SUPER NES 3-D ROTATION & SCALING

When Nintendo's NCAA Basketball took to the court in 1992, the radical behind-the-player perspective "KO'd" the competition and the critics. No one had ever seen such a realistic video game. The perspective produced the closest experience to actually playing the sport. Since then, Super NES sports games have explored many new arenas of realistic sports action—arenas where Genesis titles have never gone.

THE SUPER NES

If you don't own a Super NES, you can't play many of the best sports games available like: Ken Griffey Jr. Presents Major League Baseball, NCAA Basketball, Stunt Race FX, Tommy Moe's Winter Extreme Skiing & Snowboarding, NHL Stanley Cup, classics like F-Zero and Super Tennis or up-coming games like Michael Andretti's Indy Car Challenge. And the hottest titles available for both systems won't be as intense on the Genesis. If you want the most game from the hottest titles like NBA Jam, Madden NFL 95, WWF Raw and NBA Live '95, you have to get the Super NES version because the best graphics and sound are available exclusively for Super NES sports fans.

MAJOR MIKE'S GAME ROUNDUP

Earthworm Jim Playmates/Super NES

Earthworm Jim is a totally unique character, with plenty of animations and unique characteristics, plus this game milks them for all they're worth (along with a few inside jokes). The levels are huge and extremely challenging, with hilarious Bosses and other assorted enemies. Only gripe: there could be a few more continu- ous. Launch that cow!

8 ED 9 DANO 9 AL 8 SUSHI 8 MIKE

Samurai Shodown Takara/Super NES

A very earnest home version of the arcade smash that stays pretty faithful to the original material. Obviously, some will be disappointed because the scaling isn't in this version, and the characters could be a little bigger. But for an adaptation of a Neo-Geo title, this one does a very good job. The Timed Fight Mode is a good option.

8 ED 8 DANO 7 AL 6 SUSHI 8 MIKE

MA-13

Balzz Accolade/Genesis

Balzz has a unique perspective on the fighting field (like Virtua Fighters), but I found some of the moves difficult to pull-off at times. The fighters were interesting, with their various taunts and other poses, and the whole idea is innovative, but in the end it just never really came together for me. It is an interesting variation on the fighting theme, though.

8 ED 7 DANO 5 AL 5 SUSHI 6 MIKE

MA-13

Lethal Enforcers 2: Buntfighters Konami/Genesis

This Justifier-compatible title takes the plot of the first game and drops it in the Old West. Basically, it's more aim-the-gun-and-shoot, with a two-player option that comes very close to the arcade version. This sequel is a little more difficult than the first one, with challenging Bosses and plenty of different weapons.

EDITORS' CHOICE GOLD

Neo-Geo	ADK
Aggressors of Dark Kombat
Fighting	Release: Now
Levels: N/A	178 Meg

At first glance, I'd give the game a 2 and walk away, but I sat down and forced myself to play it. It's actually good! The way Aggressors plays is very unique. The moves are easy to get off, and there's a lot of technique involved. The finishing moves are really funny, and can sometimes be a real life-saver. The graphics look choppy at first, but you'll get used to it. Overall, I really liked it. Not incredible, but fun.

This looked like a cheesy fighting clone at first; but once I played the game, it grew on me and I ended up liking it. The graphics are good, the animations could be better, but those combo moves are devastating! I found myself saying "Ouch" every time I got hit! The characters themselves aren't anything to write home about, but it plays very well. The "Crazy" moves add humor to this decent game.

Aggressors of Dark Kombat is a good head-to-head fighting game. The fighting perspective is not limited to one plane. It's cool because you can move around like in Final Fight and still be able to use joystick and button combinations. Very cool! I also like it for its humor content. The special moves are great combo moves and the "Crazy" moves are a total riot. I just wish the animation was better, though.

Okay, so it isn't MK II, but don't judge a book by its cover. From a glance the simple animations may seem like it has nothing to offer. Wrong! There are several innovations for a fighting game like picking up and throwing weapons, a full 3-D fighting field, and simple moves that do multi-hit combos. It's also the first Neo game with fatalities. It may not be a tough fighting game, but it is fun to play if you give it a chance.

300	Crystal Dynamics
Star Control II
RPG/Shooter	Release: Now
Levels: N/A	CD-ROM

This game is truly awesome. The graphics and sound are absolutely superb. Humor and adventure abound in each encounter with strange new races and worlds. Some of the alien races are difficult to understand, but the animations given them are unbeatable. The melee scenes are excellent, with each ship having its own captain, as well as its own weapons and defenses. This is a must-have 3DO game! Excellent!

The 3DO certainly needs a game like Star Control II. This game has it all: intriguing plot that constantly twists around, an excellent Melee Mode for blasting the heck out of an opponent, and what has to be the best soundtrack I've ever heard! The only real drawback is that the voices Crystal Dynamics chose for the aliens can be a little hard to understand, but that just adds to the mystery. In a nutshell, this game rocks!

I'm not really a strategy RPG player at all, but Star Control II caught my eye with its highly-detailed graphics. Because it was CD, the sound and music were incredible. Another good thing about the game is it was easy to get into. The moment I picked up the controller, I got used to the fundamentals of the game. The Versus Mode is also a cool feature. This is a solid buy for the 3DO.

Surprisingly I like this version! I've seen the PC version, but this 3DO import blows it out of the water. The enhanced graphics really caught my eye. Of course the CD-quality sounds are definitely a plus for standards. Even though the sounds were great, it was hard listening to the other aliens trying to speak in English. The Versus Mode is still kept intact. If you love the PC version, you'll love this game.

Jaguar	Atari
Wolfenstein 3-D
Shooter	Release: Now
Levels: N/A	N/A Meg

I used to play Wolfenstein 3-D all the time, and this is the smoothest scrolling one of all. The audio is surprisingly good for being a Jaguar game. My biggest complaint is how fast the game scrolls by. I like fast games, but the game play is hurt in this case. If you own a Jag, by all means get it. You won't be disappointed. The effect of Wolfenstein has worn off a bit, but it's still an enjoyable game.

Yes, it has been done before on other platforms, but not this good. Everything has been kept intact from the PC version. The graphics are top-notch and the sounds are of exceptional quality. The only real complaint is that it scrolls way too fast. This can screw up your accuracy when you are trying to get somewhere, aim, etc. Jaguar owners are bound to go nuts over this good translation.

This Jaguar version of the PC hit is superior in many respects. For one, the graphics are much crisper, which makes it easy to identify enemies from afar plus the music and sound effects have been dramatically improved. I especially like the Autopam feature. The only drawback that really hurts this game is that your character moves through the levels way too fast, making it tough for precision aiming.

Either you love this game or you just don't understand why everyone else does. Just like the computer version, it is a simple yet very, very addicting 3-D game. The graphics and sounds aren't super quality, but they aren't what makes the game fun. The scrolling through the halls and feeling of being the hunter or the hunted is exhilarating. This may not be everyone's game, but if you like the style, it's done well.

MAJOR MIKE'S GAME ROUNDUP

GA

Sparkster Konami/Genesis

Given a meaner, leaner look, Sparkster comes off pretty well in this sequel to Rocket Knight Adventures. Some of the attacks are different and take some getting used to (like the new rocket attack), but overall a good action title for the Genesis. It could use a few more colors, and the sound effects are a nice complement to the overall game.

Beavis & Butt-head Viacom/Genesis

For many people, the deciding factor of liking this game or not will probably be if you like the duo and their TV show. If you don't, then this game will definitely not be for you. It does have good graphics and the sound is Okay. Not being a fan of the show made this more an endurance test. Fans will probably want to check it out, others beware.

Axis & Allies Philips/CD-i

Axis & Allies has to be one of the more comprehensive and complete wartime simulators ever made! The live-action stock footage and sounds are amazing and make this a game any World War II buff won't want to miss! This one covers everything and you can practically make your own (hypothetical) war scenario.

Mortal Kombat II Acclaim/Game Gear

Just like the first one, Mortal Kombat II has eye-popping graphics, and great control—so much so that you won't believe this is a portable. Johnny Cage, Baraka, Rayden, and Kung Lao are missing from this version, but the moves of the present fighters are all easy to execute. Like the other versions, you can't pause this one—START blocks.

Lil Devil

Action	Release: N/A
Levels: N/A	CD-ROM

Although the animation looks a little choppy, you'll find a lot to like about Lil Devil. He's the nicest devil since Dizzy, and he's got some great personality quirks. The game play is multifaceted, with different action scenes and puzzles throughout. Even the plot is lighthearted. The graphics are beautiful and the music brings the atmosphere home. Who would've thought that Hades could be this fun? I really like it.

I'll have to say that the opening sequence to the game was great to look at. In fact most of the graphics in Lil Devil are quite good. Still, it plays like a tired PC computer game with mediocre control. The animation was okay, but didn't thrill me. There are role-playing/adventure and fighting action sequences in the game, which gives it some play value. But even though the character is humorous, the appeal wore off.

Lil Devil is a really cute game for the CD-i. The cute little demon's humorous antics and animation are really entertaining. This is all due to some of the best graphics anywhere coupled with superb CD stereo sound. There were some things I didn't like such as the play control which seemed to lag when I wanted to execute a particular action. This made fighting Bosses very difficult. It still has some entertainment value.

The character is a quiet little guy with some funny animations. The game play is kind of simple and seems to play like a puzzle game where you hunt for objects and use them in certain situations. The cute sounds and main character carried most of the game for me. The action really didn't excite me, but it's fun to see the antics of the little devil as he blunders his way through different puzzles. Fun but not addicting.

Game Boy Acclaim

Mortal Kombat II

Fighting	Release: Now
Levels: N/A	N/A Meg

Surprisingly this game plays great despite being on the Game Boy. The fatalities were easy to do, and I could even knock the other fighters into the ceiling spikes. Since MK II is black-and-white here, it's very difficult to tell the ninjas apart. And why was Raiden removed? One of the other characters should have been removed. Even though only a few backgrounds are here, they are the best ones.

This is probably the best fighting game on the Game Boy, which isn't saying much because there are not many fighting games on this portable. Still, this one plays well. I found myself getting the moves off with hardly any problem with just two buttons. Even so, it's better as a portable game to take along with you, because you won't want to play this on the Super Game Boy. I would get the Super NES version instead.

I really couldn't get into the Game Boy version of Mortal Kombat II for a number of reasons. First off, I think that the small screen and the blurry character movements were a drawback. The graphics, sound, and most importantly, playability took a dive with this version. It was harder to get the special moves off. Plus the absence of four of the characters really hurt it as well. Stick to the game systems.

Well you can't expect too much from the Game Boy when you're talking about a giant Meg game like MK II. There are several of the characters and they do have their special moves and some finishing techniques. It plays ... well like a Game Boy game. It isn't bad considering the format. It has the spike Kombat Tomb and even turnaround kicks. The graphics and sounds are decent. It's average but then again why try?

Game Gear Taito

Bubble Bobble

Action	November
Levels: N/A	2 Meg

Boy, this sure brings back some memories for me. Bubble Bobble is a great game for the Game Gear. It translates well to the small screen, and the graphics are simple enough to keep you from straining your eyes. The game play is very good considering the small screen, though the lizard tentacles jump higher than you think. A few of the levels get a little cheap, too. Overall, it's a game that's meant to be fun.

I used to play this game a long time ago and this version is surprisingly faithful to the original! All of the platform fun has been retained and it's portable, too! The Two Player Link-up Option is a good idea to let the second player join in. Although the graphics are simple, it's fun to play and that's what makes a game good. This platform classic may be old, but it's still got the fun to keep you coming back for more.

This game is such a pleasant surprise! What Bubble Bobble doesn't offer in great graphics and super 16-bit sound, it makes up for in a simple concept. It is very reminiscent of the old games when the emphasis was on good game play and fun. Sometimes it's better to just stick to simplicity rather than just pretty graphics. The Link Option is also a big plus for an already good game. It's well done.

I was addicted to the arcade game and mastered it. I have to say they did a very good job on the portable platform. They put in the levels, characters, and power-ups that made the arcade game a classic. The game isn't heavy on sounds but the cute graphics and fun game play make it a top-notch game. With a two-player link you can have even more fun as a tag team. Portable fans should check this out.

...Howdy, game fans—the Q is back with more sizzling insider game info. The scorching summer may be coming to a close, but the gossip I've dug up this month should keep things hot all the way to next summer! We'll start with the system barrage coming soon from Sega and get to the juicy dirt from there...This is the big one, kiddies! Hot on the heels of their 32X super system due out next month in the States, Sega is rumored to be planning to strike again next year with—yep, you guessed it—another new system! And we're not talking ringed planets either! The Q-Mann has it from good sources that Sega is hard at work on the SUPER Genesis. Rumor has it that it will be modeled after the existing Genesis 2, but under the hood it will have the 32X hardware built-in! Look for more info on this product next month...Sega has successfully taken us to Saturn, Jupiter (cart-only Saturn), Mars (32X), and now they have their sights set on Venus! Word has it that Venus will be a 16-Bit portable Genesis that will look sort of like the Game Gear and will work very much like the current Mega Jet presently available in Japan. The Q hears the price tag should clock in around $150 and be available in 1995...

...Look for a six-button controller VERY soon for the 3DO. According to the Q's sources, Panasonic, ASCII, and Capcom are all in a heated race to get to market first with a working six-button for use with Super Street Fighter II Turbo, Samurai Shodown, and a rumored 32-Bit rev of Mortal Kombat...Speaking of MK on 3DO (let's keep the ID of this VIP info on the QT), the Q hears that this version will include full-motion video from the upcoming movie and be used to showcase the 3DO's MPEG capabilities...Did anyone else fall asleep during the middle of True Lies? I want to see how Acclaim does those scenes in the home game...The Q is hearing rumors that the Super NES and Genesis may not be getting stellar support from the big guys come '95. Interplay and others have expressed an interest in the 32-Bit platforms, but don't have plans for 16-Bit fare. The times they are a-changin'!

...The 32X is getting some major support across the board from developers and publishers alike. Interplay will bow in with a 32X version of Clay Fighters 2 next spring, while Capcom is expected to hit the 32X scene with the digitized acrobatics of the Street Fighter II Movie arcade game (which is curiously being released by Romstar in arcades), as well as a conversion of their Aliens vs. Predator coin-op. Both should be ready for the second quarter of '95 and are coming courtesy of industry veteran Steve Hanawa...Over at Philips, meanwhile, their CD-i system is looking to pick up a crop of licensed games. The Q hears rumors that they're presently in negotiations with Interplay about Boogerman as well as several other ports. The Q knows that retail is buzzing over a recent road tour that Philips put on, so you may see this machine finally hit its stride...

