In my October editorial I asked our readers a big question: Should Game Informer start doing preview covers [since we are putting magazines on the newsstand]? The answer from the readers was a resounding, "NO!" And I thank you for that.

There are many times in the life of a video game magazine when the pull to be just like all the rest becomes an irresistible force. "Hey, the other guy has Star Wars: Rogue Squadron on the cover? Look, the other guy has Dreamcast? Man, if we did preview covers we could do them so much better than these guys." But you know, in the end, the feeling passes. And I remember all the preview covers that featured games that never came out, or titles that got hyped as the greatest thing since sliced bread and then received a less than impressive score when they were reviewed.

And back in October I had a funny feeling that Game Informer needed to be like all the rest, but all of you who responded to my little plea for help set me back on the true and righteous path (I've always wanted to say that). Give me video games or give me death!!! But don't change my Game Informer.

As a result, Game Informer will continue to do all the awesome review covers (with strategy guide) that Game Informer has become famous for. However, there is one catch.

We are going to set a new watermark that not only Game Informer must uphold, but that other magazines will someday strive to duplicate. When we don't have a game that is worthy enough for the "coveted" cover spot, we are not going to just take the next best thing. Which I know sounds ridiculous, but there are times when I think about my past decisions and realize that we did just that. But no more. From here on out, Game Informer will not preview games on the cover when there isn't an obviously superior game for review. However, keep in mind that we will do everything in our power to make sure that this rarely happens. But when we do have to do a preview cover, you can rest assured that we will make sure to deliver the most comprehensive story possible.

I think you'll like what we have in mind. Let's just hope we can do it to the standards that we (and you) have set for ourselves. Enjoy the issue and we'll see you all back here next month.

"After all this time, I finally got Zelda home. WOW! Everything these guys were saying is true. This game is unbelievable. Of course, by now I'm sure everyone has heard about Zelda, so I'll shut up. Other than that, it's been a great month for rock as Archers of Loaf and Fugazi came through town. Football has been great as well, since the Vikings are (hopefully) still on a tear by the time you read this. And I'm sure they are."

Robert, The Game Casanova

"Whew. This month has sucked for yours truly. I am being chained to my desk and having to work so we can meet some deadlines. I haven't done much. The Square Iain is gonna come down and tan my hide, for I haven't finished Xenogears or Brave Fencer. At least, at the time of this writing. Anyhow, game on, tender souls, and keep buying stuff for the early part of 1999 so game companies will figure out that there's something happening outside the holiday season besides E3."

Jon, The Greedy Gamer

"After a long, exciting tenure with Game Informer, I am leaving the magazine to become (check this out): senior editor at North American Fisherman magazine! Awesome. Games may rule, but fishing and the outdoors are my true love. Just remember, Game Informer rocks, and the Buffalo Bills will live forever."

Paul, The Game Professor

"It is almost time to pick the best of the best for our annual awards. 1998 was a banner year for games, but it will be hard to pick winners because there was a lot to choose from. Everyone wants a piece of the video game pie and 1999 may mean that we'll have to sift through even more crap games to find the good ones. With new game systems on the horizon, this is definitely going to be an interesting year."

Reiner, The Raging Gamer
reiner@gameinformer.com

"We have a serious problem here folks. This may sound crazy and all, but Andy and I have become hopelessly addicted to the Star Wars Episode 1 trailer. Every five minutes or so, we watch the trailer. As of now, I think we've viewed it about 350 times. Thankfully, I haven't gone completely nuts like poor little Andy. He actually believes that he's Anakin. Really, Right now, he's building C-3PO. [Use the Force Reiner] Wha??? Ben..."

Bergren, The Game Burrto
bergren@gameinformer.com

"The moment of truth draws near. As I write this, the purple are getting ready for a sweep of the cheese in the sterile, yet beloved Metrodome. This is a huge game as it will put the Vikes up by three games and hopefully silence the cheddar for the rest of the season. But that's just the small picture. Hopefully, this will mark the end of the Packers being even remotely good for another 20 years or so. Then all of the bandwagon Packer fans in the Twin Cities might shut-up."

Burning Questions That Need Answering

First just want to say your mag rules and only being a subscriber for a little less than a year I've seen other mags and yours is the best. (Is that enough sucking up, because I wasn't sure.) Seriously though, I do have questions for you guys, and they are numbered for your personal reading enjoyment.

1. I might be wrong but on every issue you guys make, whatever is on the front cover that month, the very top part of the character in the featured game is covering up a tiny bit of INFORMER. Not that it really matters that much but just out of curiosity, why do you guys do it?
2. It's just a suggestion but some months the send-in art is bad, but sometimes there is some REALLY good artwork that is drawn by people that obviously have a lot of talent. Have you guys ever thought of maybe adding a section at the end of the year with all the monthly winners and then give a big prize for the year's best drawn picture?
3. I'm pretty sure Nintendo lowered the price of their product in reaction to the lowering of the PlayStation's price, but why did Sony lower the price? It's not like they were losing business or not selling enough PlayStations. It didn't SEEM that way, but I have no sources whatsoever, so I'm just asking. Besides if they were going to lower the price they should have done it, oh I don't know, much earlier like around January of [last] year (this doesn't have ANYTHING to do with the fact that when I bought my PlayStation in January it cost $150, nah, not at all).

Ryan Berens
via juno.com

First off, we get no personal enjoyment from reading numbered questions, but find answering them quite exhilarating. On we go!

1. Out of the last 12 issues, 6 of them had what you described. We sometimes do this to add depth to the cover image.
2. A great suggestion. We will most likely do this in conjunction with our game awards in the February or March issue.
3. Last January, the PlayStation was selling like hotcakes and you are right, Sony was not losing any business. Our view is that the PlayStation business may have slowed slightly last spring and some market analyst at Sony put some numbers together and discovered that even more PlayStations would go out the door if the price was lowered to $130. Sony has also realized some cost reductions in manufacturing the PlayStation. This also played a role in the price drop. Like any piece of electronics, the retail price decrease over time.

The N64 Needs a Hot Babe

I am so pissed off, I could just kill someone! I may own a PlayStation as well as an N64, but I must say I am sickened at seeing PS-X get another hot babe while the N64 gets nothing but dust! Okay, now I will get to the point: Witchblade!!! PS-X got Steel Harbinger and Lara Croft and now this! I can't take it anymore! All I want is the N64's own Lara Croft-type hero!! Is that too much to ask?

De Ro 64
via yahoo.com

Have you forgotten? Nintendo owns the rights to the best video game babe of all time, Justine Bailey from Metroid. Word on the street is Justine will make an appearance on N64. The problem is nobody knows when we might see her triumphant return. Otherwise, Activision's Nightmare Creatures features the voluptuous Nadia. Thanks for the letter.

GI Should Be Polite

I must begin my letter by congratulating you and your excellent work at reviewing the newest and latest games across the board. I have been a reader for a year plus, and have found the magazine very helpful and very entertaining. But as I read over the letters to GI today in the November issue, I found your responses rude, to say the least. Now I know, and understand, that you have a wide variety of readers which send in a wide variety of letters. Now the writers can be, and often are, rude and crude, but they are just writers and you do not have to publish and respond to those letters. What upsets me is that when you did respond to two particular letters in issue #67 ("Your Play to Perfections Are VWeak" and "Who Stands Corrected?"), your language and style were similar to the writers', rude and childish. I'm not going to pass judgment on who is right or wrong in these situations, but I will say that you could have handled your responses a bit more "professional." I appreciate that we all have our opinions, and that by being readers we look for your opinions on games. But when a person writes in to present their opinion, and hopefully backs it up with facts, you do not have to shoot it down such as when you said, "So YOU stand corrected. Sonic R is OK, but 3D Blast is a pile of junk" ("Who Stands Corrected?"). Or when you insulted one of your loyal readers when you said, "Hey Cody, sounds like your gaming kung-fu is very weak." And then ended the letter by kicking dirt on him with an abrupt and impolite "Good-bye!!" ("Your Play to Perfections Are Weak"). Personally I feel you should not print these letters, or reply in a more polite fashion. I look forward to continued excellent reviews and codes, and improvement on your letter replies.

RCW Guy
via aol.com

Get bent...no...sorry, excuse us. Seriously, Dear GI would be mighty boring if we only printed positive letters with cordial responses. Should we just print letters with no responses, like most non-gaming magazines? We could put in more letters, but the drawback would be that no letter with a question would ever be answered. Don't think for a second we're going to be polite to the bums who have nothing good to say about us. We aren't even polite to our own staff. In that same issue we agreed that Paul is from the Planet of the Apes. Game Informer is about attitude and sometimes we have a very bad case of it.

Fears About the Asian Gaming Market

We all have heard of the falling Asian stock market. Should gamers be worried that some game companies might not survive these economic hardships, like Sega? Or should the gamers be glad because the game producers want their stock to go up so they will slash prices to increase sales? I know that Sony is safe because they are in the American Stock Exchange.

Matt Ross
via snet.net

The outlook for the gaming industry is positive. Don't worry about the Asian market, because the U.S. gaming scene is strong enough to support most, if not all, of the Asian game manufacturers. Yet, the Asian video game market, especially in Japan, is very solid. Spurred by the recent launch of Dreamcast, the Japanese gaming scene is exciting and all three companies are definitely "safe" for the foreseeable future. Don't expect any drastic price changes in games or systems in coming months (unless Sony or Nintendo announces a new system).

Spice Girls Fan Exposed

In your November 1998 Vol. viii issue I #67 there is a letter about the Spice Girls video game. I happen to like the Spice Girls, the game is OK, it's not the best, but a lot better than Marky Mark and the Funky Bunch on the Sega CD...The thing that bothered me was the fact YOU implied that they have no talent. Where in the hell do you get off saying this? I used to have a lot of respect for GI, but a comment like this just means that you are very insecure group of people and the only way you can feel good about yourself is to cut others down....Hello? are we back in grade school? As far as other musical acts getting into video games, it's a matter of how much THEY want to. Well I will leave off saying this... you may think they have no talent, but they're laughing all the way to the bank!!!

via airmet.net

We did not mean to imply that the Spice Girls' competence as singers is subpar, we were flat out trying to say they have no talent. Hiding our insecurities by cutting down the Spice Girls? Hardly. We have the Green Bay Packers for that.

Game Boy Color

Will I be able to play Game Boy Color in the dark?

Brian
via velocity.net

Yes, you will be able to play Game Boy Color in the dark. Unfortunately, you won't be able to see a thing. The Game Boy Color (like the other Game Boys) is not backlit so you'll need another light source.

One-On-One With the Giant and Raven

I have been subscribing to game informer for about 5 years now and I think that this magazine is great, it is simply the best. There is not one thing that I do not like about it. I just want to say that I thought the response the Raven gave for the question "Who would win Rodzilla and Malone or Leno and Letterman?" was excellent. Conan and Richter are the king of late night. I also wanted to say that you guys are doing a hell of a job and to keep up the good work.

Dave Beastie
via aol.com

Our personal favorite is when Raven says if he had a choice of weapons, he'd go with the cheese grater. Ouch. We've received a lot of great responses to our November feature with Giant and Raven, but we are tired of hearing from the whining WWF fans. Just like that sniveling wimp Vince McMahon, some WWF fans are still bitter about the WCW being more popular [See Dear Gi, Dec. '98].

How Do You Do That?

I subscribe to several gaming magazines including yours. Every one of them has probably two times or more pages than your magazine does. Yet Game Informer has three times the amount of information, AND is more accurate. My question is, how do you do that? You all look so young, but are very professional in attitude. I like that everything you write isn't slanted toward the 13-year-old male. Some of us are even over (gasp) 30 and (gasp again) FEMALE!

Continued success for as long as you want it. Kudos, gentlemen.

We do so by assembling the best editorial staff in the business and playing our fingers to the bone. Don't let the young looks fool you, we have been at this for many years. Game Informer is the longest running console gaming magazine next to EGM and GamePro. Thanks for the fine words.

Ratings Gripe

Come on! Andy and Reiner! Parasite Eve is not a boring game. You guys must be pretty damn lazy because they make you do something you don't want to! It's an RPG for God's sake! I think that is one of the best games from Square, so that was terrible ratings by you two! At least Jon gave it halfway decent ratings! What were you thinking telling people not to buy this game! I usually listen to your ratings and don't buy games if you say not to! But I did the exact opposite on this game and love it! I don't think I should listen to your ratings anymore! What did you give FF7 - a 5.5! Geez I think Parasite Eve deserves a little more credit and is fun (unlike you think)! And I know plenty of people who love this game and so many others who want to get it. I encourage them to buy it because it is a great game!

See answer to the questions below.

So What About Parasite Eve?

I have a few questions of the numbered kind.

1. Why does Parasite Eve suck so much?
2. Why did you change the cover layout? It was fine the way it was! I liked the ripped look in the corner. It was your choice though.
3. How do you pronounce "Chocobo"?
4. Who actually answers the questions?
5. Why does Parasite Eve suck so much? (Again)
6. Are you gonna put me in the mag?

Brian Murphy

1. We think you are actually asking a rhetorical question and already know the answer; but we'll answer it for the benefit of the author of the letter above. The general consensus among the staff is that this game was not up to par. Although the weapons system was excellent, most agree that the overall play was slow and the adventure was extremely short. The game is an excellent candidate for a rental. (Mr. Loxsom?)

2. A number of the staff hated the jagged edge on the top right corner of the cover. They thought it distracted from the main cover image.

3. cho - ka - bo
4. We all take turns. This month, the honor goes to...
5. It's actually caused by a change in air pressure.
6. Absolutely not!

"Turok 2 is everything I expected and then some. Well, kinda. Iguana definitely did a job with the graphics, as they shine like few home console games can. Plus, the addition of mission objectives made the game much more interesting. However, the levels are a mixed bag. While I really enjoy the new designs, the limited save points make the levels somewhat annoying. You work your way through switch after switch, past enemy after enemy, and there's still no save point in sight. Which turns out to be a catch 22 as it's great that the game offers so much play, but annoying that you are literally trapped playing until you find the next save point. Definitely a great game, and the addition of multiplayer is huge, but Turok 2 just doesn't have the same flare as the original."

"This game is insane. The worlds are huge - almost too big. Turok's weapons are designed by true lunatics and I find guns like the Cerebral Bore very original and satisfying. Controller settings and options are plentiful, but switching the auto-aim when sniping is annoying. Acclaim and Iguana are doing amazing things with the N64 sound and graphics. You'll benefit from the RAM pak, but it's not necessary to see (and hear) the exceptional quality. Turok 2 is a massive adventure that is as challenging as it is nasty. It has been a long time in coming, but it was well worth the wait."

"Turok? Or not Turok? That is the question. And a tough one it is. This first-person shooter is loaded to the hilt with amazing visuals and powerful weapons. The enemy AI is also something to behold. All the enemies behave differently, and even dive behind rocks for cover and retreat when they are outsized. The levels in Turok 2 are incredibly large. This isn't a bad thing necessarily, but Iguana made it quite agonizing to save. Sometimes you'll need to play for hours before you can quit or take a breather. Lame. Turok 2's control is excellent, packed with tons of configurations (even a GoldenEye button layout). The multiplayer battles are entertaining, but not quite as action-packed or fast-paced as they are in GoldenEye. Turok 2 is great, but GoldenEye is still a better package."

SEEDS OF EVIL

Let's ride.

Joshua Fireside took the world by storm when he first appeared on the N64 and Turok blossomed into one of the N64's best sellers. This first-person shooter had superb graphics, control, and outdoor environments. Not only that, but it didn't throw typical enemies at you. Instead of some generic alien freak or mutant pig cop, Turok heaved dinosaurs at you. These fierce enemies were enhanced even further by some twitchy death animation. Human enemies would grab their necks in a useless attempt to keep blood from jetting out of their fatal wounds. You could even hear them croak violently for a last gasp of precious and fleeting oxygen.

So here lies the problem for the creators of Turok: How do you make a sequel to a game that swept so many people off their feet? Therefore, Iguana knew it had to make the sequel twice as good as the original. And on almost every front, Turok 2 succeeds. New features abound. Turok has implemented a 4-player deathmatch and mission objectives for the 1-player adventure. Plus, Turok 2 is RAM Pak compatible allowing you to play the game in hi-res. Normally the game looks great, but with this peripheral, you'll be even more impressed.

Turok 2 is much larger than the first, maybe by as much as four times. And when you play it, you won't doubt it. You might even think the levels are too large. The caverns and open areas go on forever and you'll begin to think that no end is in sight. This wouldn't be so bad, but opportunities to save your game can be few and far between, forcing you to trod ahead, even though you might be dying for sleep. While this can be annoying at times, it heightens the experience because you won't want to go back and redo sections of a level if you can help it.

The enemies have changed as well. Not only are there more of them, but the AI has improved too. Yes, there are still dinosaurs. Comps and raptors are a common sight. But there's more. You'll encounter six races of enemies throughout the game. For instance, the first two levels are dominated by dinosoids - half man, half lizard. These guys aren't that tough, but when you mortally wound them, they'll input a self-destruct code on a wristband and blow themselves up.

The pur-linn are a primitive race of large ape-like creatures. The most amusing pur-linn carries a large pack on his back containing an endless supply of small stones. The pack is hooked up to a machine gun allowing him to pummel you with a stream of rocks from a distance. The blind ones live deep beneath the planet's surface. They can't see, but have acute senses of smell and hearing. Some live in the lava and shoot blazing balls of fire and sometimes when you kill them, the body explodes and the legs keep running.

Of course, Turok 2 has tons of weapons, new and old. Naturally, the shotgun returns with both regular and explosive shells. The Scorpion Launcher fires a series of missiles and the Cerebral Bore locks onto a victim's brain waves and tunnels a path to the soft tissue beneath the skull. The Firestorm Cannon acts much like a Gatling Gun, but instead of wussy bullets, it expels powerful plasma beams that obliterate anything in its path. Then there is the priceless sniper scope attached to the Plasma Rifle and Tek Bow, allowing you to pick off enemies from a distance. Two of the most special weapons, however, can only be used in level two and are strapped to a dinosaur that you ride. Two giant mortar cannons are bound to the head along with a machine gun. The best thing is that the ammo is unlimited, plus you can charge and gore enemies with the beast's giant horns.

Turok 2 is huge and will amaze most who experience it. The animation, AI, enemies, and just about everything else have been created with the greatest of care. If you loved the first adventure, you must check out Turok 2 just to see the advancements alone. But after that, the challenge of Turok 2 will be more than enough to keep you satisfied. ■

SEEDS OF EVIL

This guide is designed to give you general direction through Turok 2. Due to size limitations, we were not able to list every item and enemy. Of course, we try and reveal the locations of harder-to-find items and offer advice on bosses. But for the most part, you'll need to explore areas for power-ups and keep on your toes for enemies. In other words, explore on your own and remember: Just because we don't mention an enemy around the corner, doesn't mean he isn't there.

BASIC TRAINING

- Use the compass on your map when referring to directions in the guide.
- When you jump back to an area via a portal, the enemies in that area often regenerate.
- After you shoot an arrow it can be retrieved. Therefore, check bodies, walls, and such to recycle your arrows.
- Some of the areas that hold power-ups regenerate them for you. Therefore, it is possible to completely refill your supply of ammo and/or health if you wait around.
- When navigating treacherous territory and making difficult jumps, use the map to give you a better idea of where Turok is in relation to his surroundings. Plus, the map can also clue you in to secret doors.
- The sniper scope is very helpful. Not only does it save ammo and health by allowing you to kill enemies from a distance with a single arrow, but you can survey the dark shadows of an area before you walk into them, sparing an ambush attack.
- This can be a pain, but accessing the option menu and toggling the auto aim off and on can improve your accuracy during gameplay. For instance, if you are trying to target a specific region of an enemy with the scope, you will want the auto aim off or your shot will often hit the body, but miss the precise spot you wanted.
- After you finish a level that gave you a Talisman, immediately go back to the previous level not only to get the appropriate Primagen Key, but to restock on health and ammo.
Note: Areas where you can use the Talisman are marked in bold.

LEVEL 1 - PORT OF ADIA

Talisman: None

Enemies: Dinosoids

Keys: Three Level 2 & Three Level 3

OBJECTIVES:

- 1) Activate 3 Distress Beacons.
- 2) Rescue 4 children.
- 3) Locate the Energy Totem and defend it at all costs.

PART I

Jump in the water and head towards the sunken ship. There are Gold and Red Diamonds inside both halves of the wreckage. Your Diamond count should be 92 when you leave the water. Exit the water where you entered it and walk up the ramp and turn left. There is an opening in the wall to the right (exposed after an explosion) with a switch for the Distress Beacon. You will need the Power Cell to activate it so ignore it for now. Blow up the barrel beyond that to expose an opening. Climb the ladder inside.