...At the movies, yours truly has discovered that a number of next summer's big blockbusters have already been soaked up by game companies. In addition to Batman Forever, which Acclaim will be putting out in all formats including coin-op to coincide with the movie release, Interplay will hit with Casper, and Sega scores with Paramount's Congo...Don't tell anyone that I told you, but Interplay and MCA are talking about movie deals based on Interplay games. Boogerman movie deals...One of the first games due out for the upcoming NeoGeo CD system will be McO'River's Aerofighters. After securing the license from SNK, the company snagged the rights to have the game on the upgrade Neo platform which hit Japan on September 9...

...Taito is working on a 32-Bit arcade cartridge-based system and will be unveiling the machine at the AMOA show in San Antonio. In Japan it's being called the Taito F3 package, with a cartridge connected to the main board and a color palette of over 17 million colors. Throw on a 16-Bit CPU dedicated to sound support and some very interesting games such as Global Champion (a fighting entry), Bubble Symphony (two-player Bubble Bobble sequel), and Darius III (another two-player title with some massive shoot-'em-up firepower)...Taito is also making a pair of games for the NeoGeo arcade system. The first will be Power Spikes 2, a volleyball title with a number of options and tournament play...Sources inside AT&T have secretly told the Q-Mann that they have very quietly decided to kill their EDGE peripheral. No details as to why, just that it's now DOA...

...That brings us to the end of this chapter of Gaming Gossip, my Quarter-friends, but yours truly will return with more dirt from inside and out the video game industry next month, including some special info on the Venus system from Sega and Sony's battle plan to take the world by storm with their Play Stating system. Until then, don't lose your joystick no matter how many buttons it has...

AURA'S INTERACTOR-VR AT ITS VEST

EGM LAB REPORT

VIRTUAL VEST

Ah, Virtual Reality. The dream of many ... a reality for few. You've heard of those head-mounted display VR systems, but those are extremely expensive with prices up to $1000.

But now, that's all changed. The Interactor from Aura Systems puts

ON THE SUPER NES

First I hooked it up to the Super NES. You'll notice that it wedges against the RF Adapter, which isn't a big thing, although the connector could've been more space-wise.

If you have an S-VHS TV and use Nintendo's S-VHS cord, you can't hook the Interactor up. You have to use the RF Adapter to hook it up to your TV, and the S-VHS port to hook up the Interactor. So, those of you who use the S-VHS cable for stereo sound, you'll have to unplug it.

The second thing is the number of cords. Not one or two, but three cords! One for the AC Adapter, one for the vest to hook into the tuner, and one from the tuner to the audio source. If you're in the heat of a battle in SF2, you might be hindered by the number of cords.

The AC Adapter is huge. I normally have my Super NES, Genesis, and Sega CD hooked into one surge protector. I had to remove the Genesis and Sega CD to use the Interactor with the Super NES and vice versa.

While playing the games, I found it hard to calibrate the Interactor. There's no in-between settings. When trying to filter out punches, it was either no sound, or the music and punches. There's just no way to calibrate it so that you can perfectly filter out music so that it just registers the punches.

ON THE GENESIS...

On the Super NES, many of the games I tried didn't work that well. It seems that my Genesis games benefited from the volume control, in that you can adjust how much sound the Interactor gets.

On the Genesis, it hooked up through the headphone port. It was much easier to connect to the Genesis than the Super NES. It was easier to calibrate. To calibrate the Interactor on the old Genesis, you just put the Genesis' internal volume on five, and then turn the Interactor all the way up.

Strap it on your back and let's go! Virtual Reality comes home in a big way.

Virtual Reality into the hands of many, for a decent $100 price tag.

What it does is strap to your back (backpack-style), and transforms sound into vibrations letting you "feel" the game.

The effect is great on some games. On others, it's rather useless.

Experiment with the kinds of games you have in your game library.

To test the Interactor, I tried it on my game library. It would seem to me that, if I bought an Interactor, I would have to find uses for it with my own games.

HOW DOES IT STACK UP ON THE GAMES?

SYSTEM	GAME	PERFORMANCE	RATING
Super NES	Super Street Fighter II	Doesn't calibrate well	6 out of 10
Super NES	Stunt Race FX	Works well, feels good	9 out of 10
Super NES	Super Metroid	Calibrates to shots	8 out of 10
Super NES	Super Mario Kart	Difficult to calibrate	7 out of 10
Genesis	ToeJam & Earl	Good bass, decent feel	9 out of 10
Genesis	Sonic the Hedgehog 3	Doesn't enhance	6 out of 10
Genesis	Aladdin	Good bass, good feel	8 out of 10
Genesis	Gunstar Heroes	Garbled, but okay	7 out of 10

A VIRTUAL FUTURE?

Aura Systems says that companies have adopted a new system of setting game music on one frequency, and sound effects on another so that games will work better with the Interactor. On Mortal Kombat II, you can turn the music off, thus making the Interactor register everything correctly.

I flipped through the instructions to see how to hook two players up. For instance, in order to hook up on two-player fighting games, you need to go out to your favorite electronics store and buy a "Y" cable to split up the signal so that it can go to two Interactors. Great, more cords!

What about movies? I thought after using the Interactor that it would be extremely cool to use it with action flicks. Explosions and more would certainly be felt with more power than before. But then again, if you've got more than two friends over watching with you, it would be difficult to get three Interactors hooked up to one TV, let alone a power strip.

THE VERDICT?

The Interactor is an innovative machine, no doubt about it. It's certainly more affordable than any other Virtual Reality technology, and it's fun to play with to see what gives the best results. Games haven't been made yet that are tailored specifically to the Interactor's sound requirements. When that happens, I'm sure the Interactor will be better suited.

For $100, the Interactor is a good value. It provides economy-sized Virtual Reality in a small package.

The Aura Interactor—put it on your back for a wild ride.

However, there are drawbacks. I recommend trying it in your own lab first.

WALKING IN CONTROLLER WONDERLAND

EGM LAB REPORT

HAPP CONTROLS' MULTI-SYSTEM 6

The first is the Competition Pro Multi-System 6, a pad that can be used on both the Genesis and Super NES through a special controller adapter. It's ergonomically designed so that it fits in the palm of your hand easily. This controller is not easily adaptable to fast and furious fighting games requiring quick movements. The directional control isn't reliable for fast thumb moves. After a few minutes of play, my thumb was aching.

There are a variety of games to choose from this year, and we're going to take some time and list some of the ones you'll see.

The Multi-System 6 is good for gamers who own both systems.

It is a great plus that this controller works on both systems. It's great for multi-system users. It also has turbo speed on all buttons. One other drawback is a slightly slow response time. When tapping on the pad, it doesn't react on the screen.

INTERACT'S SG PROPAD

The SG PROPAD looks great. It's packaged in a see-through plastic case that lets you see its electronic guts.

The SG PROPAD for the Sega Genesis has its advantages.

The directional control moves easily, making it a good choice for fighting and fast-action games. The Turbo Option is also helpful. On the back of the controller there's also a switch for the pause-pause-pause slow-motion that console gamers have become accustomed to.

The button layout is similar to the Super NES' control pad, with two buttons on top. One major drawback: while testing the pad, it locked up for five to 10 seconds and you wouldn't be able to move during that time. That was frustrating, because at the time, Gunstar Heroes was in for the Genesis, and enemies attack you from all directions. It didn't happen once! It happened a few times on two separate sittings. True, Gunstar Heroes is a three-button game, but even when the Mode button had been pressed, the same effects occurred. Other than that drawback, I'd say it's a great controller.

ENHANCER 1 MEMORY JOYPADS

Here's a neat idea: a programmable controller that needs no manual programming. These controllers use ROM cartridges with pre-programmed moves. The best thing about them is that they work with the most popular fighting games like SFII and MK.

There are Genesis and Super NES versions available. The moves are programmed on special buttons below the normal buttons. Fatalities, special moves, and more at the touch of a button.

MORTAL KOMBAT II KONTROLLER

Here's another unusual but helpful idea. The Mortal Kombat II Kontroller from Innovation is a set of two modules that can be strapped to your controllers that, in effect, allow you to assign fatalities and special attacks to one button. Each kontroller has a list of characters and moves, plus can be used with two players. The box at the right is for the Super NES or Super Famicom version. This is sure to give entry-level players

SNK CD FOR SPRING

According to new reports, SNK is readying a scaled-down version of the Neo-Geo CD ROM you've been seeing pictures of in EGM. This new design may have a top-loading feature to cut down on production costs.

As for a release date, SNK is reporting spring '95. As reported in previous issues, there will be numerous titles ready for the launch in Japan.

The bigger version of the machine as seen in EGM will be released in Japan, as will this scaled-down version.

No reports yet about which games will be released in the U.S., but the Japanese titles may be ported over when the machine debuts here. More information next month.

INTERPLAY AND TSR INK DEAL FOR NEW GAMES

On August 17, Interplay Productions announced that they had signed a licensing agreement with TSR Inc. for new role-playing video and computer games.

The agreement gives Interplay an exclusive license to produce games for computer, home video, coin-operated, and on-line formats based on TSR's Forgotten Realms and Planetscape lines.

"TSR's fantasy games have captured the imagination of players around the world," said Brian Fargo, president of Interplay. "We are eager to get started on our first products and look forward to this new relationship with TSR, which will bring a whole list of fresh, innovative products to AD&D fans."

"This is fantastic news for role-playing fans," said Willard Martens, TSR's chief operating officer. "Interplay's fantasy, science-fiction, and strategy games are some of the hottest in the market! We expect exciting, cutting-edge games to come from this new design team."

The first titles to incorporate TSR's lines will begin appearing on store shelves in time for Christmas 1995. There is no word yet on specific story lines or titles, but those will be forthcoming.

There's no doubt that Interplay will have new ideas for home systems to keep RPG players content.

THE GREAT 1,000 MILE RALLY by Kaneko

Hola arcade goers! Kaneko has just released a new racing game called The Great 1,000 Mile Rally. This game has some cool features which make it a blast to play.

First of all, you can select your car from among 10 classic road racing cars. Each of these cars is a beautifully detailed reproduction which looks just like the original! With names like Ferrari, you know you're in for some serious racing!

The Great 1,000 Mile Rally also sports some cool 3-D graphics which display your car from various angles.

The 3-D perspective allows for excellent play control and maneuverability.

Hit the jump ramps at top speed and you will be catapulted through the air!

This little tidbit heightens the play control and makes the game pretty realistic. When you start going real fast, the background begins to blur giving the player a sense of motion. You had better be careful going into the turns, though. If you take a turn going too fast, the car will "fishtail" and spin out. As you approach a turn, however, the computer will display an arrow to warn you of the upcoming bend in the road! There are 12 very challenging tracks to choose from.

Buckle up and get ready for Kaneko's Great 1,000 Mile Rally. Hurry up and don't spin your wheels!

A guide arrow will alert you of upcoming turns. You're on your own after that!

Victory! Try to cross the checkered finish line before the competition to win.

You'll notice that when you hit top speed, the scenery becomes a blur.

GLOBAL CHAMPION by Taito

Many of the special moves are very weird! Check out this powerhouse.

Global Champion features some killer graphics via a 32-Bit processor.

You can pick and choose from nine different warriors from around the world.

Taito has entered the fighting game arena with a vengeance. Blasting into arcades shortly will be Global Champion, probably one of the most intense fighting games ever made.

The game is part of Taito's new 32-Bit system. It is one of the first 32-Bit cartridge arcade systems ever to be introduced, and Global Champion is the flagship of this exciting new system. Taito's new system is capable of rendering some of the most detailed graphics seen. It can reproduce a palette of about 17 million colors, which gives the graphics of games like Global Champion a colorful, realistic feel.

Global Champion is a strong contender among fighting games. Players pick their warriors from a selection of nine streetwise fighters from around the world. Each character has five different strengths of punches and kicks available. In addition, each character has devastating special moves that can be executed flawlessly.

The graphics are beautifully drawn and there's even a separate 16-Bit sound processor to handle all of the sounds and music! Taito is obviously serious about their quest for arcade dominance judging by what we've seen of Global Champion. Play it and enjoy!!

Special attacks can be performed using a joystick/button combination.

Get a load of those backgrounds! Every one of them is beautifully drawn.

To make things even more exciting, a separate 16-Bit CPU handles the sound.

A super-wide game field is the icing on the cake. Global Champion rules!

SAMURAI SHODOWN II by SNK

The long-awaited sequel to SNK's mega-hit fighting game is finally here!

Most of the stages have been modified. It seems that the seasons have changed!

With all of the technique and play control intact, SS II will be totally hot!

They're baaaack!!! SNK is planning on releasing Samurai Shodown II very soon, and arcade junkies everywhere are rejoicing! The first Samurai Shodown enjoyed an almost cult-like following and became a big hit later in its illustrious career.

Shodown ranked alongside of fighting games like Mortal Kombat and Street Fighter II in play control, graphics, sound, and technique.

Shodown II appears to be a "chip off the old block."

Apparently, all of your favorite fighters from the first Shodown are back to have another go at the title of the world's greatest samurai. In addition, there are four new characters joining the ranks. Some of these new characters are rather bizarre. One of the characters is a little old man who looks as though he couldn't hurt a flea!

Fortunately for him, he can inflict a lot of damage to the other warriors using wild combos and special moves. Another of the new characters, a huge, lumbering behemoth with an artificial hand, looks very ferocious.

Besides the new characters, there are some other refinements to this new Shodown. One of the biggest things that you'll notice is that some of the stages have been altered. There are new tidbits in most of the levels and many of them are now set in different seasons. SNK has been fairly tight-lipped about any major enhancements such as new moves, new stages, and a new end Boss. Expect to see some new enhancements, but don't expect Shodown II to be a whole new game.

Needless to say, no matter what new goodies will be included in Shodown II, players everywhere will flock to this machine in the arcades. The first Shodown was such a runaway hit, the second one will probably great! Stay tuned for more on Shodown II in upcoming issues of EGM!

All of your favorite characters are back, including four new faces on the scene!

If your commando gets hit too many times, you will be taken out of the action.

Arcade aficionados who have been around for a while are sure to have a flashback when they see this latest coin-syphon from Taito. Operation Wolf 3 looks to be the coolest installment in the Operation Wolf series.

Players can pick up a number of weapons while they blast their way through the various levels. One or two people can play, and the action onscreen is really intense! The Bosses at the end of each stage are totally cool. Do yourself a favor and try Operation Wolf 3 by Taito!

Heads up folks! Here comes a whole slew of games for you. The PlayStation is getting off to a good start, with third-party licensees lining up to make games for it.