POWER CELL 1 - Straight ahead you'll see a pistol in a hole in the wall. You can't access the hole, but if you jump up in front of it you can grab the pistol. Follow the corridor, grab the Power Cell, and head back to activate the Distress Beacon.

Go back up the ladder, follow the corridor, and climb the next ladder. This leads to a big room with water on the floor. Jump into the portal on the platform. Climb the ladder and get the Gold Diamonds along the wooden walkway. Continue down the hall and grab the LEVEL 2 KEY. Continue down the corridor, turn left, and climb the ladder up to the wooden walkway and get the Gold Diamonds. Jump down and hit the barrel in the NE corner to blast open the wall and enter the new opening.

In the next room grab the pistol. Kill the dinosoid above, cross the bridge, and grab the Gold Diamond. Next, turn left and get the Bullet Clip next to the NE door. Turn around and head into the water. Swim until you reach the corridor on your left and follow it. At the end, hop up the ramp and pull the lever, releasing a dinosoid directly behind you and climb the ladder. Go through the corridor, drop down to the wooden walkway, get the Gold Diamonds, and pull the lever in the small alcove to open the door below. Hop down and kill the dinosoid, return to the wooden walkway, and climb the ladder in the SW corner.

CHILD 1 Exit the corridor, climb the next ladder, and follow the corridor until you come to another lever. Pull it and head down the dead end to your left to get the Red Diamond. Head straight into the next hallway to access a room with a Child. A dinosoid awaits on the left and a fall off the side means death. To open the cage, enter the opening on the east side. Head up either the left or right ramp and get ready for another grenade-chucking dinosoid.

Go through the door. Note the Box of Bullets and the Bullet Clip behind it. Through the next open door is a portal and another Bullet Clip behind the door. On the tier above, hit the lever in the west alcove, turn around, and kill the dinosoid coming at you. There is a Box of Bullets in the room it came from. Go back down the ramp and jump across to the cage and rescue the CHILD. Now return to the large room with the bridge and enter the door that you opened earlier on the west wall. Get the Box of Bullets and the Bullet Clips hidden behind the doors. Jump into the portal.

PART II

Caution: There is a dinosoid in front of you beyond the debris. Turn around and head towards the fire. There is a lever hidden to the right of the fire. Pull it and continue on. The lever you pulled opened a room just past the switch with three Silver Health.

Notice the Full Health above on the platform. Ignore it for now. Go west to battle some compys. Don't waste bullets on these guys. Use the Talon instead. Pull the lever at the end of the trail to the left of the large gate to open another gate where the Arrows were (or still are). Follow the Gold Diamonds, climb the ladder on the north wall, and pull the lever to open a gate below. Jump down facing the open gate and kill the raptor sprinting at you. Continue on, climb the ladder on the west wall, and pull the switch. Jump down and continue east. Grab the Pistol and Bullets on top of the debris. This will trigger a gate releasing a dinosoid. To climb the ladder on the north wall you must jump from the chunk of debris you got the pistol from and continue on.

POWER CELL 2 - Follow the corridor until you come to an open area. Climb the short ladder and turn around and face the tower. Shoot a barrel to blow it up and drop some Arrows, Blue Health, and a Bullet Clip. Head through the opening and veer to the right. Leap on top of the boxes to get the three Red Diamonds. Then blow up the barrel in front of the crates to expose a Bullet Clip. Head NW and explore the next area to find a Red Diamond in the back-left corner of the shallow pool, a Bullet Clip on top of the ship, Blue Health on top of a lone box, and some Arrows beneath the ladder on the east wall. Blow up the barrel by the water to expose the Power Cell. Take it and activate the second Distress Beacon atop the east ladder. Go back towards the water and enter the open doors. To the sides of the frame are two Red Diamonds. Jump in the portal.

POWER CELL 3 - When you emerge, get the Red Diamonds behind you. Through the door is a dinosoid. Head right down the hall to find a Red Diamond in the back-right corner of the shallow pool. In the NW corner is an annoying dinosoid atop a ramp. Kill it and get the Blue Health bonuses on the two ships. Shoot the large crate hanging in the net. Jump off the boat to the boxes to get the Red Diamonds. In the NE corner (before the water) there is a Pistol hidden behind four smaller boxes. Now, head up the ramp where the annoying dinosoid was and pull the lever to open two doors below. Enter both doors and activate the switch for the final Distress Beacon located on the west wall, behind a single block. Then pull the lever to open a third door.

Kill the Raptor and go through the doorway. Blow up the two barrels in the corner to expose four Bullet Clips. Continue down the corridor and head towards the ramp. Turn the corner and watch the bridge drop. Ah yes!! The Shotgun!! Keep going until you reach the Save Portal. Enter it to save your game and replenish your health and ammo if you like, but be warned, if you replenish now, you won't be able to again in this world. Next, pull the lever across from the portal to open up two doors to the west of the bridge you just crossed. Kill the dinosoid in the doorway from the bridge because a second, less dangerous dinosoid is below as well. Kill the harder one and drop down and waste the second. Grab the Health and the four Gold Diamonds through the doorway, but be ready for a raptor to jump out of the opening in the wall to your right. Note: The Health regenerates.

CHILD 2 - Next, jump in the opening and follow the corridor until you see the water. Climb the ladder and pull the lever, then turn to your left, and jump into the opening. Climb through the corridor and you'll see a CHILD in a cage. Jumping down into the area below opens up two walls on opposite sides containing two dinosoids. Try to jump on top of the cage for a better vantage point. Once they're dead another door will open exposing a switch to open the cage. Climb the ladder out of there and continue on your way. Past the water and the first switch are some barrels. Blow them up to reveal a Red Diamond, Bullet Clip, and Blue Health. Jump into the portal and climb the ladder.

You'll find a LEVEL 2 KEY in the middle of the room. Hop into the corridor with the Explosive Shells. Look familiar? Enter the door on the wooden walkway. There is a Bullet Clip hidden behind the next open door. Enter this door and behold another portal. Jump into the portal.

PART III

Once through the portal, turn around and blow up the barrel to get the ammo that regenerates. Turn around, exit the alcove, and approach the building in front of you on the right side and scour inside and out for ammo. The waterfall on the east wall contains two sets of Explosive Shells. Follow the Gold Diamonds east through the corridor and head up the ramp. In this room, activate the Warp Portal and hop in.

Head up the ramp into the outdoor environment. Climb the ladder on the north side of the house to get the Blue Health and the four Red Diamonds. Just to the NE of the house is a lever. Pull it to reveal the opening kiddy-corner to the lever. Walk through and grab the Tek Bow. Note the Tek Arrows in the corner. Don't bother you're full up. Above and to your right is another dinosoid waiting to peg you off. This is a good time to try out your new Tek Bow and sniper scope. Hit him in the head to save ammo. There is another dinosoid perched up high around the next corner. Kill it and another door will open. Before you enter, check out the huge tower in the background. Zoom in and kill the dinosoid occupying it. Turn around and it's the same deal - another sniper in a tower.

Get the Diamonds in the fountain.

A Level Key lies within.

Now, enter the door and ascend the ramps until you're outside. To your left is an arc of Red Diamonds leading to the PRIMAGEN KEY 1. You need the LEAP OF FAITH TALISMAN to get them so you'll have to come back to this area later after you finish level 2. When you finish sightseeing, head back out towards the house and continue north along the path.

At the next house, search inside and out. Keep on trucking east until you come to a Save Portal. Save if you like, but ignore the other portal for now. Retrace your steps and take your first right towards the three Blue Health. Across and below is small area with a lever. Jump down and pull it. A door has opened up behind the waterfall guarded by a dinosoid.

Kill it, enter the room, and grab the LEVEL 3 KEY. Head back up to the room with both portals and warp to the next area.

CHILD 3 - Check out that Tek Bow and barrel in front of you. Blow up the barrel to reveal some power-ups that regenerate. Around the corner, scour that pile of junk and debris for some goodies. While on top of the debris, jump across to the ladder on the east wall to access the lever. Pull it, jump down, and you'll see a new opening to the SW. Head for the Shotgun and get ready for a vicious attack. Pull the lever to the south then cross the bridge to the next lever. After you pull it, turn around and wait for the next attack. Proceed to the left corner and pull the lever. In the far corner to your right is the next lever. Pull it to open two more doors next to you on the west wall. These doors lead to a large room with two dinosoids waiting to kick your butt. Kill them and head into the room. The lever to open the cage is on the east wall. Pull it, rescue the CHILD, and head back outside.

Search the area and then pull both levers in the NE corner to open a door behind the waterfall (between the levers). Follow the Gold Diamonds until you warp to a new area. You can acquire the Arrows stuck in the archery targets. Enter the building and you'll find two Bullet Clips and a lever. Pull it to open a passage in the NW corner. Follow it until you come to the next area. Enter the house on the ground level and pull the lever to open a door on the east wall on top of the ramp. Blow up the three barrels scattered about and head to the upstairs of the building. In the back room is a Box of Shells. Exit the room and go to the last window on your right. Look out the window and you'll see a Box of Bullets. Now, head up the ramp on the east end and follow the Gold Diamonds. Blast the dinosoids across the bridge and jump in the portal.

PART IV

Follow the corridor until you come to a ramp. Don't go down it, instead jump on top of the roof to your right. There are three dinosoids below. On top of the north house is a Full Health and a row of Silver Health behind it. In the north end of this area is a Red Diamond to the left of the Shells hidden in the blocks. In the east wall next to the south house is a lever. Pull it to open the door across from the lever. Enter the passage and pull the lever on the left to reveal a raptor and regenerating power-ups.

CHILD 4 - Ignore the right lever for now. Instead, go to the north end and pull the lever on top of the boxes to open a passage beneath you. Follow the passage and drop down and walk to the entrance of the next area. There are three dinosoids in this area and one is up and to your left, waiting to peg you off. Another is patrolling a corridor down and to your right. The third is patrolling the ground level. Eventually you must drop down to the ground level. Enter the only opening and follow it up. Jump up to the ladder leading to the caged Child and cross the bridge. Follow the passage, pull the lever (to open the cage), turn left, and jump down to the cage to rescue the CHILD. Jump into the portal below.

Now go back to the SW passage with two levers and regenerating power-ups. Pull the right lever to open another door to the north of the north house. Pull the lever at the end of the passage to open the large door. Enter this large area and grab some power-ups. Search the debris for power-ups. Go up the north ramp, enter the door, and pull the lever to open a door behind you. Enter the passage and jump in the portal. Follow the passage, turn right, and pull the lever to open a door to your right. If you need Shells and Bullets, climb the ladder into the next room. Head back out, continue on, and pull the next lever. Enter the door.

There is a big house in front of you. Enter one of the doors, pull the lever, and walk back around to the other door. Enter the back room and pull the lever behind the bookshelves. Head back out, turn right, and climb the ladder to the top of the house. Grab the LEVEL 2 KEY, go through the opening in the wall, and pull the lever to open a door on the north wall exposing a portal. Before you jump in it, shoot the barrels to uncover various power-ups.

Once through the portal, turn left. Pull the lever on the west wall. This opens two doors. The north door holds regenerating power-ups. Head down the east passage and emerge. Follow the path until you get to the Save Portal.

PART V

Go through the door and follow the corridor. When you get to the wooden walkway, turn left to get the Blue Health then continue on the other way. Once you get the Gold Diamonds, jump down (don't just drop) to the lower walkway. Follow the path and at the end of the corridor you should see some Tek Arrows. Use caution here because two dinosoids are up high waiting to shoot you. Keep your distance from the doorway and use the scope to pick them off. Soon, things are going to get pretty hectic. Turn left, climb the ladder, grab the pistol, and back up into the corner because two dinosoids are coming at you and a third is perched above ready to shoot. Once you kill the two, run up the two ladders and take your first left to get the Ultra Health. Turn around and blast all resistance on your way to the passageway just ahead and to your left. A couple more dinosoids lurk ahead, but once you kill them you can take a breather. However, the snipers still remain. You don't need to kill them, but we recommend it for fun alone.

Get the Blue Health ahead and then follow the corridor filled with Gold Diamonds. Climb the ladder and follow the corridor. Follow the wooden walkway around to the left and enter the hallway. Take it until you come to another wooden walkway and follow it to the right and the next corridor. At the end of the corridor jump down and enter the door behind you. Make sure you kill the dinosoid first. Look familiar? Note: The power-ups here regenerate. Also note: you can continue on to the Save Portal if you like. Keep going and stop just outside the door and you should be able to kill the dinosoid above by the Warp Portal. Next, climb the ladder to your left and pull the lever. Jump back down, go through the entrance to your right, climb the ladder, and enter the room with the LEVEL 3 KEY, Silver Health, and ammo. Exit and climb the ladder across from you. Before you climb the second ladder, jump across to the debris and grab the Full Health. A little further west is a barrel. Shoot it to expose a Bullet Clip and Silver Health. Now go back up the ladder you most recently climbed and enter the corridor above.

Follow the corridor into a large room. Climb the west ladder and pull the lever to drop the drawbridge. Climb the other ladder to access the bridge. Cross it and follow the hall down into the next open area. Head down the path and climb the ladder by the west bridge and cross it. To access the house, ascend either of the ramps by the Shotgun and two Blue Health. You are now on the middle floor. There are quite a few ammo power-ups so look around. Plus, there are two levers to pull. One in the back-left room and another in the back-right room as you're facing the house. To get to the top floor, use one of two ladders on either side of the house, accessed from the floor you are on. A LEVEL 3 KEY is located in the middle of the top floor towards the front of the house. Head back to the ground level. The two doors on either side of the ramps are now open. Each room has a lever. Pull them to open a door across where the two bridges lead. Make sure to get the Red Diamonds out of the water fountain.

For the Nuke Part, get on the walkway and shoot through it.

Circle the tower and kill.

Enter the door across from the two bridges. Follow the passage until you come to the Warp Portal. Turn right and drop down to the ledge below and activate the Warp Portal. Before you jump in the portal, you may want to go back and save your game and stock up on weapons where the power-ups regenerate.

NUCLEAR PART - After you go through the Warp Portal and arrive in this new area, walk up the ramp and into the large room. There is a ladder in each corner. Walk to the far end of the large room. There is a door showing a piece of the Nuclear Weapon. Approach it and door will slam shut, triggering the emergence of four fierce enemies. Immediately climb one of the ladders at this end of the room. The baddies won't climb up after you. Up on this catwalk are two small rooms. Each provides regenerating power-ups. We recommend firing Tek Arrows with the scope from the shelter of one of these rooms as you will be harder to hit. With patience you can defeat them all. Note: Your ammo will penetrate the grating like it's not even there. After you kill these four dudes stock up on health and ammo, grab the Nuclear Weapon part, and jump into the portal beyond.

ENERGY TOTEM - Head back the way you came, into the area with the two bridges. Don't cross them, instead drop down and go left. Blow up the barrels for some more power-ups and a Red Diamond. Continue on and get the Red Diamonds and Full Health. Pull the series of levers nearby to access the plethora of power-ups and portal. Jump in. Immediately drop down to the platform holding the Energy Totem. Here, we recommend the Shotgun and explosive shells. Simply circle the totem while killing the dinosaurs and picking up additional Explosive Shells. It looks more hectic than it is because the dinosaurs are concentrating on destroying the Totem. Once the mission is complete you'll be sent to the over world.

LEVEL 2 - SLAUGHTER BY THE RIVER OF SOULS

Talisman: Leap of Faith

Enemies: Dinosaurs

Keys: Three Level 4

OBJECTIVES:

- 1) Destroy two Soul Gates.
- 2) Destroy the three Sisters of Despair.
- 3) Locate the Energy Totem and defend it at all costs.

PART I

Whatever you do, don't shoot the creature ahead and to your left. Hop on the dinosaur and go for a ride. Hit the button to fire mortar and the L-button for the secondary weapon. Turn left or right and follow the path to the open area. If you stand on the gravel-looking path, you'll notice that the east and west walls have sections that can be blown up. Blow up the east wall first. Past the opening, in the back-left corner, is a stationary gun waiting to mow you down. You can destroy it from a distance. There is another stationary gun beyond that. We'll leave it to you to discover the remainder of these stationary guns. Follow the path until you come to the small area with the Full Health and ammo. Return to the main area where you blew a hole in the wall.

To the north is a somewhat of an alternate path with extra power-ups, but it is not necessary to follow it. Go there if you like, but otherwise blow up the west wall across from the east hole. Enter and begin following the path in the general direction of NW. After the third stationary gun, the path cuts east. In front of you is a section of wall that can be blown up, revealing a Box of Bullets, Box of Shells, and Full Health. Continue following the path to the NE. Keep going until you see a section of the wall that can be blown up in the SE corner. Blow it up and destroy the gun beyond.

Walk up to the tan brick barricade, turn left, and look up. There is a mortar cannon up in that tower. Destroy it with your own dose of mortar madness. Continue on to the south and approach the opening between the barricades. Destroy the mortar cannon above in the tower to open the gate in front of you. Destroy the mortar cannons and continue on by blowing up the wood beams. Go east up the incline. Travel through the tunnel. Once out of it, destroy the two mortar cannons to raise the bridge over the gorge. Once across, follow the path up the two inclines and across the bridge with the Explosive Shells to the right. Below the two ramps is a section of wall that can be blown up to the west. But before you destroy it, go kill the dinosaur around the corner to your right. Enter the new opening and take your first left to the Full Health in the NW room. Exit this area and blow up the wooden posts to continue on. Travel through the tunnel, cross the bridge, and park your ride in the stable. Climb the ladder, save your game, and then jump into the other portal.

PART II

The Arrows to the left of the portal regenerate. To raise the bridge, hit the two switches across the gap and on both sides of the bridge. Next ignite the barrel below the right switch. Enter the hole in the wall and climb the ladder. Look across to the other platform. Blow up the barrel to open the wall below. Go back over the bridge, enter the new opening, and climb the ladder to get the power-ups and the War Blade. Cross the bridge and blow up the barrel to the right to expose the Blue Health. Climb the left ladder, follow the Diamonds, and drop down on the other side. To the west is a large closed gate with a Bullet Clip next to it. Go back towards the entry where you got the Silver Health. On the other side is a barrel. Blow it up to reveal the Shells. Face west, head towards the large gate, get the Arrows behind the wagon, and go through the tunnel.

Go around to the left and enter the broken gate. At the end of the tunnel are a Pistol and two Bullet Clips. Go back and approach the drawbridge. Across from each Blue Health is a ladder. Up the south ladder you'll find Gold Diamonds and a Shotgun. Now look to the north. You should see a Red Diamond on a small platform. Access it from the north ladder. Up the north ladder are five Silver Health. Drop down and get the aforementioned Red Diamond. Next, lower the drawbridge by shooting the left switch across the gap. Cross the drawbridge, go either left or right, ascend the ramp, and hop in the portal to the east.

Drop down and follow the left path. Ascend the first ramp, turn right, and get the Gold Diamonds. Follow the path up and shoot the dinosaur across from the Blue Health. Go back down and continue up the second ramp, above the courtyard. You'll come to two more ramps. Climb the ramps and grab the LEVEL 4 KEY. Face the portal across from you and shoot the barrel to release a Blue Health. Continue north. Descend two ramps and then explode the two barrels in the left corner to reveal two sets of Shells. Before you descend the next set of ramps, look down the edge facing west. This gives you an easy shot at a dinosaur between two Blue Health. Follow the trail of Gold Diamonds leading west. Ascend the ramps and just beyond and to the right is another Blue Health. Killing the dinosaur across from it will lower the drawbridge to the next area.

Drop down and climb the north ladder across from the gorge and drop down to the smaller platform to get the Red Diamond. Cross the drawbridge and enter the next area. Turn left and instead of using the ramps, drop down when the dinosaur goes around the corner. Follow the path north. Blow up the barrel on the east wall to the right of the Bullet Clip and pull the lever. Head back south and enter the door with the Blue Health at the bottom of the ramp. Head up the next set of ramps, cross the bridge, and shoot the switch to lower the drawbridge. The drawbridge is across from the lever you pulled before. But don't cross it just yet.

Continue north until you come to a ramp. Go up the first ramp, turn around, and detonate the barrel on top of the platform. To the right of the ramp is a barrel. Blow it up and go through the opening. Blow up the next barrel to reveal a Bullet Clip and then turn left. Blow up the next two barrels to find two more Bullet Clips. Note the tile for the BREATH OF LIFE TALISMAN. Now arm the War Blade for a confrontation with some abnormally aggressive compys. Climb the ladder and turn left for the Full Health. Now go back and cross the draw-bridge. Jump into the portal.