In Japan it seems as if the Saturn will replace the Mega Drive. Hardly any can be found. However, there's one exception: Treasure's made a hot new action game for Sega of Japan that is very much along the lines of Contra called Alien Soldier. With 40-50 Bosses, you can expect some major firepower to light up the sky.

Oh, one last thing ... Imagineer of Japan is working on a neat all-female fighting game. We've managed to get one picture in to give you a sneak peek. Expect more on this game in EGM #4 as a two-page Fact File. Over and out. Bye bye.

Goemon 3

Super Famicom

Unknown Price

Konami's Oriental mascot is back for another delirious action/adventure. Goemon is joined by Ebisumaru, his long-standing oddball sidekick. (Weren't these guys called Kid Yang and Doc Yang in Super NES The Legend of Mystical Ninja, the first of the 16-Bit series?) Also joining the cast are Sasuke, the mechanical ninja from Goemon 2, and Yae, a girl ninja (Kunoichi), who made a cameo appearance in 2. Each character has different abilities, special weapons, and moves for added variety.

The story takes place in Neo Edo where Goemon's gang must thwart a band of thieves from the future. The foes are Jurokubei Shishi and Sister Bisumaru, both of whom bear a curiously close resemblance to the two original heroes.

For the most part, the game consists of conventional (if really weird) side-scrolling action stages. There are also towns with handy items on sale and wickedly funny minigames.

Along with ninjas, mystical spirits and other weirdos will attack you.

Goemon Impact, the huge, virtually indestructible robot from 2, also returns for side-scrolling mayhem and spectacular 3-D fighting scenes with awesome Mode 7. There are even 3-D chase scenes. The object is to run away from rampaging enemy mechs, before they get you!

Goemon must travel through all new dangers in this ultrahot cart.

Goemon Impact returns stronger than before. Good thing he's on your side.

If you enjoyed the first game, you'll most likely want to play this one.

Takara has come up with an intriguing twist on Shanghai. The object is simple: from a stack of coded plates, pairs are removed if the plates are not covered or hemmed in by others. Unlike Shanghai, single pieces that are hindering play can be picked off up to a certain limit. Besides the Elimination Mode, there is also a Timed Mode in which the stack has to be cleared within a set time. Two players can either compete head-to-head or help each other out. There are 20 different stacks and three different kinds of plates. The field view can be rotated four ways to obtain hints. Nothing flashy, but the addiction factor is high.

The commercial starred Yakisoban, a heroic alien from outer space, out to stop the evil Kettler and his low budget world domination schemes. This game was developed to be a prize for a lottery campaign conducted by Nissin, the noodle maker. The contest became a hit with Nissin being flooded with entries for just 3,000 games, so Den'z persuaded Nissin to give the game an official release. Ruin Arm

Action/RPG
Unknown Release	Unknown Price

It is several centuries after the decline of the mechanical civilization. All that remains of the once-great era are ancient ruins with decrepit pieces of machinery. A young swordsman, with visions of becoming a knight, sets out on an epic journey to these ruins to unravel the sinister designs of an unspeakable force of evil.

The hero is joined by two other members in his quest, including his sister (the only person capable of casting magic), Lucia and Toran, a mysterious masked fighter. Bandai claims it is possible for one player to control all three characters at the same time. However, they don't describe how to do this feat. Perhaps a game system similar to Square's Secret of Mana has been adopted.

The action is done in classic Zelda-style, giving you challenges of both the mind and reflexes. Totally hot!

Trips to the towns often provide you with both clues and supplies.

Find entrances to the ruins via deep chasms in the Earth. Is this the way?

Several centuries in the future, racing remains a favorite spectator sport, especially Battle Cross, a global grand prix competed using air bikes. A young racer, with dreams of one day owning his own racetrack, joins the competition with visions of vast wealth in his mind.

This is a nifty, fixed-screen racer for up to five multi-tapping players. Various items appear on the track to wreak havoc with opponents like a laser beam, land mine, anchor, and a particularly mean one that flips the steering around. There are also speed boost and invincibility items to gain the edge on opponents. Single players can try their hands at the Grand Prix Mode which follows a cute story, and a Practice Mode with scoring.

With multi-tap games like this and Bomberman, more than one or two players can join in for riotous fun.

The format of Battle Cross is very similar to that of Off Road.

There are many tracks to race on, and they take you all around the world!

Technos has come up with a clever twist on wrestling games by adding a compelling Simulation Mode. Start out by assembling a wrestler by picking out parts like the head, torso, arms, legs, etc. Combining these aspects causes the wrestler to have certain characteristics. For instance, power could be emphasized by sacrificing speed. Or you could put together a lightning quick fighter with limited power. After you create your wrestler, enter him in fights. Depending on the way he fights, the wrestler's abilities evolve as he grows older. That's right, your wrestler grows older on you, from as young as 18 to an over-the-hill 55.

Over the years, he can get married. The abilities he built up will be passed down to his children, so you may see sessions lasting several generations to become World Champions.

RPGs have always been one of the most popular genres. (I love 'em), In Japan the RPG/simulation series of Shining Force continues on the CD format. The first two stories are remakes of the older Game Gear titles. There's also a third story that hasn't been seen before.

You should already know the first two stories. The third features the crowning of King Nick, the hero of Scenario One. As everyone gathers to celebrate, Darba (a witch) appears and makes Queen Anri of Guardiania disappear. Darba will only accept Nick as king if he and his armies are able to rescue Anri. To get to her, the team must fight through a bar full of drunks, a graveyard, and a garden filled with lewd, suggestive women. Hopefully this title will be released here, as everything about this game is near perfect.

LINKS

the challenge of golf

Links for Sega CD™ is the most near-perfect, outrageously realistic golf game available.

How perfect is Links? The course mimics Torrey Pines exactly — Incredible, 35 mm photography places you behind every tee, fairway, water hazard and bunker, wherever the ball lands, and gives you an accurate view of your next shot. It's so life-like, you can almost smell the green (that's a good thing).

And as you'd expect from any decent golf game, Links features

- Tournament play
- Practice mode, Front 9, Back 9
- Instant Replays
- Save player info

But then, Links goes far beyond any other golf games to give you in-depth golf features like

- 1 to 6 players (sorry, other games can only handle up to 4)
- Full support of TeeVee Golf Club™ for the most accurate, realistic and fun golfing experience available
- Aerial fly-overs of each hole so realistic you may get airsick
- Running stats on how many fish you tag when your ball lands in the water.

Okay, we're just kidding about the last feature.

But as you can see, Links for Sega CD is the closest thing to perfection when it comes to golf games. So you can bet that if any game comes out with a "Golf Car Donuts On The Fairway" feature in the future, it'll be Links.

NEW SOFT NEWS

The latest news on the street is that after the Christmas season, the 16-Bit market is going to give way to more powerful systems. The sign that points to this is the increased interest in the 3DO, Jaguar, and 32X.

The awesome games Theme Park and Syndicate are almost ready for release on the Jaguar.

A thrill-ride of a game called Time2Die by Studio 3DO is on its way. As for the venerable Sega CD, a full-motion video game based on basketball, called Slam City will be previewed soon.

Oh well, that's about it for this issue. See you 'round for EGM. Until next time, folks.

Digital Pictures

Corpse Killer

Sega CD

Action

The latest full-motion video game for the Sega CD is called Corpse Killer. It's an eerie game loaded with gory effects and shooting action.

You are a member of a five-man Navy SEAL team sent to a remote Caribbean island to terminate Dr. Hellman, a mad scientist. He's been raising an army of the dead using a bizarre blend of magic and science. Hellman used to be part of a top secret government project that was to recycle criminals that had been reduced to zombies. Now you must find Hellman and kill him. The problems start when you are bitten by a zombie and begin slowly turning into one.

You must progress through a series of battles, rescuing your teammates, and finding allies, like Winston Crum, a Rastafarian local guide with a knack for the occult.

The trek to Dr. Hellman is long and difficult, with lots of undead creatures hunting you down. There are strategy elements involved here, too. You have to decide when to find supplies, save a comrade, or go on a rampage.

These two are your allies. Try to keep them from harm's way.

Blast the rampaging hordes of undead that roam the tropical island.

One wrong turn and you'll be the meal of several drooling, rotting corpses.

Barbie's Vacation Adventure

Super NES

Action

Who says there aren't games for girls? Hi Tech Expressions has just the game for those who complained. The world's most famous doll, Barbie, is now on the Super NES. Barbie's Vacation Adventure is about how Barbie enjoys her vacation around America. Stopping to visit at the most fun places, Barbie gets to ride horses, go scuba diving, and try on a bundle of new clothes.

If you want a nice game that's like a vacation in itself, Barbie's Vacation Adventure is just perfect for you.

Titus

The Brainies

Super NES

Puzzle

Titus has whipped up an addictive new puzzle game. (I didn't really leave their booth at the last CES, I just kept playing.)

You control a bunch of strange creatures called Brainies. You must move them to set locations within a certain time limit. The clock ticks by pretty fast, so you have to think fast. The starting levels seem pretty easy, but believe me, it gets tough quickly.

You can see the playing field from a number of perspectives before you start, but the clock keeps ticking.

New ideas for puzzle games are often few and far between, but Titus has a fresh idea here. It may not have spectacular graphics, but it's addictive as heck. This should interest puzzle players. Think fast!

Try to move the Brainies around to their spaces before time runs out.

The Brainies might look a little weird, but it's more addictive than Tetris.

Mickey Mania

Action

Mickey Mania is a real tribute to the animated mouse that has entered all our hearts. Mickey's greatest cartoons and movies are re-created in game form for players to enjoy. Even "Steamboat Willie" is here. And guess what? It's even in black-and-white, just like the ancient cartoon.

One thing you'll notice when playing this cart, besides the great game play, is the fact that there are so many special effects. For example, there's a Mode 7 race sequence featuring a giant moose. There's also lots of rotation and wonderful animation in nearly everything on screen. If you enjoy cartoons, this is as close as you get.

Relive Mickey's first animated adventure by entering Steamboat Willie.

Fighting

One of the greatest fighting games around is not on its way to the 3DO by way of Crystal Dynamics. Samurai Shodown has been translated flawlessly so far. Even though it's still early, (only three characters were really playable) it's easy to see that this will be the closest translation.

All of the characters will be in the game. From the American ninja Galford and his dog Poppy to the stealthy Hanzo, this translation will feature the scaling found in the arcade game.

This will be the fighting game to get when it comes out. It's an amazing conversion that has to be seen to be believed.

The matches will get bloody, but not unrealistically so. It's just right.

Hanzo is a deadly ninja who wants to free his son's soul from Amakusa.

All of the characters will be found in the final version of Samurai Shodown.

If you clinch swords, you can sometimes break the other guy's sword.

Genan is a freak with a gloved hand that does lots of damage.

Each fighter has a number of special powers that are quite deadly.

Fighting games still are all the rage, and a number of fighting games are headed for the 3DO format. The graphics of this one are rendered in a format similar to Way of the Warrior and Mortal Kombat. Each character has real voice and a lot of killer moves. It's still really early, but it could shape up to be a real winner. Look for more on it.

One character even has a shotgun that he uses to blast his opponents.

If you can't get enough Street Fighter II, the next game in the series is coming out soon. And you won't believe which system it's going to: 3DO! Okay, you can get up off the floor now. You heard me right. The most popular fighting game around is going 32-Bit. Instead of just being Super Street Fighter, it's going all the way as Super SF2 Turbo. Now players will be able to do all the new moves and the ultra-deadly Super Moves, too. Even the evil Akuma is lurking around somewhere, just waiting for a few foolish souls to challenge him.

If any game is going to sell the 3DO, it's going to be this hot title.

The opening cinema from the arcade game is included in the 3DO game.

Where is Akuma? Perhaps he awaits the strongest warrior in the land.

You can play as all of the characters from the arcade game.

DAY OF THE ZOMBIES

Recently, EGM took a trip down to sunny Puerto Rico for the filming of Digital Pictures' latest CD-ROM shooting game, Corpse Killer. In the world of interactive CD-ROM games, Digital Pictures is a giant. With such titles under their belts as Sewer Shark and Night Trap, it is easy to see why DP is considered the leader of the genre.

EGM's resident traveling geek, Mike Forassiepi, arrived in San Juan right in the middle of the worst draught in recent memory (it figures). Trucks loaded with water had to be dispatched in order for guests at the hotels to bathe. No amount of bathing in rusty, smelly water could prepare Mike for what he was about to see.

First, some background on the game Corpse Killer. You play the part of a member of a Navy SEAL team sent to a remote island to terminate Dr. Hellman, a mad scientist who is raising an army of zombies. Dr. Hellman was, at one time, part of a top secret government project known as Operation Manpower. This program was designed to overcome a shortage of soldiers by using criminals who have been executed for capital crimes. If you are bitten by one of these zombies, you slowly become one yourself.

The man behind the magic is Tom Zito, Digital Pictures' president and CEO. Tom, along with his Vice President of Corporate Communications Michelle Jordan, brought Mike into the heart of the Puerto Rican jungle for a behind-the-scenes view of how an interactive CD-ROM game is made. (Continued on next page)

The picturesque island of Puerto Rico was the setting for some ghoulish goings-on. The island is in the middle of its worst drought ever!

The masks that the zombie extras wore were made of a thick, latex rubber. The costumes were very uncomfortable in the Puerto Rican heat.

Here come the zombies! This game screen ought to give you a pretty good indication of how the final product will look. Oooh, scary!

Members of the crew prepare a jeep for filming. The camera must be mounted on the side of the jeep to give the player a first-person perspective.

Behind the Scenes

Being a zombie can be tough work! Here, a crew member helps one of the many zombie extras to don part of his costume.

Tom Zito, president and CEO of Digital Pictures, is the man responsible for some of the most imaginative CD-ROM titles ever.

Looking more like a junkyard than a movie set, this stretch of beach is where a battle takes place between the player and a pack of angry zombies.

The cameras roll as Brigett Butler gets ready for yet another short scene. In this one, she'll have to drive a jeep and talk to the game player.

When finished, the scene being filmed in the picture above will look something like the screen shot at the right. Pretty convincing, huh?

The sets and props looked very realistic. This fake plane crash on the side of the road shows that lots of attention was paid to detail.

The first thing that was immediately apparent was that this was to be no small production. There were literally scores of production members scurrying around carrying cameras, lights, cables, make-up, and anything else you can imagine. It was quite a sight! Meanwhile, further into the forest, about 20 crew members were filming a portion of Corpse Killer where photojournalist Julie Barnes (played by Brigett Butler) is being attacked by a swarm of hungry zombies. The extras who were dressed as zombies had probably the most difficult job. They had to endure the Puerto Rican heat for hours on end while wearing thick, latex rubber zombie masks.