PART III

Explore the room with care and then ascend the stairs. If you want the Full Health now, go right. If you can wait, go left. Pull the lever at the end the wooden walkway to the left. Go back down the stairs, make two lefts, and enter the newly opened door. Head up the ramp and at the top, pull the lever to the left, near the Warp Portal. Turn around. The door in the back-right corner leads to the aforementioned Full Health. The lever opens up the small gold grates to the left of the stairs outside. Go back down there and get the Shoot it to open a passage below.

Reference the guide for this secret.

Kill the larger zombies to release the Sister.

Gate Keys housed within. Insert said keys into the receptacles, located 2/3s of the way up the stairs.

Go through the gate and pull the lever on the left wall. Enter the room, climb the boxes in the back-left corner, and pull the lever to activate the Warp Portal, back where you first encountered the spiders. But don't leave to enter it yet. For some needed supplies, jump in the pool and swim to the bottom. Enter the passage and swim to the next open area. Immediately pull the lever in front of you and return the way you came and quickly surface. Exit the water and enter the newly opened door to the east and grab what you need of the health and ammo. DO NOT ENTER THE PORTAL. Instead, go back to the Warp Portal (where you first encountered the spiders) to win another Nuclear Weapon part. If you haven't already, get the Full Health on the wooden walkway.

NUCLEAR PART - After you go through the Warp Portal, head up the ramp and go forward a few steps so you're on the grating and pivot to your left. Use sniper mode and peg that monster off. Now do the same for one behind you.

Head to where each was standing and climb the ladders. At the top turn the valves. When finished, head back into the main room and head to the end of the room towards the ramp. Ascend it and quickly follow one of the catwalks around to the end, killing anything in front of you. Turn around so you're facing the opened door above the ramp. Now you won't have anyone on your back and you can continually grab the regenerating power-ups in the alcoves off to the side. When you kill four of those evildoers, stock back up on health and ammo, making sure never to stop in front of the open door at the top of the ramp. Once full, enter that door with guns blazing. Simply pump these last two crates full of shotgun shells for access to a second Nuclear Weapon part. Restock your supplies, go back up the main stairs and past the gate. Next, jump into the portal in the right room.

PART IV

At the fork go left and head down the series of ramps. On the east wall is a Blue Health on top of the awning. Beneath it are two barrels containing two Bullet Clips. Behind you are two more barrels housing a Bullet Clip and Shells. Around the corner is another barrel containing a Silver Health. Next to it on the south wall, is another barrel. Shoot it and an opening will appear in the wall. Ignore it for now. Go to the NW corner of the room.

Pull the lever in the next room to open a door directly behind you. Enter and blow up the barrels for two Bullet Clips. Just past the comys you'll find Shells inside the doorway. Follow the ramps up (ignore the trail of diamonds for now) while crossing a series of four bridges. (Before the first bridge, note the tile for the BREATH OF LIFE TALISMAN. This eventually leads to another LEAP OF FAITH TALISMAN tile that gives you a access to all sorts of sweet treasure. You must return and check it out.) Keep going until you reach a ledge. Jump across to get the Mag 60 and the five Bullet Clips. Jump back and continue on. After the last bridge, take a left before the downward ramp and follow the wooden walkway.

On the box to the left is a Full Health, however, don't get it until your health is at a minimum. Go up two ramps and then pull the lever on your right. Continue up, through the double doors, and down the steep ramp. Continue straight, ascend the next ramp, and get the three Red Diamonds interspersed along the right ledge. Go back down the ramp and turn right at the building fronted with the two black boxes (some Arrows lay to the right of them). Walk along the side of the building, cross the bridge, pull the lever, and turn around right away. Enter the open door across the bridge and pull the lever. Exit and get the single Gold Diamond to the right of the bridge. Now drop down below onto the awning for three Red Diamonds.

Jump down to the ground and enter the hole in the SW wall. Go up as far as you can. Shoot the switch to the left of the bridge to lower it. Cross and continue on. At the top of the last incline, turn left, and pull the switch to open the door just ahead. After passing through the door, immediately follow the ramp up to your left. Ignore the west door and continue north down the ramp to destroy the first Soul Gate. Note: if you haven't already, you may want to go back and get that Full Health.

SOUL GATE 1 - Position yourself in one of the back corners by the regenerating power-ups. One holds Shells the other Bullets, whatever your preference. Destroy the zombies as they crawl out of the floor, but whenever you get a chance, aim up and shoot at the Soul Gate. The zombies are just there to distract you and drain your health, so with patience and a good shot, you can accomplish this mission relatively unscathed. Once the Soul Gate blows up, head to the back-left corner for a Full Health and four Red Diamonds.

Exit the room, head back up the ramp, and enter the door to the right of the flames. Keep going up until you reach the room with the portal. Shoot the barrels and jump in the portal.

PART V

There is Blue Health on either side of the portal. Head down either path until you come to a place overlooking some water. Take a few steps out onto the ledges of both sides of the ramp to kill the dinosaurs in the distance with the Tek Bow. Follow the right ledge all the way to the back of the room and enter the doorway. Follow the ramps to the top, turn right, and pull the lever. Go back down above the water and this time follow the left (south) ledge and blow up the barrel to expose an alcove with a Box of Bullets and a Box of Shells. Finally head down into the lower area and get the Full Health in the pavilion if needed. Next, head out the west end.

There is a Blue Health behind the black box that regenerates. Keep following the winding path until you come to a pool with two Blue Health on the other side. Beware, there is a dinosaur just to the north of the pool. Go up the first ramp and head up the stairs. There are shells in each of the tiny pools. Continue up (the arrows regenerate), and follow the corridor to the right into the next area. Shoot the switches on the west and east walls to open the portal in the center of the room. Jump into the portal.

Climb the ladder and follow the only corridor. Follow the Gold Diamonds to the right until you come to the small pool. There is a Blue Health behind it. Jump in the pool, swim to the bottom, and turn left. In the next area, there is a Red Diamond in each corner of the pool. Be careful of the dinosaur when getting out of the water and walk up either ramp into the next room with Ultra Health. As soon as you enter, the doors will lock behind you. Grab the Ultra Health to trigger the arrival of some spiders. Once they're dead, face the south wall. Shoot the small tile on the wall just below the plants to trigger the release of two new enemies. Exit the room and enter the newly opened corridor to the west. Turn left and climb up the long ladder. Walk straight ahead and take the corridor to the right. In the next room, again use the corridor to the right. Climb the ladder and you will emerge in a large outdoor area.

Note the tile for the LEAP OF FAITH TALISMAN. Don't drop below. Instead, follow the narrow walkway to the right until you reach the Blue Health. Go back down the ladder and follow the two corridors (one after the other) down to the other long ladder and drop down the chute. At the intersection continue straight and enter the water at the end of the corridor. Exit the water and head through the blue gate and jump through the portal.

SISTER OF DESPAIR 1 - There is a Blue Health on either side of the portal. Follow the corridor until you come to the blue gate. A couple of zombies will surface. Shoot a couple and the blue gate should open. Go through and continue along until you come to the ladder. Climb it and continue on. At the ledge, turn right for the Mag 60. Get the three Red Diamonds just below the ledge to the east. Next, drop down and get ready to battle some zombies. Don't worry too much though, because there are four locations that sport regenerating power-ups.

There are a ton of zombies down here, but only a couple of them shoot flames, and they don't rise again. Once you kill the flamethrowers, the door on the building in this room opens revealing the first Sister. Shoot away and when you get low on health and/or ammo, seek out some more power-ups. Before you know it, she's a goner. Exit through the blue gate and go east past the zombies and back through the portal.

Dive in the water and swim back to the corridor. Take your first left and jump in the water. Swim through the opening you used earlier and at the intersection, go straight. Follow this path until you surface. Hop up onto the structure in the middle of the pool and push all four switches surrounding the center column. Climb either ladder at the east end and cross the bridge with the Blue Health in the middle. Follow the corridor until you reach the next bridge. Enter the corridor on the other side of the bridge. Keep going until you find the portal with the two Silver Health across from it. Warp to the next area.

PART VI

Climb the ladder to your right and jump off the north side of the ledge so that you follow the Gold Diamonds down. Go through the large opening to the north. At the water, turn left, ascend the ramp, and go through the door. At the bottom of the ramps is a Quiver of Tek Arrows to the left behind a box. On the west wall is a barrel with a Red Diamond. Continue on the west. Before you enter the door, blow up the barrel to the right to get the Bullet Clip. Then climb the ladder to get to the walkway above. Walk to the end and get the Mag 60 and the four Gold Diamonds. Then turn around and blow up the two barrels to expose the two Blue Health. Now exit this area to the west.

Follow the corridor into the next open area. Straight ahead is a barrel that when detonated, reveals another corridor. Enter it and take the path to the right. At the end, shoot the large tan block across from you to open a gate below. Go down the left path and enter the open gate. Note the tile for the BREATH OF LIFE TALISMAN. At the intersection, keep going straight up the ramp and out on to the roof to get the Full Health. Go back down the ramp and turn left. At the next intersection, turn right and pull the lever at the end. Now take the left path up the ramp. At the next intersection, stay on the left-most path and keep going until you acquire the Tranquilizer Gun. Turn around and jump down to the platform to your left with the Full Health and Red Diamonds. Drop down on either the east or west side. Go back into the corridor with the gold gate taking a right, left, and then a right. When you come to the blue gate with three Blue Health next to it, hop in the portal.

SISTER OF DESPAIR 2 - This one is easier than the first. It's the same deal. Waste the larger zombies and the mausoleum gates will open, exposing the Sister. As you enter the area, ammo power-ups are to your left and right. Health power-ups are on the east end of the mausoleum. Once she's dead, fill up on supplies, and jump in the portal inside the mausoleum.

Go back to the area with the green pool and head up the ramp and out the hole in the wall. Head towards the barrels and turn right at your last opportunity. Behind those black boxes on your left is a Box of Bullets. Now go blow up those three barrels to find two Silver Health and some Shells. Next, enter the east passage. Follow the passage to the right and then go left into the room with four pools. Search them and follow the passage in the back-left pool until you come to dry land. Follow the corridor until you reach the LEVEL 4 KEY. Below the Health, on both sides, are balconies with six Red Diamonds apiece. Drop down to get them and use the portal to return. Head back into the water.

Leave the pool room and turn left. When you reach the outdoor platform with five Blue Health, drop down to the right and get the Shotgun and Red Diamonds. Climb the ladder and get the Tranq Darts on top of the black box. Next, pull the switch on top of the platform. Go back into the hall and enter the passage on the right. Blow up the barrels in the next room to get two Bullet Clips. Keep going until you reach the room with the small pool. Note the tile for the LEAP OF FAITH TALISMAN at one end. Go to the right of the pool and drop down for the Tranquilizer Gun and four Silver Health. Climb the ladder, go straight, and jump in the portal.

PART VII

Immediately to your right is a barrel with a Bullet Clip. Over the edge are two Blue Health and a Shotgun. Go north into the water. Take the east and west paths to the Diamonds. Exit the water, turn left, and cross the bridge. In the SW corner of the next room is a switch to activate the Warp Portal. Activate it, but continue on through the east corridor. Take your first left and walk out on to the bridge.

Below the arch off to the right is a Save Portal. Finally! Jump down and save your game.

TALISMAN - Drop down and go back into the east passage. Cross the bridge across from the Save Portal and drop down the edge with War Blade in hand. Head through the door when it opens up. Climb the long ramp to the west. About half way up, jump down to the ledge with the dinosaur. Kill him and you'll find the BROWN EAGLE FEATHER which can be offered up for the Leap of Faith Talisman at the Warp Portal. Let's go there shall we?

Continue up the ramp, go through the blue gate, and go to the right of the altar. Drop down and enter the Warp Portal. Approach the portal and grab the LEAP OF FAITH icon in the side room. Warp out of there. Return to the long ramp, go past the blue gates, and jump in the portal.

SISTER OF DESPAIR 3 - There are three gates in front of you. Go straight and kill all of the fire-flinging zombies first. To open the Graveyard Gate to the north, pull the three levers located in three of the five buildings around the Gate. Walk through and kill the fire-flinging zombies. Pull the levers in the four houses in the corners to open the next north gate. Enter and pull the levers in the right and left corners. Return through the gate and enter the two center buildings to get the Graveyard Keys. Go north through the gate and insert the Keys in near corners. Cross the bridge and pass through the gate to banish the Sister of Despair. Once that is done, head through the gate and follow the corridor up until you reach the wooden walkway. Follow it around to get the Ultra Health and Red Diamonds. Return to the portal that got you here and jump in it. Go save your game.

SOUL GATE 2 - Drop down from the save platform and go back in the east corridor. Cross the bridge and drop down like before. Go past the long ramp and into the south passage. At the top, turn right and blow up the barrels. Walk behind the boxes to get some ammo and health. Continue on and at the top of the ramp take the left path to get the ammo. Go back the way you came and continue on. At the next intersection take the left path. Keep going until you come to the LEVEL 4 KEY. Pull the lever behind it. Return to the intersection and take the other path up the long ramp and through the open doors. At the bottom awaits your chance to destroy the second Soul Gate. Use the exact same strategy as for the first Gate.

Head back to the save area and head into the east passage again. This time, bypass the bridge and keep going until you reach the three Gold Diamonds. Jump right across the water and onto the cement. Hit the switch and get ready for an attack. Then shoot the barrels. Get the power-ups, enter the passage, go right, and shoot the barrels for some Shells and a Blue Health.

[Note: if you are returning to this level looking for the PRIMAGEN KEY 2, continue down the north passage and you'll encounter a tile for the BREATH OF LIFE TALISMAN. Enter the water, climb out, and get in the water on the other side. Scour the area for Diamonds and an Ultra Health. Go back and climb back up the ladder and use the series of tiles for the LEAP OF FAITH TALISMAN. Follow the corridors until you find the KEY].

Go back outside, get in the water, and swim into the north entrance.

ENERGY TOTEM - Jump in the portal and get ready to defend the Energy Totem. Use the same strategy as before. Jump down and circle the Totem while mowing down bad guys and picking up an assortment of ammo. Succeed and it's world over.

LEVEL 3 - THE DEATH MARSHES

Talisman: Firewalker
Enemies: Pur-Linn
Keys: Three Level 5

OBJECTIVES:

- 1) Rescue five prisoners.
- 2) Destroy three ammo storage facilities.
- 3) Locate and defend the Energy Totem at all costs.

Enter the passage.

Jump over to the tower.

Look down from another tower.

PART I

Note the tile for the BREATH OF LIFE TALISMAN. Cross the log bridge and then drop down to the right to get the Silver Health and Tek Arrows. Climb the ladder and keep going till you cross the bridge. Okay, maybe not. Drop down and jump the series of platforms to the left. Go down the log bridge, go right towards the ladder. Climb the ladder and find the Blue Health behind the large tree. Climb the next ladder to get the Mag 60. Retrace your steps and go north at the base of the bridge.

Cross the broken bridge and look at the platform to the SE with shells and Red Diamonds. Go down the incline. (Note tile for the BREATH OF LIFE TALISMAN. Cross the floating bridge. Note: Don't stop on the floating bridge or you'll die). Cross the next floating bridge. Veer left through the two plants to get the LEVEL 5 KEY. Retrace your steps and continue on.

Cross the broken bridge. In the plant to the left of the fire is some ammo. Beyond on that is a tile for the BREATH OF LIFE TALISMAN. Go west into the alcove and shoot the box for some goodies. Jump across the series of platforms. Explore the houses for barrels. Follow the diamonds around the left house for the Explosive Shells.

ARMORY 1 - Look at the portal. Don't go in it yet. In the mud in the back corner are some Tek Arrows. If you turn around you'll see a trail of Red Diamonds. Follow them to get a Blue Health and a SATCHEL CHARGE. Turn around and exit using the broken bridge. Cross the SW bridge and free the PRISONER by shooting the gold lock.

Retrace your steps and halfway across the bridge, turn to the left. Jump across to the ledge with the Gold Diamonds. Keep going until you reach the ladder.

At the top is a building with four locks. Shoot them for access to the armory. Jump in the portal and follow the corridor to the end. The Satchel Charge will automatically be set and then you have five seconds to get out of there. Return to this area after the explosion to collect the Full Health. Go Back to the portal to the NE of the prisoner cage and jump in.

PART II

Cross the floating bridge and the next floating bridge. Continue straight and follow the stone path to the north. After the first turn, look up and waste the baddie in the tower. Take the first left and follow the path until you reach the Save Portal. Continue on and follow the Gold Diamonds past the bee hive to get the LEVEL 5 KEY. Turn around and go south past the hive and get the Gold Diamonds. Next, head back to the stone path. Continue north and enter the first building on the left for some power-ups. Exit and enter the building to the right of the stone path and destroy the barrels. Ignore the portal for now. Exit the building and turn left. Around the corner is a Full Health. Jump through the portal. Turn left and along the left wall is a Bullet Clip. Ahead on the right is a tile for the BREATH OF LIFE TALISMAN.

[This is where you get the PRIMAGEN KEY 3. Jump in and swim into the hole on the bottom of the floor. Surface and swim north. Exit on the chunk of land with the two plants on it. Kill the pur-linn across the water to your left and continue walking until you come to a short ladder. Run for cover behind the rock. Shoot the two pur-linn on the platform above. When they're dead, climb the next ladder and grab the Key. Go back.]

Cross the bridge and halfway down, take the walkway to the left for the Blue Health. Once across, turn right and take the wooden walkway to the Box of Shells. Enter the building and walk through it to the outside. Enter the building on the right for a Box of Shells. Retrace your steps and head west towards the plant in-between the two walls. Go north towards BREATH OF LIFE TALISMAN tile and get ready for an attack above. Below the tile is a Blue Health on a safe platform. Enter the doorway to the left of the tile for Gold Diamonds and Blue Health. Keep on and destroy the barrels. Exit, turn left, and continue onto the Save Portal. Climb the sniper tower. From here you can jump on the roof below for a Full Health and four Red Diamonds. Don't cross the log yet. Instead, begin crossing the bridge by the tower.

Before you reach the other side, get the two Blue Health on the left and right via the wooden walkway. Once across, ignore the portal, turn right, and get the regenerating ammo. Note: This is somewhat of an ambush. Hit the switch to activate the Warp Portal. Return to the sniper tower (save your game), climb the tower, jump to the roof, and cross the log. Enter the Warp Portal.

NUCLEAR PART - Go up the ramp to trigger the onslaught and fall back. Note: A sentinel comes at you from the back. Kill the sentinels and climb the ramp. There are three doors. Another baddie will eventually come from the room straight ahead, but each room also holds enemies that you can easily kill from a distance with the sniper scope. The room to the left holds regenerating power-ups. Fill up, go through the south door, and kill any resistance. Grab the Nuclear Weapon part and jump in the portal. Head back towards the sniper tower, cross the broken bridge, and jump in the portal.

PART III

ARMORY 2 - Follow the wooden walkway to the left. Climb the tower and look below. Drop down inside the walls to get the three Blue Health and the SATCHEL CHARGE. Climb the ladder and get out. To the east of the tower are four Gold Diamonds and regenerating ammo. Return to where you started the area.

Take the stone path to the right. Climb the tower and cross the log with Gold Diamonds. Around the building near a plant are four Red Diamonds and a Quiver of Tek Arrows. Go back around, shoot off the locks, and jump in the portal. Turn around and go down the passage. Take the first left and continue straight until you get to the room with the really big crate. Set the charge, race back to the portal, and jump in. If you need the Full Health, re-enter the portal, turn around, and enter the passage. Instead of taking the first left, go straight and you'll run into the power-up. Leave.

Head over the wooden walkway again (towards where you picked up the Satchel Charge), and cross the floating bridge. Cross the wooden bridge. At the end, turn left, and jump over to the ladder and climb up. Once atop the tower, drop down to the wooden walkway to the south. To the left is health and to the right is ammo. Note: These power-ups regenerate.

Face the building with Full Health inside. More to the left is a plant concealing a walkway around the building. Follow it to get the Plasma Rifle and then go back. Check the regenerating power-ups for Plasma Clips. Enter the building and destroy the barrels. Jump in the portal.

PART IV

With the aid of the sniper scope, kill the pur-linn in the tower to your left. Go down the wooden bridge. Head SE and follow the trail of Gold Diamonds while jumping the gap. Go straight and enter the first opening of the building to your left. Blow up the barrels. Exit and jump across to the platform to the right for the Plasma Rifle. Next, enter the building via the east entrance. Exit out the other side and ascend the ramp. Save your game and enter the other portal.