Throughout the day's shooting, Tom Zito keeps an ever-watchful eye. Corpse Killer will feature over 60 hours of game play when completed. This translates into many weeks of uninterrupted shooting (weather permitting) and post-production work. Digital Pictures has an enormous production budget of over $8 million this year. DP plans on releasing five new interactive titles within the course of a year! Mr. Zito obviously has his work cut out for him!

Back on the set, everyone is breaking for a quick lunch (Hey, zombies have to eat too!). Under a large tent, everyone is eating quickly. There is still a lot to do before this day is over. Afterward, the crew begins setting up for a stunt in which a jeep is driven off of the road and into a ditch. The scene is filmed again and again until everything is done just right. For about 20 seconds of onscreen game action, three to four hours worth of filming is done.

A lot of work goes into making Digital Pictures' live-action CD-ROM titles. More work than most people realize. You don't have to tell that to the production crew, they already know!

DONKEY KONG COUNTRY

THE THRILLA GORILLA:

Donkey Kong, King of the Nintendo jungle of characters, is back and he's bigger and better than ever and available for the first time on the Super NES. This beast of a game is bigger than any other Nintendo game ever made with 32-Megs of power and completely computer-rendered graphics, giving the game a three-dimensional look made possible through Nintendo's partnership with U.K. developer Rare Ltd.

Donkey Kong Country is Nintendo's flagship product for its second half and reintroduces one of the most popular video game characters in history (introduced in arcades over 10 years ago). It is also the first video game to use ACM (Advanced Computer Modeling), a proprietary design technology using Silicon Graphics, Inc., workstations and Rare Ltd.'s proprietary development systems.

The new game features Donkey Kong and introduces his monkey sidekick, Diddy Kong, in a romp through fantastic worlds of adventure where they meet up with a cast of new friends who assist them in defeating their enemies and the diabolical evil Kremlings.

Donkey Kong Country has some of the best game play the Super NES has ever seen with smooth, fluid movement of Donkey Kong and Diddy Kong. The perfect response time just adds to the game making you feel like you're a part of the fast action around you.

With extensive levels to play through, tons of secret and hidden levels, this one-player action/adventure game will challenge any game player and demonstrate the ultimate evolution of a Super NES game, bridging the gap between 16-Bit and 64-Bit technology.

DKC is an incredible breakthrough game in every shape and form. You'll only see it on the Super NES—NOT on 32-Bit adapters or on a nearby planet. The Jungle fever starts November 21!!

Use Your Friends of The Jungle

In the vast depths of the jungle you will find these friends. They can help you tackle your enemies and different obstacles.

Espresso allows you to briefly fly in the air avoiding any nasty enemies in your way.

Espresso

Charger

Ram your enemies at full speed. You can also break through walls with this guy.

Winky allows you to jump higher into the air.

Tag Team Action

Unfortunately Donkey Kong Country is not a two-player game, but you are able to control both Donkey Kong and Diddy Kong in the game. The game is basically set up in a two-in-one hit manner. You start off by playing as one of the characters in the level. Along the way if you break open a special barrel the other gorilla will pop out and follow you around. As soon as you get hit by an enemy or by a Boss the character you are playing will die and the other teammate will take his place. In some instances if you lose one of your teammates you will be able to find a special barrel in that same level to become a team again.

Items To Grab

Keep a sharp eye out for these icons. You'll need them to get gorillas.

Banana

These bananas are everywhere. Collect one hundred and you will receive an extra gorilla.

Bunch

The bunch of bananas is worth 10, making that one hundred much easier to reach.

Letter

If you find all the letters to spell out KONG you will get an extra gorilla.

Level One: Kongo Jungle

Kongo Jungle is the first level in the game you will discover. Each level in the game is made up of several sub-levels for you to work and fight your way through. It's in the Jungle Japes sub-level where you can find the rhinoceros. With the rhino you can break through a wall, allowing you to find a secret cave level. Most of these levels are just made for Donkey and Diddy Kong to rack up free gorillas. There is also a water and a night scene to parade through.

Barrels O' Fun

Here are just a few of the various barrels you can use in the game.

Barrel 1

When you jump inside of this barrel you will be shot out of it immediately.

Barrel 2

Inside of this barrel you are able to control when you would like to be shot out of it.

Barrel 3

Your teammate will be inside of this barrel, unless you were hit previously.

Very Gnawty Beaver

Very Gnawty Beaver is the first Boss you face. The way to defeat him is to jump repeatedly on his head. His attack pattern is very basic and easy to break.

Level Two: Monkey Mines

The Monkey Mines level is where the game pace starts to really pick up. You get sent into high gear when you ride inside a mine cart in the Mine Cart Carnage section. Here you try your best to stay on the track, avoiding oncoming carts, and some nasty jumps as well. Winky the frog is in the next section for you try out some new features. You are sure to find some hidden levels with him if you jump in the right spots. Also there are moveable tires for you to find in order to get to new locations in the sections. All in all, Monkey Mines is sure to keep you quite busy.

Necky The Vulture

At the end of the Monkey Mines level, the Boss to fight is Necky. Necky is a huge vulture that pokes his head on either side of the screen, usually at the top. As soon as he appears on the screen he will open his mouth and spit out a rather large nut. To destroy Necky, jump onto the rubber tire located in the center of the screen. This will give you some extra height so you land on top of his head.

Snow Barrel Blast Level

Level Three: Vine Valley

Vine Valley is one of the hardest levels in the game, due to some of the new enemies you fight. The Zinger is one of the most troublesome, since you can't jump on top of it to defeat him. Your best bet is just to avoid them. Espresso the ostrich is in these parts for you to team up with. He is able to fly momentarily which comes in quite handy when there are some difficult jumps around and too many creatures in your way. There is also another water level here. The fish have been replaced with killer sharks so swim carefully.

Big Zinger

When fighting the Big Zinger you can't jump on top of him to damage him. All of the spikes that surround his body are protecting him. The only way to do any kind of damage to him is to launch barrels that appear on the screen. Once you chuck a barrel at him he will turn red and attack at a much faster pace. You then have to wait for him to turn back into his normal color before you can damage him again.

Level Two: Monkey Mines

The Monkey Mines level is where the game pace starts to really pick up. You get sent into high gear when you ride inside a mine cart in the Mine Cart Carnage section. VIDEO COWBOY BUCKING SPORTS TRENDS WITH ICEMAN

There's a new sports gaming guru on the EGM team. I'm the Video Cowboy and I'm out to put the Iceman on ice, knock him on the grass on the gaming gridiron, and burn by him on the paved ovals of the gaming world.

Get ready gamers as I face off against the Iceman as we kick off another issue of Team EGM sports.

The Rookie has been sent to the minors. While he's sitting on the pines, the Iceman and I will be going head-to-head each month, bringing you the latest pieces of news from the world of sports games, here on the pages of EGM.

From tossing touchdown passes to finding out what new exclusive sports gaming products will be coming out, I'll be carrying the ball on the EGM sports team each issue.

My favorite game is NHL Hockey '92 by Electronic Arts; I love the fighting feature. If you ask me, their entire series of hockey games rule.

As far as previewing and reviewing games in the future, I'll be standing by Iceman to give you the best opinions and inside gaming goodies on all of the top games. We'll be on the phones getting you the latest rumors and gossip from around the world.

So strap on your helmets and hold on tight. We're tag-teaming to bring you the most sports gaming news and reviews on the planet.

EA has something for you! See the latest pictures on NBA Live '95!

Try to keep up with the fast-paced racing on Michael Andretti's Indy Car Challenge.

FIRST LOOKS AT UPCOMING SPORTS TITLES

Time to lace up the skates and take a look at what makes the hockey games that are coming out for the Sega Genesis tick. As usual, NHL Hockey '95 kicks. Sony Imagesoft also climbs onto the ice with ESPN National Hockey Night for the Sega Genesis.

This issue we also have some prime football action on tap as we bust heads, put on the shoulder pads, and take to the gaming gridiron with Troy Aikman NFL Football by Williams Entertainment (formerly Tradewest). Software Toolworks' NCAA Football and Madden '95 by EA, debut on the Super Nintendo as well.

Abandon the Rosh. With a good kick, oncoming traffic is a girl's best friend. Take a ride to the wild side in 3D's version of Road Rash. Great cinemas!

We'll also crash and burn, and look at the latest and greatest Road Rash ever made as it rocks and rolls on the 3D0.

We'll even take a trip to the hard court and slam and jam with NBA Live '95 by Electronic Arts. We'll rock the rim with the "Awesome One" Dick Vitale Basketball by Time Warner Interactive.

From there we'll change gears, burn some rubber and come out of the hole quickly with ESPN Speedworld for the Genesis, Al Unser, Jr.: Road to the Top for the Super Nintendo, and Michael Andretti's Indy Car Challenge for the Super NES by Bullet Proof Software.

Hold on tight, it's going to be a fast and wild ride to the checkered flag this month!

Invite some friends over and really have a kick racing on the tracks of Street Racer.

3D0 NHL HOCKEY TO BE ANNOUNCED

There's about as many hockey games sprouting up as there are commercials featuring Wayne Gretzky. Very few hockey titles have garnered the kind of attention or put the numbers on the board that NHL Hockey by EA Sports has, but companies keep trying. This year's version of NHL Hockey is fresh and new. Although it's their fourth kick at the hockey can, it's the best version yet. They used all of the members of their bench to produce this game. Look for an in-depth preview of the Genesis version of NHL Hockey '95 on page 154.

A Sega CD version of NHL '95 is also being planned and they're shopping around for a developer to make a version of their popular title for the 3D0. Inside sources are suggesting that to take advantage of the MPEG technology that is built into the 3D0, full-motion video will be utilized in the 3D0 version. They're searching high and low, but they won't have to look much farther as a couple of companies have shown interest. It's all hush-hush for now, but when they talk, we'll be all over them like a dirty sweat-shirt.

It seems hockey is a popular genre and Sega is working on Sega 32X and Saturn 3-D hockey titles that will feature different views of the ice, perhaps from under the ice. Now that would be cool!

Battle it out on the field of ice as you compete in EA's NHL '95 for the Genesis.

ANOTHER SEASON FOR THE RBI BASEBALL FANS

Super RBI Baseball is loaded with stats, for both the team and individual players.

It's time to go deep over the wall in left field with Super RBI Baseball for the Super Nintendo.

The game is being released by Time Warner Interactive who recently acquired Atari games. This game is a faithful translation of the Tengen RBI Baseball series that has been out for the Genesis. The game has a Major League Player's Association License and has some very cool features, including isolated views of the field of play, showing distinct views of first and third base. In the Movie Mode you can see members of the crowd doing the wave, the third base coach giving signals to the batter, and the runner.

The game features a home run derby, a Practice-Your-Defense Mode, plus a half season, a full season, and a World Series Mode.

The Difficulty settings Easy, Medium, and Hard work well.

In the Easy Mode a red X appears where the ball will land. Get there before the ball lands and you will have a sure out. In the medium and hard difficulty settings, the red X does not appear.

You can use the L and the R buttons on the top of your controller to lead off of the bag. You can either increase or decrease the size of your lead.

When up to bat, press to get the best-pitched ball. Watch it as it flies out of the strike zone.

If you press the swing button, your batter will stop swinging and the ball won't be called a strike. This is the first game that allows you the luxury of pulling back your swing.

A line score feature keeps track of your stats, including all of the singles, doubles, triples, home runs, walks, stolen bases, and errors that take place during the game. A good feature for stat lovers.

MORE FEATURES ... ALL OF YOUR FAVORITE PLAYERS ARE HERE

Play in all 28 of your favorite major league ballparks. Everything from the Ivy along the outfield wall at Wrigley Field to the Green Monster in Boston is included.

All of these options add to the feel of stepping up to the plate and facing off against big league pitchers.

I saved the coolest feature for last—the Game Breakers Option. If you think you're really good, begin a game down two or three runs in the bottom of the ninth inning and try to win.

There are 17 different, difficult scenarios to test your Super RBI Baseball skill level. I can't wait to do a full review.

You can play the entire season, a single exhibition game, or you can jump right to the Playoff Mode, but don't go there until you're a master of the air. I learned that the hard way. There is a Rookie, a Starter, and an All-Star Mode. It was tough getting the Ice man away from this game to finish our work.

I finally had to grab a controller, plug it in, and corral a victory in the final seconds of the game with a Tomahawk jam. I wanted to play as the Raptors, but they haven't started official league play yet.

You have eight cars to choose from and as many drivers. You and three of your pals can play against each other in the Four-player Mode, but you must have a four-player adaptor.

The catch here is that each driver has his own strengths, weaknesses, and special weapons. The object of the game is to finish first and in one piece. It's as much fun as you can have with your cowboy boots on. If you enjoy punishing your competition, this game is for you.

In the Rumble Mode, you'll have to knock all the other drivers off the barricaded ring.

THE STREET RACERS

Meet the street racers you can choose from. Each racer has a unique weapon that he/she can use on the other drivers. As for the power and performance of the vehicles they drive, it varies in speed, handling, acceleration, attack, and defense. Pick one that suits you to carry you through the crazy races and toward the championships.

You can bring in your back-ups and change your personnel depending on the situations this year.

The passing windows can be retained through an option. Play an entire season with the computer, keeping statistics on each team and individual players' accomplishments. This year John Madden himself designed a host of new defenses and had input on the way they were placed in the game. The defenses are tougher, and included in this version are classic NFL defensive alignments from the NFL's best teams.

On offense each team has its own specific play calling module that the computer accesses. On third and short Buffalo will call a different play than the Dallas Cowboys. The actual style and play calling trends of each team are built in. This year the computer is much tougher.

The two-point conversion, along with kick-offs from the 30-yard line with lower kicking tees are in this year's version.

If a receiver goes for a touchdown and no one is near him, he will stop at the goal line, turn around, and fall backward into the endzone doing "The Plunge."

In the passing sequence, you'll be able to see your receivers heading down field. You can then choose which one to pass to.

One of the many features that change the game play is that you now have the option to convert two points after the TD.

Zzz ... wake me up at halftime. I'm afraid this game didn't impress me at all. The characters are too small and the game play's choppy. It's just too busy to see what you're doing and you can't figure out which player you're using. This game doesn't meet my standards.

SHOOTING, SCORING, AND MORE ONE TIMING

Surpassing even last year's spectacular version, EA Sports NHL '95 rocks!

The bad boys of the National Hockey League are about to hit the ice for another exciting season of hard-hitting hockey action.

The team at EA Sports spent the off-season making an entirely new and exciting version of NHL Hockey '95. Gamers will find this game the best one yet. It's a new season, not the same old game with a new name. The action is quicker, the defenses are tougher, and this game skates circles around the competition.

After the faceoff, head for the goal. It will take some serious strategy to score.