To your right is a tower with a pur-linn sniper. Head through the gate and down the long ramp. Expect a lot of resistance. At the bottom, before you head through the gate, enable your sniper mode and nail the two pur-linn in the eyes, up high in front of you. Go to the left to get the power-ups. Next, go west of the gate.

PRISONERS 2 - F - Drop down where you see the lone Gold Diamond. Shoot the locks on the cage to free the PRISONER. Climb back up the ladder and jump in the portal in the large building. Enter the gap in the NW corner, following the Gold Diamonds until you come to the Box of Bullets. Turn around and enter the small hole in the wall. There is a cage in front of you and another ahead to the left. However, there is a pur-linn perched above. We sniped him from the west cage. Go SW past one of the cages.

Keep going until you see the bee hive. Run under it and jump across the green water onto the ladder. Climb up, get the Blue Health to the right, and climb the "stairs" with the Gold Diamonds. Turn around to see the Blue Eagle Feather. Drop down and follow the narrow ledge outside of the wall going east. Grab the Grenades and two Red Diamonds then keep going until you reach the regenerating Health. Go back to where you saw the Feather and go SE. Head through the doorway, and release the last prisoner. Keep going in the same direction. Before the portal you'll see a Blue Health.

TALISMAN & ARMORY 3 - Climb the ladder to the left of the portal. To your right are power-ups that regenerate. Follow the walkway to the left. At the second turn, drop down to get three Red Diamonds. Jump across to the top of the cage and get the Ultra Health. Jump back and continue on until you come to the cage with the SACHEL CHARGE on it. Jump over, get it, and jump back.

Keep on until you reach the BLUE EAGLE FEATHER. Go back and follow the Gold Diamonds across the wooden walkway. Follow the next set of Diamonds to the top of the wall and hit the switch to activate the Warp Portal. Turn to your left and shoot the chains holding the cages. Go back to where you got the Feather, jump across, and enter the Warp Portal to get the BREATH OF LIFE TALISMAN. Leave the chamber.

Cross the log, drop down to the right, and go through the SE doorway past the last prisoner's cage to the portal and jump in. Note the EYE OF TRUTH TALISMAN tile atop of east wall. Go up the slope and through the doorway. Follow the Gold Diamonds across the wood walkway. Note the EYE OF TRUTH TALISMAN tile. Shoot the four gold locks off the building and hop in the portal. To get to the blast zone, take a right at the fork. Set the charge and jump back through the portal. Cross over the wooden bridge and enter the next portal.

ENERGY TOTEM - Go straight until you reach the tree with the two Grenades behind it. Go back and enter the gate. The LEVEL 5 KEY is in the middle, but take care to notice the four raptors behind the closed gates that will be released when you grab the Key. Once they're dead, grab any power-ups you need out of the raptor pens and approach the south gate. On the other side are two pur-linns perched up high. You know what to do. Keep going south until you reach the portal leading to the Energy Totem. It's the same deal as before, stay close to the Totem while picking up ammo and pegging off the pur-linn assailing the structure. Once you've killed enough of 'em, it's world over.

LEVEL 4 - THE LAIR OF THE BLIND ONES

Talisman: Firewalk
Keys: Three Level 6
Enemies: Blind Ones

OBJECTIVES:

- 1) Seal three thermal vents.
- 2) Locate the Energy Totem and defend it at all costs.

PART I

Walk to the water and look for power-ups. Walk through the opening. Follow the path to the left, behind the boulder, until you reach the Blue Health. Note the tile for the WHISPERS TALISMAN.

(Note: This Talisman tile is the path to the PRIMAGEN KEY 4. Hop on the tile, land, and walk to the next one. Jump across to the area below, circle the hole for power-ups, and then drop down. Make sure you land on the grey bricks if you want the Scorpion Missiles. There is an alcove to the east with a switch! Pull it to open a door on the west side with the CAVE DOOR KEY. Get it, insert it in the appropriate place, and enter the doorway. Kill the giant spiders, get the Ultra Health and Red Diamonds, then jump in the portal. Grab the Primagen Key 4, make the short drop, and go west back to the beginning of the level and jump in the portal to leave.)

Retrace your steps and take the right path past the Tranq Darts. Go down the ramp and you'll come to an area with a large hole in the middle. Go right and blow up the barrels. Continue on to the next barrel holding the Plasma Clip. Drop down into the hole. There is a cave to the east and west. Enter the east cave (without Diamonds). Get to the top of the ramp and scale the wall with Gold Diamonds. At the top turn around and look down to see a Plasma Rifle. Jump towards it and you'll land on the rock in front of it. Jump to the climbing wall and get the rifle. Climb back up the other wall and drop down to the south. Go right to return to the beginning of the level, otherwise go left to drop back down the large hole. Now enter the west cave (with Diamonds). Go north and fall down the hole. The portal ahead brings you back to the surface. Instead follow the Gold Diamonds to the left and the wall will open. Enter it and head down the ramp and drop in the water.

Quickly grab the Harpoon Gun and kill the swimming evil. Swim north and you'll find a Bullet Clip in the back-left corner. Opposite is an underwater passage. Ignore it for now (see Red Eagle Feather section). On the west bank is a Full Health. Take the east ramp out of the water. Destroy the barrel and enter the SE passage. Slide down and enter the water.

Swim along the south shore to find three Silver Health. To exit the water, use the ramp at the east beneath the Gold Diamonds. Pull the lever and ascend the climbing wall next to it.

Go down the passage, take the first left, the next right, and drop down the hole with a Gold Diamond. Continue on to the area with the barrel holding a Blue Health. From here, there are three caves: north, NE, and south. Embark down the south cave towards the Mag 60. Once in the next room the door will shut behind you and you'll encounter a giant spider. Strafe and nail him with the shotgun. Next, destroy the barrels. Next, enter the south passage with the Blue Health.

PART II

In the next room, go to the south end and pull the skull lever to open two passages on the west wall marked by two Blue Health. Note: The power-ups regenerate. Enter the left passage. At the end, hug the right wall and look up to your left. Shoot the white lever. Exit this passage and go down the other passage on the right. At the end, look up to the right and shoot the white lever. This will open up the underwater gate. Exit the passage, jump in the water, and swim past the Blue Health to the next ladder. Climb out and get the Gold Diamonds on each side. Climb a ladder and cross the bridge. Follow the corridor and when you reach the ledge, jump out and get the CAVE DOOR KEY.

Enter the cave and shoot the barrel to knock over the column, making a bridge. Cross over and enter the passage. Continue on for a while, past the Mag 60 and Explosive Shells, until you encounter a dinosaur. Follow the ledge down to the right. At the first right, turn and note the LEVEL 6 KEY. Ignore it and continue on. On the right-hand

Turn around and jump over to the passage.

Follow the path behind these boulders.

Place the Satchel on the stone to seal the vent.

You can make it.

side there is an alcove with a giant spider. Kill it and grab the Flamethrower. Go back and grab the Level 6 Key and the door will close in front of the Full Health and a swarm of enemies will attack. Kill 'em all, collect the power-ups around the room, and exit through the gate behind the Full Health. Run across the bridge and kill the blind one on the other side.

Follow the passage to the ledge. To get to the other side, shoot the barrel to topple the column. Go up the ramp and pass through the corridor. On the other side are some rocks to your right hiding some regenerating ammo. Jump in the Save Portal. Shoot the barrel to get a Blue Health. Approach the Mag 60 and cross the stone bridge. Shoot the lever on the wall to the right to open the gate. Follow the passage up until you come to the Full Health behind the gate. Shoot the lever on the right to open it. Follow the ramp down and fall down the hole.

RED EAGLE FEATHER - Follow the corridor, take the first right, and continue until you reach the water room with the RED EAGLE FEATHER. Make the series of jumps to the other waterfall. (If you fall, drop down the hole and travel down the river over the two waterfalls. Below the second waterfall to the left is a portal that takes you back.) Once you make it to the other side, enter the corridor and drop down to the water. Turn right and jump out to get the Red Eagle Feather. Drop down the hole and go to the bottom of the second waterfall and enter the portal to the left. Now it's time for some serious backtracking. Head back to the pool mentioned before in Part I. Once you are at that pool, continue with "Talisman" section below.

TALISMAN - Swim through the opening in the NE corner and veer to the right. In this room there is a switch for a Warp Portal. Hit it, turn around, and swim down the other passage leading north. Exit the water and follow the corridor to the opening. Take the path down to the right, cross the wooden bridges, and jump across to the climbing wall. Get to the top and cross over. Follow the cave and at the end drop down.

Follow the east passage over a series of climbing walls until you encounter the first blind one. Enter the passage to the right of the Tranquilizer Gun and the two Gold Diamonds. Climb the wall to the right for the Full Health. Keep going and when you come to the large room, follow the stone bridge. Jump in the Warp Portal at the end. Place the Feather on the altar, grab the icon in the back room, and leave this place. Now return to where you got the Red Eagle Feather. Walk straight and drop down the ledge into the water. Exit the water using the ramp straight in front of you. Look familiar? From here, it's up to you to get back to where you found the Red Eagle Feather, but if you need help, reference this area in Part II.

PART III

Once back, follow the river over the two waterfalls. To the right is a small island that holds regenerating power-ups. Then swim to the north end of the pool. Shoot the white lever on the wall to open the underwater door beneath it.

Swim through the passage, exit the water, and go past the Charge Dart Rifle. Keep going past the assorted power-ups until you reach the room with the three barrels to the right. At the fork go to the right and shoot the barrels. Go back to the left and blow up the barrel to get the Blue Health. Enter the west passage past the Tek Bow. Psych! When the door slams shut, turn around and battle a herd of giant spiders. Kill them and the passage will reopen.

THERMAL VENT 1 - Follow the passage until you reach the gate with the Blue Health. Cross the bridge, take the first right, and jump down to the platform to acquire the CAVE DOOR KEY. Turn around and climb the wall and take the corridor to the next room. Keep going and cross the stone bridge that slopes down and follow it until you reach the SATCHEL CHARGE. Turn around and go back the way you came.