NHL HOCKEY—A CUT ABOVE THE REST

Tie up your gaming skates and come with me for a quick skate through the hottest hockey cart to date. This year goals will be harder to come by, and the goalies are harder to beat for good reason. This year the programmers at EA Sports made the goal area smaller and the goalies smarter. They increased the goalies' artificial intelligence (AI). In past years when you tried the wrap-around or that special deak, you could count on a sure goal. Even the move where you moved your star center or winger into the corner of the opposition's goal, and skated back through the crease, and flipped the puck up and over the goalies' shoulder, only works three out of 10 times.

The action is nonstop! Increased goalie AI makes getting goals an exciting challenge.

All of your favorite teams are back with their accompanying player rosters, but this year you can play an entire season. The game also has new schedules and complete player rosters.

The goaltenders aren't the only changes that make the game more challenging this year.

All of your favorite teams and their complete rosters are at your disposal.

The computer is even harder to beat when playing by yourself using your favorite team. The computerized defense didn't just eat its Wheaties, the programmers at EA Sports improved on last year's game. The one-timers are in, and the Iceman and I have to buy new controllers; our old ones are still smoking from working on this preview. This game rules and I am currently the NHL Hockey champion of the office.

This game is so realistic you'll feel every crunch of every hit, and wish you could be sent to the penalty box to take a rest.

Baseball action so realistic, you'll be tempted to cork the bat.

The new Batter Up™ electronic bat lets you swing against the toughest pitchers in the major leagues. But forget about pressing buttons on a boring controller. With Batter Up™, your biceps control the bat, not your thumbs. And there's no room for whiffers. Best of all, it's compatible with the most popular video baseball games around. Pick it up at your favorite video game retailers. Game systems and cartridges are each sold separately. And remember, don't wear your cleats in the living room.

Championship Soccer '94

You have a blimp's eye view of the playing field in Championship Soccer '94.

A key to scoring in this game is to go for the corners when you're in close, and you will see the GOAL GOAL GOAL symbols in big red letters flutter across the screen.

you'll finish out of the money and won't be able to buy your dream bike. If you like a game with fast action and lots of twists, turns, and challenges, then your wait is over. Time to smoke the tires and

ROAD RASH ON 3DO

Road Rash is back and badder than ever. This is the ultimate street racing game, and it rocks on the 3DO. It comes with all the whips, chains, and 180-mph high jinks that the first two versions of Road Rash for the Genesis had.

Multiply that by 100 and you'll have found the secret formula that makes Road Rash kick fun into the 3DO.

Watch out for pedestrians or oncoming traffic. They might send you on a ride on the pavement that you really don't want to take.

The awesome music is the icing on the cake. The game was actually shot on real streets and highways, with hundreds of hours of full-motion footage shot, digitized, then put together to make up this game.

The rules are basically the same, but this time the police are a little smarter and harder to get away from. No leaving your bike and hiding behind a cow or a tree and waiting for them to leave.

The pace is fast and the driving's hard as you strive to buy your dream bike. What more can you ask for with all of this in a single CD? Well, there's more!

TEAR UP THE ROAD WITH THE FINEST BIKES AROUND

The 1000-cc Diablo Viper N worth $40,000 or the 900-cc Stiletto Assassino N worth $35,000 are two bikes to choose from.

There are five levels with five tracks in each; the Sierra Nevada, the city, Napa Valley, the Peninsula, and the Pacific Highway. Each course presents its own challenges, including avoiding cops and running into zombie pedestrians. If you don't place in the four,

You'll have to win your share of races before you'll be able to upgrade your bike.

I loved the Genesis version and I love this one even more. With the CD quality sounds and the 32-Bit capability of the 3DO, this version is one not to be missed. The tracks are cool, but the one thing that I griped about is that this game can get repetitious and tiresome. You can get used to the controls the moment you pick it up. Great addition to the 3DO.

The Help Menu offers advice on wind direction, and a window on the right hand side of the screen shows you which direction to press the control pad for the type of shot you desire.

If you don't like getting tickets, then you'd be better off playing Mario Kart. That's a game for people who like driving the speed limit.

Anything goes in this game, including driving in the wrong lane. It's a good idea to make sure nothing is coming, but even the crash scenes are incredible. Just try to avoid head-on collisions with police cars. Those are the type of crashes that will cause the smoke to really fly and will wreak havoc on your driving record.

It's no ordinary Sunday drive in the countryside. The digitized scenery is breathtaking and adds to the game.

Grassy knolls, rolling hills, slow winding curves, and towering cliffs await you. The drives through the wooded areas are eerie yet exciting, and there are the straight-aways where you can shift it into fifth gear and really go for broke. Just try to stay between the yellow lines. It's a long way to the water, and cars don't float.

If you think you have the driving skills to push the envelope of speed and stay out of jail, then plug this game into your 3DO.

Whatever it takes to win is what's allowed—including driving in the wrong lane. There are no rules in this driving game.

Hit a grand slam to bring all men on base home.

CATCH THE FEVER

Tengen, famous for the RBI series on the Genesis and Super Nintendo, has their sights on the Game Gear as well, bringing you the fast-paced baseball action from the 16-Bit machines. This Game Gear version delivers what you want in a baseball game. It may not match the bigger systems out there, but this is a very good game that can catch many sports fans who lack sports carts for their Game Gear systems. Now let's get started and look over through this year's version of RBI Baseball.

Catch the action as players toss the ball around the bases with ease.

RBI '94

One feature that caught my eye during the Team Select Screen is you can pick from more teams than the current ones. You can also choose from your team's best years from several years ago.

Afterward you'll choose your starters and the pitcher who will lead your team. You'll be able to see your players' stats and determine their positions on the field.

The way the field moves is very smooth and clearly seen. Plus, the fast-paced action on the field will never be missed.

You'll see every fly ball and watch a player hit one out for a home run.

The animations for this version are incredible, from the batter's box to an outfielder throwing the ball home. Hey, try hitting a batter and see what happens.

In the sound department, you can't really ask much ... it is

Game Gear after all. But for Game Gear's capability, the sound is good. Tengen has produced many sound effects that bring this game to life. I may not be a Game Gear fan, but this game has shown me many features and great game play that are worthy of praise.

Choose your team's greatest years when you compete against the computer.

LaRUSSA '95 BY ELECTRONIC ARTS

I don't know what Electronic Arts was doing with this. I was not thrilled with this game at all. The controls for the pitcher and the batter need some work. Animations of players are neat, but they slow down a bit. An okay revision from last year.

SUPER
GHOULS N'
GHOSTS

Arthur's annoying enemy in Super Ghouls N' Ghosts has his own game, Demon's Crest! In it, you control Firebrag, a winged demon who must find several stones with magical powers. Along the way, Firebrag can collect several different abilities, including being able to fly, swim, and use great speed. However, the quest won't be easy: there are several hidden areas and fearsome Bosses you must confront and defeat before you can proceed. Some of you may have also played the NES and Game Boy versions, called Gargoyle's Quest. This one has eye-popping graphics, beautiful music, and very challenging game play. This game combines all the elements of strategy and action. Looks like another winning title from the folks at Capcom!!!

Demon's Crest

OPENING STAGE: THE REMATCH

The first stage pits Firebrag against a giant dragon. You will fight this huge monster twice, but the second fight is much easier than the first. Just keep hitting it in the head with fireballs, and it will go down.

THE GOOD

Excellent graphics, exciting game play, and several techniques make this the one to get!

THE BAD

This game is so good, you almost feel bad when you finally finish it.

THE UGLY

The eye Boss Ovnunu! What is that green goo you sink down into?

ABOUT FIREBRAG:

Out for revenge against Phalanx for injuring him and stealing his Crests, Firebrag begins his long journey to retrieve the stones and bring harmony to the Demon World. Make sure to inspect everything!

STANDARD FIREBRAG POWERS AND ABILITIES:

FIRE

The normal Firebrag attack. Simply push the Y button.

GRAB

Grasp onto walls with claws. Jump and push against a wall.

HEADBUTT

Bash objects for items. Push the A button.

HOVER

Hang in the air indefinitely. Push the B button twice.

FLY

Fly horizontally after Hover. Hover, then push L or R.

UNLEASH FIREBRAG'S POWER WITH THE CRESTS!

There are several Crests you can collect to change your form. Some of these can be obtained by defeating a Boss, while others may be hidden away. Each allow Firebrag to use special powers, depending on the stage.

THE CREST OF WATER

TIDAL GARGOYLE
Swim in the deep blue seas.

THE CREST OF EARTH

GROUND GARGOYLE
Smash objects with speed.

THE CREST OF AIR

AERIAL GARGOYLE
Fly higher than ever before.

THE CREST OF TIME

Press START anytime during play and you can access the Options Screen. You can pick which potions or spells to use and can also select which form Firebrag can assume. It will also show which Talisman power you can use. The shield shows which Crests you have.

The Black Lotus will sell you potions. You need Urns to carry them.

Malwous (left) runs the Talisman Shop and will identify their powers.

At the Gaming Shop (above), you can win money with your skills.

AREA III: THE ISLAND

This forest stage takes place mainly in a wooded area with several enemies hiding in the tall trees. There is also a lake with platforms that shoot projectiles to knock you into the water. Flame Lord is the Boss of this area, and will set the whole forest ablaze before you can fight him.

This entire frigid area is a frozen-over wasteland of bones, ice-covered slippery surfaces, and endless hazards. Grewon is the Boss and one of the toughest in the game. This one takes patience and skill. You just have to slowly wear him down, picking the right time to attack.

AREA II: THE TOWN

The Town has several shops in the first part. The town also has a creature who you will probably want to converse with—he may have some info. The Boss, Belth, is a skeleton with a blade. He uses dashing and jumping slashes for his attacks.

AREA V: UNDERWATER RUINS

This sunken city has many dangers, both on the ground and in the water. You may want to obtain the Crest of Water before entering this one. The Boss, Crawler, is a giant mass of tissue that throws eyes and other objects.

AREA I: THE GRAVEYARD

After the Intro Stage where you fight the dragon, comes the Graveyard Stage. The first part is simply a horizontal run, with simple enemies to destroy. At the end you will meet General Arma who you will fight several more times. The second section involves grappling up the side of a high cliff. This area is a great opportunity to practice all of Firebrag's unique abilities.

Up the giant tower! This part is filled with elevated stone platforms and pits filled with spikes!

Use: his clothing, food!

EGM's Nob (our ace editor in Japan) arranged a special interview with Mr. Yusuke Hirata, the general manager of the publicity department of Square Co. Ltd.

FINAL FANTASY III

In Japan, you have already released six official Final Fantasy games. When were these released, and how well did they sell?

The original FF was launched in December 1987. Approximately 600,000 were sold in Japan. The NES version sold better, registering sales of approximately 700,000. The Famicom FF2 and FF3 were respectively launched in December 1988 and April 1990.

Their sales were approximately 800,000 and 1.4 million units respectively. These were never translated. Final Fantasy IV, our first Super Famicom RPG, registered sales of approximately 1.5 million upon its release in July 1990. FFIV was translated as the Super NES FF2 which sold about 300,000 units. FFV was released at the end of 1992 and has sold approximately 2.4 million units. The newest title, FFVI, was released in April of this year. It has become our biggest hit ever, with sales reaching approximately 2.55 million units. We hope the Super NES FF3 will echo the success of FFVI in America. In total, the entire FF series has registered sales of approximately 9.25 million units in Japan, and 2.2 million units overseas, so close to 11.5 million units all told. Incidentally, we also repackaged FF1 and 2 together onto a single Famicom cartridge earlier this year in Japan.

Besides the official titles, are there so-called Gaiden (side story) games that have spun off from the series? The Super NES FF Mystic Quest comes to mind.

The Game Boy Seiken Densetsu (Legend of Holy Sword) was subtitled FF Gaiden in Japan, and called Final Fantasy Legend overseas. About 700,000 units were sold in all, with about half a million being sold in Japan. Its sequel, Seiken Densetsu 2, came out for the SFC last year. You might know this better as Secret of Manal It has almost gone double platinum.

Mystic Quest was released in America long before the Japanese version was translated from it. All told, it sold approximately 800,000 units, 50-50 between the SFC and Super NES versions.

Do you plan to make any other Gaiden-type games?

Nothing has been decided.

Is there any plan to release the yet untranslated FF games? Although it may be difficult to do the 8-Bit FF21 and FF3 because of the market conditions, it would be a shame if American gamers couldn't experience the outstanding FFV.

At present, we haven't come to any decisions.

FFVI is widely hailed as the best ever in the series. Will the Super NES version be altered in any way from the SFC version other than translating the text? For example, the Super NES FF2 was made considerably simpler to play than the original SFC FFIV. Will such balance adjustments be made?

We haven't made particularly noteworthy changes. We feel that the game has been designed to enable virtually all gamers to adjust configurations to suit their playing styles.

Including planning, how long did FFVI take to produce?

We spent about a year and a half.

How many people were involved in the game's production?

In total, about 30. There are five planners, five programmers, 10 graphic artists, and two music people. The rest are assistants.

Are development teams always composed of identical members? Or do key people assemble separate development teams for each title?

We assemble a new team for each title. However, the main people remain constant including our vice president, Hironobu Sakaguchi, who is the driving force behind the series.

We are always astounded by the superb music in FF games. Who is the composer?

The man responsible for all the FF music is Nobuo Uematsu, our resident maestro.

In Japan, the soundtracks of FF titles are available on CD. How big is the lineup? Are these music CDs popular?

CDs of all original soundtracks have been released for the FF series titles. Besides these, arranged versions based on the original soundtracks such as orchestral arrangements have also been released for every title. The 3-CD FFVI original soundtrack has been our biggest seller to date, with sales topping 200,000 units.

The evolution of game systems has been amazing. Are system improvements based on feedback from fans to a certain extent?

All system enhancements and features are based on the original ideas of our development staff.

FFVI appears to have established an incredibly high standard of quality. Although it is premature, can FFVII keep up the series tradition of besting the game before it?

Our development staff upholds a policy of always using the best techniques available at the time. Each development team therefore aims to make a game that is better than the one before it.

In Japan, a FF anime series was produced. Which game is the story based on? Will it be released in America?

The story is set in the world of FFV, but 150 years later. We are presently considering releasing it in America.

Is there any possibility of seeing FF titles on the Ultra 64 and/or other next generation systems?

We are evaluating possibilities. On a purely hypothetical level, we think that the odds are slightly better for Ultra 64 than other new game systems.

Finally, how about a few words for the Square fans in America?

We will stand by our policy of consistently making games that betray your expectations for the better. Count on us for games that will make you go "Wow!"

"We feel that the game has been designed to enable virtually all gamers to adjust configurations to suit their playing styles."

Bart is back! While participating in the local school science fair, the prince of mischief stumbled upon a game that was showing a Virtual Reality experiment. To Bart's dismay he wasn't watching a VR experiment, he WAS the experiment! Now the only way he can escape the spinning wheel of Reality (and avoid throwing up) is to complete all the games on the wheel including, baby Bart's adventures, Krusty's pig farm, the Springfield water slide, the wasteland race, school picture day, and prehistoric Bart. What truly makes this game enjoyable are all the voices that are included in Bart's latest adventure!

Oh no! Poor Bart's fallen into the packaging machine! Looks like it's corn-dogs for our hero.

WATER SLIDE

Before Bart can go he has to wait in line. The guy in the middle looks awfully familiar.

If Bart is lucky enough to find the tube that leads to the lion, he'll get swallowed and be spit out with full energy!

VIRTUAL BART

BABY BART!

Bart's adventures will take you everywhere!

Follow in Baby Bart's footsteps as he makes his way through trees, across the clothesline, and races in his baby carriage to get to the ice cream truck!

KRUSTY'S PIG FARM

Rescuing your pig friends from Krusty is not always as simple as pulling a lever. Sometimes you must find a key first.

In the Krusty Pig Factory, you have been turned into a pig and must rescue your friends from being turned into Spam!

THE GOOD

Many complex games add hours of play. The sound effects are right from the show!

THE BAD

Players will have to be good at many different types of games before beating this one.

THE UGLY

Bart's entry in the school science exhibit.

INSIDE OF THE MOUNTAIN

During this stage the Bartosaurus will run into many familiar faces. However, all of them will try to destroy him. Be sure to collect all the food icons you can—you'll need them!

THE SIMPSON CLAN AND FRIENDS!

All of the characters are here in the Stone Age!

The entire clan has made it to the Stone Age! Bart must steer clear of his family who is out to harm him. Keep your distance and then attack!

Watch it! Hardly any of the ledges in this level are stable enough to support a big bad Bart!

Many of your enemies watch from high above, attacking at a distance.

Using the roar icon allows Bart to destroy all the enemies on the screen!

MATT GROENING

CLASS PICTURE DAY

Launch tomatoes and eggs at your fellow classmates!

For extra bonus points, you can hit Principal Skinner when his back is turned! Just stay clear of the rest of the faculty!

Bart just wants to ruin the class picture by throwing eggs and tomatoes at the classmates thereby ...

... making the entire class picture a total mess. If our nasty boy falls at this, he'll get his picture taken with the rest of 'em!

BIKER BART

Otto is in here! Unfortunately, so is his bus.

Your enemies attack Road Rash-style!

Poor Bart's in for some serious punishment if he loses the race!

Radical Rex is a cool dinosaur who has a little problem—an evil wizard named Sethron has cast a spell on all the dinosaurs that causes them to fight each other. Our hero Rex slept right through the hex and is now on a mission to destroy the evil wizard, but all of his fellow dinosaurs are out to get him! Don't worry though, Rex is a powerful dino and perfectly capable of taking care of himself. In fact, a lot of the little dinosaurs don't even bother him, they just run around confused. Rex has two different forms of attack: his kick and his fire breath that you can make more powerful by collecting fire icons.

LEVEL 1

When Rex wakes up from his nap, he's totally confused. He learns that the dinosaurs are hostile, and he knows he has to stop them. When you encounter enemy dinosaurs, use your fire to stun them; then kick them to finish the job.

If you get a hold of a skateboard, you can do some radical stunts!

This dude launches spikes at you. Try to stun him with your fire, then kick him.

At the end of this level, you have to toast this guy with your fire to reach the end. Use your Super Roar also.

Icons!

The heart icon will restore all of Rex's health. This one comes in handy.

The eggs are all over the game. Collect 80 of them in each level to get a bonus.

This icon will give Rex the ability to shoot his flames across the screen.

This icon will give you one more chance. The free guys are hard to find.

Rex has a mighty roar that can kill almost everything. This icon charges it.

To build up Rex's flame power collect these icons because bigger is better!

THE GOOD

Radical Rex has great animation and graphics, plus it also has good game play.

THE BAD

The game is too easy for serious gamers.

THE UGLY

The way you feel after playing awhile—this game is really long!

LEVEL 2

Rex is now in the primordial jungle, and again it's up to you to keep him out of trouble. This is one of those levels that you could speed right through. I suggest that you look around for a little while and try to collect all of the eggs, so you can get to the Bonus Level. There are vines that you can swing from to get to the next platform, and there are hollow logs that Rex slides through at high speeds. Don't go too fast because you might land on something bad.

Sometimes you have to toast the enemies; then use them to reach high icons.

This green water pushes you back into the spikes, so keep moving.

Swing from the vines, but don't let go too soon because you'll miss the platform.

LEVEL 3

Rex got swallowed up by this really big dino-dude, and it's up to you to get him out. The inside of the dinosaur is really bouncy, and it takes a little while to get used to. There are a lot of passages that lead from one part of the body to another. Go into these because they will take you where you want to go at high speeds and launch you out once you get there.

This is one big dinosaur!
It's up to you to get Rex out.

Sometimes you have to kick through walls that are constantly growing.

Don't let the blue dudes grab you, it takes a roar to get them off.

These passages take you to another part of the level.

It's a little tricky to get some Icons, but it's also a lot of fun.

Assigned to the Toon Town beat, Bonkers met Lucky Piquel, a human officer who not only became his partner, but his best friend as well. Together they worked hard to keep the peace until an unidentified thief made off with three priceless treasures from the Toon Town Museum: the Sorcerer's Hat, the Mermaid's Voice, and the Magic Lamp.

Now it's up to you to help Bonkers T. Bobcat retrieve these stolen items from the mysterious evil villain. Bonkers will traverse various stages such as a haunted mansion, some Hollywood studios, downtown streets, and an ocean liner. In order to defeat his enemies, Bonkers must bounce off the top of them or throw a bomb at them. It's cruel, but they're bad guys. There are plenty of other surprises waiting to be uncovered!

THE GOOD

Great graphics all over the game as well as excellent sound effects. Most of all, the game play is good.

THE BAD

The only bad thing about this game is that it is a bit on the easy side. It needed more challenges.

THE UGLY

Check out the Boss of the Ocean Liner stage. Boy, he is really ugly!

MANSION STAGE

Beware of the pitching gorilla. He sure can hurt those fastballs!

Bounce off the bee to launch Bonkers up to the ledge above.

Toss a bomb at a balloon to make it reveal some hidden items, like shields and bombs, or just run into it.

BOSS

This is one evil ghost. Its first attack will possess the coat rack. Toss a bomb at it to release it from the rack. It will appear as a giant spectre launching puffs of smoke at you, and then will possess the vacuum. Bounce off it.

STUDIO STAGE

There are plenty of different studios to venture through in Hollywood such as a sci-fi scene and a Western town.

In the Old West, dash on the roofs until you get to the Inn. Jump behind the inn's sign and enter a hidden area for more items.

BOSS

The Boss in the studio is tricky. First you must lose the guy on the conveyor belt by making him fall off the edge. Dash and jump to hit the button on the right, making lights fall, and eventually the Boss falls from the top.

DOWNTOWN STAGE

Dash through the glass barriers.

Don't touch the electric signs.

Make careful jumps over the barrels.

Make a mad dash through the tunnel and avoid heavy traffic.

As you climb the building, avoid the pots being thrown.

BOSS

The Helicopter Boss is accompanied by a humanoid sidekick with a cape. Bomb the sidekick, then stand clear on the side and wait for the copter to fly by. Jump on one of the platforms and let the copter have it.

OCEAN LINER STAGE

Take the service elevator to other areas.

The heavy storm makes it tough to walk the deck. Watch for barrels.

Watch for the bombing birdie in the beginning. No, it's not what you think.

The kitchen is one of the most hazardous areas on the ship as is the freezer.

BOSS

Wow! What a huge Boss! Bombing this guy takes great timing—he'll swat your bombs back at you. Position yourself on the set of boxes on the left and bomb him soon after he attacks. He'll be down in no time.

BLAST FROM THE PAST!!!

Remember way back when video games were still in their infancy and played on Pong systems and the old Atari 2600? In those days, Pitfall was one of the most popular games for the 2600. It was so good that Activision decided to include the old classic in with the Super NES version. The only way to get to play this version is a secret. Can you find the way through PTMA to play it?

The vine-swinging saga of the hottest video game ever continues in Pitfall: The Mayan Adventure. It's all-new pit-hopping action has you and 18-year-old Harry Junior (son of the original Atari 2600 Pitfall Harry character) setting out to rescue Harry Sr. from an evil Mayan spirit. Thrash through deep dark rainforests, explore Mayan temples, and race through rat-infested mines to reach the realm of the Mayan Warrior Spirit for the final confrontation to save Harry Senior.

Throughout some of the levels, Harry, Jr. may come across some strategically placed warp holes that will transport him to a secret bonus level. In this level, you must pull three levels in a predetermined order. The task becomes increasingly difficult with each turn as you must pull one more lever with each turn.

THE GOOD

This 16-Bit upgrade of the old classic has decent game play and great animation.

THE BAD

The bonus level is a great idea and is very challenging, but at times can be too tough.

THE UGLY

I've seen some really unique health icons before, but the heart icon is just sick.

HARRY, JR.'S ADVENTURE MAP

As you progress through the adventure, Harry will get to see a map to preview where he is and where he is headed. There are plenty of dangers ahead so prepare for the worst.

EGM had the opportunity to visit Delphine in Paris to get a behind-the-scenes look at their newest creation, Shaq Fu. Although the game was unplayable at that time, we were able to observe the elaborate process that they're using to create the fluid animations they're best known for. Since then, we have been able to get an 80 percent finished version, and all of their hard work has really paid off, although the control still needs work. Hopefully in the next few weeks they'll have the bugs worked out. Look for our review next month.

The year is 2214 and as the metal morph metallion you are an ambassador to the galaxy known as the Otherside. Earth has created a temporal displacement field known as a hypergate that links the two galaxies.

Your living metal body and ship are made of the only substance that can travel through a hypergate. If your mission of peace should fail, you must protect your metal morph technology at all costs. As you land at the rendezvous, the alien ambassadors ambush you. You awake in a strange place and realize that escape is the only way to survive.

The flying scenes in this game look cool. It is very tough to line your ship up with the enemies to destroy them. I suggest that you dart around everywhere, constantly shooting until you kill them.

These are better than your standard shot because you can shoot more than one at a time.

Every unit you find gives you 90 shots. These are all over so take as many as you want.

This is the second most powerful weapon. Shoot it and it splits three different ways, giving you a spread shot. This makes it easier to hit moving enemies. You get 30 shots per box.

getting killed. Plus, you have the electrical force fields to get through. Make sure you find the switches to turn them off. Also, find every weapon; you will need them!

Outside of the towns, there are enemies everywhere. They roam the countryside attempting to stop people like you from reaching your destinations alive. The farther you go, the nastier they become. All give you items when defeated.

December 2049. Earth's Moonbase, Yaz 67, has been attacked and destroyed by an unknown alien battlecruiser. Earth Federation Starfleet Command sends two battlecruisers to attack the alien ship, but the crew was consequently wiped out by a malicious horde of robotic killing machines. This alien battlecruiser can only be stopped by destroying 12 plasma nodes that are protected within the 12 levels. It's your mission to destroy the nodes and stop the alien spacecraft, before the Earth is reduced to a lifeless hunk of rock.

SPRAY
Sprays a wide path of bullets to take out foes.

GRENADE
Launches grenades with limited range.

LOCK ON

BATTLE FRENZY

LEVEL 1 The First Assault

Take a good look at your friend and be sure you don't open fire on him.

This not-so-friendly 'bot has destruction on its mind and you in its sights. Shoot or die!

Watch out for this robot shooting at you. Make sure you take him out beforehand.

Rounding corners can be hazardous to your health. Look before you leap.

Having two players can make the mission easier, unless you have an idiot for a partner.

LEVELS 2 & 3 The Carnage Continues

The firefights are always intense, especially when your butt's on the line.

You never know who or what will appear down these long corridors.

You just can't get a break around here! Now the robots carry shields!

Levels 2 and 3 aren't much different from the first level, except you'll be facing many more powerful robots and higher maze complexity, making escape a challenge. Some of the robots even carry shields to protect themselves! As expected, the plasma nodes are harder to locate and more heavily armored than before. The carnage keeps growing as you try to reach Level 12!

THE GOOD

The whole concept is pretty impressive and the smooth scrolling is very good for the Genesis.

THE BAD

In Two-player Mode, the screen sizes are so small it can be hard to see what's up ahead.

THE UGLY

The thought of someone installing a computer chip in my head to run around and kill things.

One good shot to the chest isn't always effective in the higher levels.

Off in the distance you see your best friend; a new, fully loaded weapon.

Robots just love to hide behind walls to ambush unsuspecting fools like you.

VIEWPOINT

This game is a translation from the classic game on the Neo-Geo. Finally, it is coming home at a more affordable price for the Genesis. Lots of people haven't had the chance to play this game, which is a shame. There are different special powers to use on the enemies. Unfortunately, there aren't any power-ups. The perspective is a unique one that you just don't see anymore. This is as good as a translation could be, considering the obvious deficiency in Megs. A Two-player Option is available, but it isn't simultaneous and works like the old SMB game.

THREE COOL LEVELS OF SHOT POWER!

There are three levels of intensity for your weapon. The longer you hold the button, the stronger the shot becomes. I recommend that you always charge if you're not firing.

THREE NIFTY SPECIAL WEAPONS!

You have three different special powers that are all color coded. The red is a fire wave, blue is a mine that hits everything, and green shoots a spread that is heat seeking.

There are all kinds of shooters and this one definitely has a perspective not seen in a long time. It's fairly hard to get used to dodging things from this perspective, but in time you learn. When I play this game, I am reminded of the ancient Colecovision and the timeless classic Zaxxon.

There are tons of things that are thrown at you to keep you on your toes. They come from nowhere and smack into you!

These little buddies hang off the side and each gives you an extra shot making you extremely lethal. If you don't have this power-up later in the game, you are pretty much toast.

THE GOOD

The playing perspective is unique and a reminder of the good ol' Zaxxon days.

THE BAD

There is a lot of slowdown and the colors just are not bright enough.

THE UGLY

The Level Two Boss is pretty much what I look like when I wake up in the morning. Blechhh!

The many options consist of a Difficulty Select and a Sound Test.

Shoot one flap to make it spin and that will open the gates allowing you passage to the next section.

Your super shot can wipe out smaller enemies in one shot if lined up correctly. Plus, enemies like this green ship take half as long to kill, lessening the chance of your uncertain demise.

These slinky-looking things can be pretty tough, but can be taken out with a solo super shot.

Shoot the orange sections of this enemy and then fly around him. He is very hard to destroy.

These flowers look harmless, but if you get too close to them, I guarantee they will gak you.

These twin turtles are a pain in the shell. You can only hit them when they stick their heads out.

There are fishes in this level. The big one is hard to kill because of all the obstacles you have to dodge while shooting him. The smaller ones, however, are very easy to kill.

This Boss will try to get you with his claws. Shoot 'em off first and then go for him. Careful though, he has one more form.

These snakes slither through the holes and appear out of nowhere. Keep your eyes open.

Level 3

This huge slug moves along slowly, but is hard to kill. Try to dodge him instead.

This level has quite a few bugs in it—the bugs that you step on. Anyway, use your super shot as much as possible. Getting to the Boss shouldn't 'bee' too hard.

These walls will open and close, trying to crush you. So please, be careful.

These things aren't very hard to dodge but they take an extreme amount of damage before dying.

This overgrown bee bumbles around buzzing while beating you silly. Keep far away and fire when possible.

THE GOOD

A fighting game using 3-D rendered spheres? A cool idea, and it really came across well in this game.

THE BAD

The control for this game is difficult. With a viewpoint that rotates, directions become confused.

THE UGLY

Some of the comments for the display board are just outright rude. "Do you have the Ballz to win?"

CAN YOU TAKE IT?

how fine is your brain, mutant? afraid of bruising your ballz? fight!

With most of the fighting tactics centered around humiliation, you can expect a blistering array of insults on the display board.

This game is not for the faint-hearted. Get ready for some serious ball-smashing in this unique fighter. A group of super-hackers, represented by virtual-reality fighters consisting of spheres, are gathering to do battle. Jester, a crooked cyberhacker who is hosting this tournament, has invited a crew of his own Bosses to fight as well!

The Jester invites you into his tournament.

Aside from the basic characters, there are eight Bosses. The Bosses are all unique in strength and style. Be careful, or you can say goodbye to your Ballz!

STAR WARS CHESS

Anyone who plays chess can enjoy this game. It is a standard chess game, with the Star Wars characters as the game pieces. There are lots of options to play with and the computer has five difficulty levels. You can choose to be either the rebellion or the Empire depending on which makes you feel friskier. No side has an advantage over the other but each character has a different kill animation for the other characters. Watch as Yoda fries Boba Fett or as the Emperor sizzles Princess Leia. There is a two-player feature for action with your friends.

The Kings The Queens The Bishops

These are your weakest pieces, but the most important. If Checkmate is achieved on your King, you lose the game.

These are your most powerful pieces. She can move in all eight directions as far as you want, making her extremely deadly.

The Bishops move only diagonally, but if your opponent isn't watching his back, they can sneak up and destroy him very quickly.

The Knights The Rooks The Pawns

These guys move in L-shaped formations, making them sneaky because you don't always see them coming.

The rooks move sideways and up and down. They are good for taking out annoying characters on the other side of the board.

These more or less get in the way. They only move one space forward, but can save a bigger piece from getting killed.

There are 12 different characters. Six are on one side and six are on the other. They all fight one another and each fight has a different animation. Most are funny and look as cool as they can on Sega CD.

THE GOOD

Most of the animations of pieces killing pieces are extremely funny.

THE BAD

Once you've seen the animations, the fun is over. Plus, this rather tame game is rated MA-13.

THE UGLY

Emperor Palpatine is King and Darth Vader is Queen. That makes me sick just thinking about it.

Get ready for the dream match of the year! A brand-new way of fighting has arrived. Introducing the Team Battle System! This new feature consists of a three-member team fighting a one-round match against another three-member team. You arrange the order in which you want each team member to fight. Your team must overthrow all three members of your opponent's team to win.

Eight teams from various countries have been invited to this competition. Many of the fighters you may recognize from previous Neo·Geo fighting games. Each character has his/her own special moves to use in the battles, plus a Super Lethal Attack that can be used only when you power-up your character.

The graphics are completely redrawn as opposed to the previous fighting games. The new musical score and sound effects will really get you into the game. Some other new features include the ability to avoid attacks by stepping aside, your background teammates' reactions to the fight, and getting you out of throws.

THE GOOD

Excellent graphics, 24 characters, killer tunes, and awesome control just to name a few.

THE BAD

Unfortunately and surprisingly, the game tends to slightly slow down when there's too much action.

THE UGLY

Well, it's not Mai Shiranui's incredibly bouncy chest, that's for sure!

THE KING OF FIGHTERS '94

We are opening King of Fighters 1994. Following the time honored custom, this year we will adopt a special rule of competition between teams of three fighters. That's all...

Italy

The Bogard brothers (Terry and Andy) are back with their friend, Joe Higashi, to team up for the tournament. If you recall, these bad boys have been in all three of the preceding Fatal Fury games for the Neo·Geo. As you can see in the pictures below, all of their devastating moves come with them as well. This will be one tough team to beat. Play hard!

1. Slash Kick
2. Burning Knuckles
3. Syo Ryu Dan

China

The Psychic Fighters have proven to be some of the best fighters in China. Chin Gentsai, Atena Asamiya, and Sie Kensou use ancient techniques passed down from their ancestors to win their battles. As a team, they can do some real damage to their challengers! Some of the moves are the Kutotsuken and the Dragon Uppercut.

1. Super Bullet Attack
2. Gourd Attack
3. Psycho Ball Attack

Japan

These newcomers are known as the Geniuses of Fistcuffs from Japan. Their names are Benimaru Nikaido, Kyo Kusanagi, and Goro Daimon. The first two fighters have lightning fast moves, while the third has deadly blows and grabbing techniques. Diversity makes this team worth playing. The choice is yours.

1. Lightning Fist
2. Mine Layer
3. Yamibarai

U.S.A.

The Super Stars team consisting of Heavy D., Brian Battler, and Lucky Glauber are ready to take on all who oppose them! They love to fight on their home turf in the United States, but will take on any challenger, anytime, anywhere! Some of the team's moves include the Death Bound and the Hyper Tackle.

1. Soul Flower
2. Hyper Tackle
3. Cyclone Break

Korea

The Korean Team features Kim Kaphwan from the Fatal Fury series and two newcomers named Chol Boung and Chang Koehan. This is probably the strangest group in the game because the three characters are so different from each other! Still, different is good when it comes to a team battle. Can Kim and his freaky friends survive it all?

1. Hisho Kuretsuzan
2. Hien Zan
3. Spinning Iron Ball

Brazil

Straight from the jungles of Brazil come the Raging Soldiers. Jeldern is the leader of this fearsome threesome, followed by Ralf and Clark. By spending most of their time training, they have perfected their guerrilla warfare tactics and are about to put them to use in the tournament! They present a tough challenge! Use them to find out!

1. Neck Rolling
2. Guttering Attack
3. Vulcan Punch

England

The Princesses of Punch from England is an all-female team. Mai Shiranui is from the Fatal Fury series, while Yuri Sakazaki and King come from the Art of Fighting games. All of their special moves come with them to the tournament including the Kacho Sen and Tornado Kick. They think they're better than all the guys. Try them and see!

1. Venom Strike
2. Fanny Strike
3. Ryu En Bu

Mexico

Another popular series of characters from the Art of Fighting games enter in the team battle! This time it's father and son, Takuma and Ryo Sakazaki. They are joined by their friend, Robert Garcia. Their trademark moves such as the Zanretsu-Ken and the Dragon Blast Punch make them very formidable characters!

THE GOOD

Having a large playfield is a plus in this game. It also controls very well.

THE BAD

Just about every special move is a combo. You are left wide open when you miss with your attacks.

THE UGLY

These far-fetched "Crazy" moves have to be seen to be believed, such as the Jealousy Bomber!

Fight fiercely with all your might! The Aggressors of Dark Kombat are ready to take you on with devastating moves that will leave you in awe!

This is a one-on-one fighting game like no other because your playfield is not limited to one plane of movement. Instead, you can move all around the screen to position yourself for moves and avoid attacks. When you tap the A or B button, you will get a light punch and kick. If you press and hold one of the buttons, you will get a stronger move. You can dash by pressing forward with the control stick twice. You can pick up spiked bats, shovels, and bottles to throw. Also, you can grab your opponent and grapple for a move. As you hit your foe, an energy bar will build up at the bottom of the screen on your side. When this bar is full, it will flash "Crazy." When your foe's life meter is in the red, you can execute a hilarious special move that will destroy opponents!

All kids love Spiked Bat! Pick it up by pressing ∇ + A and for a special move, do $\nabla \blacktriangle$ + A.

Pick up a bottle with ∇ + A. Now, throw it at your foe to give him/her a bad case of burning butt!

Press toward your foe with A and B at the same time to grab. Grapple to win the move.

Years and years ago, an alien race lived on Earth. Suddenly, a flood destroyed the whole civilization. In the year 2095, they have come back with a vengeance and destroyed part of Mars. The Earth, in retaliation, sends out ships to attack the mother ship. This might sound like a sci-fi movie, but it's actually the story line for the shooter Burning Soldier for the 3DO system. In this game, you don't actually control the ship—it controls itself. You just shoot everything in sight. There are many stages in the game, and in between each stage there is a cinema explaining what your objective is for the next mission. This game is one of the best shooters I've ever played. The control is great and the scrolling is very smooth. My favorite part of the whole game is the music. It's fantastic and totally fits the theme. This is definitely the best shooter title for the 3DO to date.

THE GOOD

The graphics for this game are clean and detailed, plus the music is great!

THE BAD

At times, it's hard to follow who's shooting at you and who you're shooting at. Talk about confusing!

THE UGLY

Watching the death cinemas when your ship explodes into a million pieces. Very bad gig!

BURNING SOLDIER

THE ATTACK ON MARS!

In the future, an alien race who inhabited Earth tens of thousands of years ago, attacks planet Mars. To retaliate, Earth attacks their mother ship—revenge is up to you!

STAGE 1

Watch out! You might get hit by asteroids!

Be careful of these ships, they're quick and agile!

Shoot the asteroids before they hit your ship!

There is a plethora of missiles coming at your ship—shoot 'em!

This is what happens if you don't shoot in time!

Unlike the ships in Stage 1, these shoot missiles!

STAGE 2

KNOW THE COCKPIT!

Watch your shield. With every hit you sustain, this meter gets lower and lower.

This is the Blaster Meter. When fully charged, the red bar will blink rapidly.

This light will turn red when your blaster is fully charged.

This is your "lock-on" light. When your crosshairs move over a target, this light will illuminate.

THE GOOD

This game must have years worth of action-packed cinemas. This is more like an interactive movie!

THE BAD

Sometimes the control is a tad annoying, but not at all enough to drag this title down.

THE UGLY

Some of the blood scenes (some-one gets shot) are really gory. This is an adult-only title!

BURN CYCLE

It's gotta really stink to only have 24 hours to live. That's right. In this title you've got one day to solve the mystery of who's after you, why they want to kill you, and how you can save your worthless hide from certain death. You are Sol Cutter, a cyberpunk who likes to jack into the net and make off with other people's money. That was all fine and dandy until you decided to tweak with Softech. While messing with their base, a nasty brain virus was downloaded into your noggin, which will eat away at your brain until you die ... 24 hours later. Can you save yourself in time?

SQL GETS A NASTY HEADACHE

One night while breaking into Softech using cyberspace, you are blasted with a nasty shock. Unfortunately this was no random power surge, this was the implantation of a brain virus which eats your brain away within one day. It's tough to be you!

A HUGE AMOUNT OF CHARACTERS TO INTERACT WITH

One thing that is really awesome about this game is the massive cast of characters you can meet and interact with. Some will share prolonged relations with you, others won't. Check it out!

THE ACTION BEGINS

This is where it all begins. You wake up realizing the Burn: Cycle Screen.

You wake up with a splitting headache. OW!

Kris, your assistant, snaps you out of it.

She tells you to quickly don the HUD unit.

THE HUD UNIT

You will have to learn the control of this thing if you want to survive for very long.

Using the HUD interface, you can save your game.

Kris can give you direct video transmissions.

It also comes in handy when targeting nasties.

DEATH OF KRIS

Your trusty assistant won't be around for long, so take precautions.

She'll be calling for you to hurry to her location.

Who is targeting her behind her back?

You are forced to see her graphic death.

THE LIFTER

This little craft will come in handy throughout the game. Use it wisely!

Search Kris for some useful items.

With the keys you find on Kris, you can use the lifter.

Once inside, it's a whole different challenge.

INTERACTIVE ADVENTURE

Although many games are using terms like interactive to describe their action, few come quite as close to true interaction as this game. The sheer vastness of the people and places, conversations and choices make this a very excellent game. Heck, if you play your cards right, Sol can even become a woman later in the game!

AWESOME INTERACTION

Out of all the CD games I have played, this game comes the closest to a truly interactive movie. Excellent game play as well as character interaction make this top-notch entertainment! Excellent!

MUTANT RAGE BODY SLAM

The year is 2068, and things have really changed in the future! The Millennium Wars ruined the world's grand cities. The Grey Terror Plague of 2017 reduced the population by a third with its deadly accuracy.

Radiation from the Thanatos meltdown radically altered the gene pool causing unusual defects in newborns. With technology advancing, bioengineers have created animal-human hybrids. Athletes are commonly enhanced with bionics in order to increase their stamina, dexterity, etc. The Cyber Net, a fiber-optic communication network links everything. The rage of the Cyber Net is Body Slam, a hand-to-hand combat where players try to crush their opponents before they are crushed! Behold the new world and its newfound game. Are you up to its challenge?

The game is Body Slam, the premise is simple: hand-to-hand combat, waste everybody else before they waste you! Easy enough, or so you think. Once you take on the challenge of the Cyber Net, there's no turning back. You can choose to fight as one of the three humans who call themselves the Natural. Your gang of rebels consists of two males and one female. All three are very similar in the way they control, but each has his/her own special moves. Your goal is to travel to many different areas of the world and take on mutant creatures who are half animal, half human, and very deadly. Body Slam plays very much like the old arcade game Double Dragon. However, in Body Slam, you have the ability to tag off with the other players during certain points in the game. If you think you got what it takes, give Body Slam for the Philips CD-i a try!

THE GOOD

The graphics on Body Slam are done very well, especially the detailed backgrounds.

THE BAD

The control can be less than responsive at times, not to mention the animation of the characters.

THE UGLY

The game has nice live footage between the rounds that show just how ugly the enemies are!

THE COMBATANTS

DAEMON STONE

TORY SWIFT

RACK SAXXON

At the Options Screen you can set up the number of lives, the degree of difficulty, and the music, too.

If you're running low on health, switch off with the other two fighters at the Special Tag Pad.

Each fighter has the ability to do special moves as long as they have enough energy. Check out Tory's kick!

Food is located throughout the levels to boost your strength. Make sure the enemy doesn't get to it first!

Besides your awesome fighting ability, there are many different weapons hidden throughout the game.

Right after you perish, there is a special move that wipes everything off the screen, including half your energy!

Jacky Depierre
aka. Iron Joustrel

IT'S NOT WHETHER YOU WIN OR LOSE. IT'S HOW MANY OF THESE ARROGANT BASTARDS YOU TAKE DOWN WITH YOU.

Say hi to L. Wolf Jam, master of ceremonies. In killer full-screen animation, he introduces you to the pompous bosses of 10 different enemy teams. They issue you a challenge and you accept. Or run like hell.

It's your team of three genetically gifted humans against the rest of the inhuman race. Relax, your team-mates are awesome street fighters and for weapons use all the steel pipes and severed body parts they can get their hands on.

Meet Tina Felina, boss woman of the Animorpha Roma team. Like the other team bosses, she'll badger, heckle, mock you and spew out a bunch of other snide challenges. Do us a favor. Kick her ass.

In Mutant Rampage: Body Slam, you'll clash with thugs of every conceivable size and ugliness. Because in the plague-ridden, post-apocalyptic year of 2068, they rule the rubble-strewn cities of Earth. And to make matters even worse, they talk trash. Guess you'll just have to waste them. Because there's only one thing that's more irritating than getting your face rearranged by a scum-sucking mutant who's bent on rampage. Listening to him rub it in afterward.

THE UGLY

The graphics leave a lot to be desired.

Welcome to the world of hand-held fighting games. With all of the competition out there, it's hard to find an original fighting game. Tankara has a hit with Samurai Shodown. THE GOOD

This is a Star Trek simulation that tries extremely hard to give you the feel of the Trek genre.

THE BAD

A problem arises when a true Trekker finds that ALL problems are solved with phasers and torpedoes.

THE UGLY

I like a good fight as much as the next officer, but a fight every mission gets old.

Captain Picard is here to tell you what needs to be done and how well you did.

THE TALARIAN ATTEMPT TO INVADE ALTAIR VI HAS BEEN THWARTED.

You'll warp into a lot of weird and dangerous systems. Some friendly ones as well.

The transporters work the same as ever, and you will be greeting all kinds of visitors.

A brand new Star Trek flight simulation is here, on the most surprising format yet. It is presented as an Advanced Holodeck Tutorial, and its job is to teach you what it's like to be a starship captain. Take over the mantle for Captain Jean-Luc Picard. Your first officer William T. Riker is there to remind you of your mission; Lt. Worf mans the weapons and shields; and Lt. Cmdr. Data, Geordi, and the crew round out your staff. All of your favorite characters are here, but Wesley's not—what more could you ask for? How about a little planet exploration, a small amount of personnel interaction, etc.? The game turns out to be a little limited, but it's entertaining and pushes the capabilities of the Game Gear. So tap that communicator and prepare to beam up for action!

Every person on your bridge is there for a reason. They all have up to three separate duties they can perform. It's up to you to give the orders.

THE CAST AND CREW

- Lieutenant Worf: Tactical Systems
- Control Lieutenant Commander Data: Operations Control
- Lieutenant Commander Geordi La Forge: Engineering Systems Control
- Chief Miles O'Brien: Transporter Systems Control
- Commander William Riker: Mission Control

You might find yourself having to go into orbit around a planet. It's not as easy as it is on TV!

Every once in a while, some weird things will happen, like a temporal rift.

Of course there are plenty of Ferengi vessels to destroy. There are a few Romulans, too!

EGM X-TRA DARE TO COMPARE

A LOOK AT OTHER FORMATS...

It is impossible to compare a 16-Bit system to the Game Gear, but this is in the Gear's favor. The Enterprise is drawn almost the same way, and the space scenes are drawn very well for the Game Gear.

Tune in, Turn on with Hip New Audio Books

Traditionally, audio books have targeted exclusively a baby boomer audience. Truly, many a boomer has reaped the inspirational benefits of an L. Ron Hubbard (who???) audio cassette. But to younger audiences, audio books often are considered on par with the droll cassette-voice accompaniments to those educational slide show presentations in social studies class; both are aphrodisiacs for sleep. All of that is about to change, however.

With a younger, hipper audience in mind, Time

Warner Audio Books has injected some new vigor into the old, stale audio book format. Harkening back to the old days of radio drama, many of these new productions are full-cast

To create exciting and original types of programming, Time Warner has opted for punk classic, Neuromancer, and Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep?, a 25th anniversary presentation of Philip K. Dick's classic tale which later served as inspiration for the movie Blade Runner.

In November, Time Warner Audio Books will unveil a landmark production of the George Lucas Star Wars

Trilogy, featuring multiple voices and a rich background of special effects.

For hoops fans, there's Sir Charles, a candid and outrageous exclusive interview with one of the NBA's loosest cannons.

Music fans will want to check out Get in the Van, rock icon Henry Rollins' account of life on the road with his legendary hardcore band, Black Flag, narrated by Rollins himself.

Offering a little something for everyone, Time Warner Audio Books has combined state-of-the-art audio technology, slick production, and some of the hottest titles around to fast become the MTV of audio book domain.

So strap on those headphones and tune into a good audio book.

vari-ous non-book media such as comic books and movies as another source to create their library of titles, striking licensing agreements with such big names as Lucas-Film LTD and DC Comics.

Already the company has released such hot titles as Star Wars: Dark Empire, based on the popular Dark Horse Comic; Batman: The Complete Knightfall Saga, chronicling the Caped Crusader's fall from power and his attempt to reclaim the mantle; and Superman Lives!, a riveting retelling of the death and subsequent return of Superman.

For sci-fi fans, the lineup includes an audio version of Henry Gibson's cyber-

CULTURE SOURCE FOR EGM READERS

When I Paint my Masterpiece...

As kids, Greg and Tim Hildebrandt used to color old dust rags with chalk and sew them together into makeshift superhero costumes. As adults, their clothes are now smothered in paint, as these maternal twins and renowned fantasy and science-fiction artists are once again back in the superhero business, interpreting the Marvel Universe on their first-ever comic card set—Fleer's Marvel Masterpieces '94.

The Hildebrandt brothers achieved a cult-like status in the 1970s for their work on several Lord of Rings calenders and the original Star Wars movie poster. With Marvel Masterpieces '94, the duo has taken their first stab at the world of comic book characters. Through their unusual painting style (both artists work together on every piece), the Hildebrandts have created a dramatic and original interpretation of the Marvel Universe.

Due to be released October 1, the 140-card set features gold-foil stamping, UV coating, and four-color printing. The card back showcases the Hildebrandts' style with actual quotes from the artists themselves. The series also features a 10-card Holographic Foil subset, a nine-card Power Blast etched foil subset, and a parallel 140-card set autographed in gold foil by both of the Masterpieces artists.

New Dictionary of Slang is Food for the Culture Vultures

Nothing turns the stomach of an overzealous English teacher faster than the use of slang in the classroom. With its use long considered base and improper, slang is just now getting its day in the sun with the Random House Historical Dictionary of Slang.

Though it is often given a bad rap, slang is one of the most integral elements of American culture. The product of one man's decades of research, The Random House Dictionary of Slang illustrates slang from all eras of American history with accurate definitions and citations from over 8,000 varied sources, from Civil War soldier diaries to modern day rap music.

Along the way, the dictionary offers intriguing new insights to the origins of words. Jan Brady, for instance, was not the first American to utter the word "groovy." That, in fact, originated with black jazzmen in the 1930s. On the other hand, Wayne and Garth may indeed have been the first to coin the term "babelicious" to describe a comely lass.

It just ain't right...

With O.J. Simpson gracing every TV screen, newspaper, and magazine in the country, you had to know it was only a matter of time before his mug would show up here. This parody was on sale at the San Diego Comicon. With eight essential vitamins and iron, what better way to kick off the day than a bowl of Wheaties and a cool glass of O.J.

Tekno-Comix Debuts First Titles

The year is 2010. For almost 40 years, MIT's Search for Extra-Terrestrial Intelligence (SETI) program has probed the reaches of space in search of alien life. One day, unexpectedly, SETI finally gets an answer. It is under these ominous auspices that the story Primortals begins.

Set to premiere in November, Primortals is the first from the Tekno-Comix line of highly anticipated comic books.

Tekno-Comix was created as the latest endeavor from Big Entertainment. Co-founded by Mitch Rubenstein and Laurie Silvers, Big Entertainment was previously responsible for one of the most successful launches in cable television history with the debut of its Sci-Fi Channel.

Since its recent inception, Tekno-Comix has amassed an impressive list of celebrities and best-selling authors to serve as creators under the Tekno-Comix banner, including Leonard Nimoy (best known for his portrayal of Mr. Spock on Star Trek); Neil Gaiman (author of The Sandman comic book series); Max Allan Collins (writer of the syndicated Dick Tracy comic strip); Mickey Spillane (author of Mike Hammer); John Jakes (author of North and South); fantasy writer Anne McCaffrey; and the late Gene Roddenberry (creator of Star Trek).

First out of the gates for this founding comic book company is Primortals. Conceived by Leonard Nimoy, it is the story of an impending alien arrival to Earth and the effects of this occurrence on our society. How would the Pentagon, without a contingency plan for interstellar contact, react to this potential threat? What would be the effects on the global business community? What would be the political and religious implications? That's but only the beginning, as Primortals promises to delve into these questions and more.

Also coming in November, Neil Gaiman's Mr. E - The Nymatic Man, the story of a rediscovered, steam-driven Victorian robot and an evil saurian in an Armani suit who wishes the robot destroyed.

Shipping in December is Gene Roddenberry's Lost Universe, the story of a war-torn Earth and its attempts to reunite humanity. Majel Barret Roddenberry will serve as creative director to the project.

Born of broad vision, Tekno-Comix was created with the hope of one day expanding its universe into other areas of multimedia and pioneering a merger between the beloved American institution of the comic book, the emerging information superhighway, and the ever-expanding capabilities of today's technologies.

First and foremost, however, Tekno-Comix will focus on putting out quality comic books. Beginning in November, fans will see for themselves exactly what the Tekno-Comix universe is all about.

Plus, Jim Carrey tells all in a behind-the-scenes interview with the man behind The Mask.

Attack of the 50-Foot Blanka: Fighting Games Ready to Tackle the Big Screen

Almost since the dawn of the silicon chip, video game companies have hounded at Hollywood studios for the right to base their games on the hottest movies. Lately, it seems, these tables have turned, as no fewer than three movies who also produced last summer's The Crow, which was based on a best-selling comic book. "The issue isn't so much the source as it is the execution—how it can be translated by filmwriters and filmmakers into a legitimate movie."

Skeptics contend that video games offer too little substance to make for a decent film and point to last year's Super Mario Bros. bomb as evidence.

Pressman counters, "Super Mario Bros. had a lot of things going against it. First, it came out four or five years after the game's popularity had peaked. Second, it attempted to replicate the game rather than translating it into a cinematic form that audiences are interested in. Third, Super Mario Bros. didn't fit into a specific genre. It was hard to place it into any contemporary movie genre that audiences are used to. On the other hand," he says, "Street Fighter and Mortal Kombat easily fit into the action genre. For us it was important to cast the film with people like Van Damme and Raul Julia to legitimize it as a real movie within that action genre."

The film is based on a script by veteran action screenwriter Steven de Souza (Die Hard, Commando, 48 Hours). Street Fighter also marks de Souza's directorial debut.

As was expected, de Souza's script has taken a few liberties and expanded upon those themes that drive the game, but Pressman doesn't think this will detract from the effectiveness of the movie. To the contrary, he believes it improves upon the game by offering fully realized characters and situations.

"de Souza has created a back story and a logical reason for these characters to exist," said Pressman. "By the end of the story, the characters, each in their own way, have become very close to the characters the game players have seen."

Laurie Thornton, corporate spokesperson for Capcom, agrees. "We wanted to create a movie that would appeal not only to the game player, but also to the average moviegoer.

There will be enough game aspects included to keep the gamer happy, yet you don't have to know anything about Street Fighter or video games to enjoy the film."

With Capcom putting up the money, Street Fighter is the first feature film to be wholly financed by a game company.

Street Fighter is scheduled for a Christmas '94 release, with Double Dragon and Mortal Kombat rounding out the current fighting game-to-movie triumvirate.

If the current wave of fighting game movies is any indication, clearly Hollywood is holding high hopes for striking gold in the Silicon Valley.

derived from video games are due to hit the theaters by next summer, the biggest of these being Street Fighter: The Battle for Shadowloo.

Based on Capcom's best-selling title, Street Fighter stars Jean-Claude Van Damme as Colonel William F. Guile, commander of Allied Special Forces. When a civil war in Southeast Asia escalates into global conflict, Guile and his men are sent to the rescue.

According to Street Fighter producer Edward R. Pressman, it's not unusual for Hollywood to draw stories from such sources.

"Movies have always taken from all aspects of the culture," says Pressman, Here's an update! Virtua Fighter is even closer to completion. The Sega Saturn really shows off what it can do. It's just a shade below the arcade version in terms of graphics.

The game is still not finished, but the animation is smooth and very crisp.

Except for the graphics, Virtua Fighter is a great coin-op translation.

Daytona is popular in the arcades, stunning everyone with its graphics. The current status of this game is that it is very close to the arcade, though still early in development. Using every ounce of power the Saturn has to make it near exact, Daytona will probably be one of the most amazing racing games in the home market. Time will only tell whether or not this game will live up to its reputation. Who knows? In time, it may even come out here in the States. Look for more on this as it comes.

You can easily tell the difference between this and the arcade, but it's still great.

Daytona will give Japanese players a chance to relive the arcade experience.

NEVER LOAN OUT YOUR 'STICK.

"Hey, Billy, since you're gonna be away, can I borrow your Fighter Stick for a few days? I promise—I'll take real good care of it..." That's how it starts. Then days turn into weeks, and the next thing you know, you and your former best friend are duking it out on the People's Court. One look at the Fighter Stick, and you'll know why. There's enough power here to change a person, to make 'em untrustworthy, even. There's Turbo-Fire and Auto-Turbo, with up to 36 shots per second. And super slow-mo lets you digest those really tough moves.

So, quit wrestling with those boring, wimpy control pads — reach for the Fighter Stick SN for the Super NES or the Fighter Stick SG-6, for Sega-Genesis and Sega-CD.

IT'S HOW TO WIN!