When you reach the bridge that slopes up, look across at the wall and you'll see a small opening on the left. There is a climbing wall beneath it so jump from the bridge and access the passage. Drop down at the end. Take the first right and in the next room insert the Key in the appropriate place. Go through the entrance and go up the first passage to your right. Run by the blind ones and only confront them when necessary. At the top, run over to the large rock, and the Satchel Charge should set itself. Get out of here and jump in the portal back in the corridor. Once through the portal, jump back in the water and use the underwater door you used before to get back to the bridge. Once you have arrived back at the inclined bridge, continue on, take a right at the "T", and drop down at the end. In the next passage, take your first left and drop through the hole at the end into a pool.

WET 1 WILD - Swim through the passage in front of you and follow the Gold Diamonds to the right. In the next area (we'll call it, and areas like it, an interchange), two of the three other openings are gated, so follow the south (right) passage. Surface, and get on top of the spinning wood disc. Jump to the climbing wall and pull the lever at the end to open the underwater doors. Swim back to the interchange and get the Torpedo Launcher in the first passage to your right (south), but back out and enter the east passage where the dinosaur came from, marked by the Blue Health. Keep going until you get the CAVE DOOR KEY. Continue down the passage, and in the next interchange, swim through the right (south) passage. This takes you to a portal room, but just take a breath and get back in the water. Return to the interchange and swim through the passage to your right (east). Swim back and at the "T", go right, and at the next interchange, follow the right (east) passage. Swim until you get another CAVE DOOR KEY. To get some air, make a right (west) and at the dead end, go up to the surface. Head back, turn right, and keep on truckin' until you are back at the interchange. Here, take the passage on your right (south) and then take your next right (be ready, it sneaks up on you). Follow this to another open area and take the passage to your right (north). Keep going straight until you reach a room where you can breathe.

PART IV

Insert the key, enter the next room, and pull the lever. Turn around and enter the passage on your right. Veer right and drop down from the top of the ramp (don't use it). Ammo will regenerate from behind the large tree next to the ramp. Drop down into the next area. The barrel in the right corner holds a Bullet Clip. Hug the right wall until you come to the boulder with four Red Diamonds and Grenades behind it. Head to the other side and follow the Gold Diamonds down the ramp. Follow the ledge down to the bottom and go back to the north to blow up the barrels for Shells or a Bullet Clip. Approach the opening in the wall. There is a giant spider guarding a lever. Kill it then pull the lever. Turn around and enter the passage to the left.

NUCLEAR PART - To the left of the lava is a tile for the FIREWALK TALISMAN. Walk across and enter the passage. In the next area is another tile for the FIREWALK TALISMAN. Walk across and enter the next passage. When you emerge, turn left and proceed to the barrels. Blow them up, grab the goods, and push the switch to activate the Warp Portal. Turn around and follow the path to the climbing wall. Follow the corridor to the room with the Warp Portal. In the back of the room are two Gold Diamonds and a Sunfire Pod. Jump in the portal for the Nuclear Part.

Ascend the ramp, go straight, and approach the closed door. Kill the two monsters and go through the round corridor. Around the corner is another nasty. Climb the ladder up and kill the next enemy. Then, turn the two valves by the openings to the left. Go back down the ladder, through the corridor, and enter the door you just opened on the right. Cross the bridge and go the left through the other door. Get ready for an onslaught, but there is regenerating ammo and health in this room. When they're all dead, turn the valve on the wall, cross the bridge, and enter the newly opened door on the left. Enter and there's one last dude to beat, then the Nuclear Part is all yours. Jump in the portal to get outta here. No need to retrace your steps, instead walk off the ledge behind the Warp Portal.

Walk ahead and jump on the small wooden platform. Jump from platform to platform until you reach the passage above with the Blue Health. Follow the cave and then cross the bridge. Enter the cave on the other side. Take the right path and fall down the hole. Make the first left. Follow the ledge down to the left. Note the tile for the FIREWALK TALISMAN. Shoot the lever across the lava pool. This will open the gates in the passages behind you. Follow the passage down the ramp to the next lava pit. Note the tile for the FIREWALK TALISMAN. Ascend the ledge to the right. Cross the bridge and follow the passage to the next room. Kill the two giant spiders and shoot the two barrels. Enter the south corridor with the Blue Health. Keep going past four Red Diamonds. Look down to see the Ultra Health. Drop down, get it, turn around, and climb the wall back up. Take that right and fall down the hole at the end of the corridor. The power-ups in the portal room in front of you regenerate. Make way to the next room. Kill the enemies and the south passage will open. Follow it to the next room.

THE FORK - There is an obvious path up to the right. Instead, look to the south of the stalagmite and you'll see two boulders. Behind the boulders is a Tek Bow and ledge path. Follow the ledge to the bottom and enter the passage. Climb the wall and get ready to face a giant spider. Climb the next wall and start across the stone bridge. At the intersection, go left to get the Sunfire Pods, turn around, and continue on. Get the Blue Health and enter the corridor with the Shredder. Once through, take the path to the left to the Shells. From here you can go left or right. Follow the right path until you reach the end. Jump down to the platform with the four Red Diamonds and Full Health (yes, it is possible). Follow the passage to the room and keep going until you get the Cerebral Bore. Drop down and head straight to take the left path mentioned earlier.

Keep going until you encounter the two giant spiders. Kill them and the third giant spider guarding the gate. Just beyond is a LEVEL 6 KEY. Grab it and face the music. Kill the evil infestation, grab the power-ups, and exit by the corridor with the Full Health. Keep going until you reach the blind one guarding the gate. Charge him and when he's dead, the gate opens. Follow the elevated path to another passage to another path. At the end, jump across to the ledge below. Kill the dinosaurs and grab the Blue Health and SATCHEL CHARGE. Enter one of the two passages and turn left. Take the next left and immediately face a giant spider. Drop down the hole.

THERMAL VENT 3 - Go down the north passage and enter the large room. Once clear, walk along the wall to get the power-ups. Ascend the east ramp and cautiously enter the room with the kills. The ones on the sides house blind ones, but you can kill them one at a time before they leave their huts. Next, grab the CAVE DOOR KEY in the center hut. Turn around and cross the bridge to the next room of huts and do the same thing. Once you have both Keys, descend the ramp and enter the north passage. Insert the Keys to your right to open the gate and enter it. Turn right and take the first passage up. Approach the large stone to set the SATCHEL CHARGE, drop down, and head back to the portal room and get out of there. Trace your steps all the way back to the two boulders (you know, the ones that were hiding the downward ledge).

Once you've made the long quest back here, follow the right ledge up until you reach the Save Portal. Kill the two giant spiders to open the gate next to the Save Portal. Follow the next corridor and jump across to the platform with the four Blue Health. Follow the walkway into the corridor. Turn left at the Gold Diamonds and get the CAVE DOOR KEY outside the passage. Go back the other way. Once out of the corridor, take the middle path to the Full Health. Kill the giant spider in the next room. Head to the left for two Gold Diamonds and ammo that regenerates. On the other side of the U-shaped ledge is some health that regenerates. Now, go back and open the gate with the Cave Door Key. Go through, follow the passage, and drop down the hole. Make your way to a series of spinning wood platforms. Jump to the first one and keep going until you make it to the passage. (If you fall, use the portal to get back to the beginning. Follow the corridor down to the clearing. Shoot the barrel to make a bridge across. Cross over to get the LEVEL 6 KEY. Grab it and you're locked in with some baddies. Kill them and you're rewarded with four weapons and an Ultra Health. Beyond the Ultra Health is the warp to the Energy Totem. Jump in and defend it at all costs.

ENERGY TOTEM - Same as always. Circle about the Totem while pegging off bad guys and picking up ammo.

BOSS - When you get to the large open room, jump down to the middle island. Ammo and health will regenerate on this island so it should be no problem. There are several phases to this boss. The first step is to kill all the maggot-like creatures that come at you. When you've killed enough, some tentacle arms will emerge from the ooze. Waste them and then you must deal with the spores in the ceiling that spit green stuff at you. Kill all of the spores and two giant arms will attack you from the ceiling. Destroy them, and all you have to do is shoot out the big defenseless eye.

LEVEL 5 - THE HIVES OF THE MANTIDS

Nintendo 64

Cover Story

Talisman: Whispers

Enemies: Mantids

Keys: Three Level 6

OBJECTIVES:

- 1) Destroy three Queen Embryos.
- 2) Destroy four force field generators.

PART I

Make sure you have a good chunk of health before you begin. Immediately you'll be hit by ceiling-mounted cannons on both sides. Run directly under one and blow it up. A mantid will come out of the wall next to you. Kill him and take advantage of the regenerating power-ups in the room. Destroy all four cannons, kill the mantids that emerge, and then enter the portal in the center of the area. Once through, go right and blow up the secret door covering the Plasma Clip. Destroy the large cylinder in the center to open the force field protecting the west passage. Enter it. Destroy the cylinder to open the east passage in the previous room. Look for a hidden alcove on the north wall holding a Box of Bullets. Also take the U-shaped corridor to locate additional Blue Health. Return to the large room where you warped in and enter the newly opened passage. Once through, continue left. Ride the elevator disc up and follow the corridor until you come to the next room. There are two secret rooms to your left and right. Blow up the doors (check your map) to get the booty. Keep going and kill the mantid to open the door. In the next room behold a Level 6 Key, but note the two cannons in the upper corners. Enter the south passage and press the green button to raise some stairs around the Key in the previous room. Follow the east passage, past the Full Health and door, into a portal room and jump in.

Go down and at the intersection go straight and enter the door. Clean this room out and take the other path. When you pass through the door, continue left until the end. Turn to the right and look with the sniper scope. Kill the two mantids in the distance. Do the same with mantid on the east wall. Look down over the edge below where the two mantids were and you'll see a platform with four Blue Health. Jump down to it. Jump the series of three platforms down to the east. On the third, look up and destroy the cannon. Also, look for Bullet Clips. Jump across the disc and enter the door.

Enter the south door to kill the mantid, then go back and enter the east room and destroy the cylinder to down the force field. Then enter the north door for ammo. Go back and enter the east room and take the elevator up. Enter the door and get the Plasma Rifle. Jump back and nail the turrets to the upper right and left. Cautiously continue on and you'll see another set of turrets up on the walls next to the floating disks. Enter the new corridor until the room with the Red Diamonds and Full Health. Destroy the secret door to the south for regenerating ammo. Enter the north door and at the far end of the room, enter the door and push the green button. Turn around and take the elevator disc up and push the next green button. Turn around and take the disc up to the next corridor. Keep going and jump across the platforms to the Shredder. Keep going until you reach the Firestorm Cannon. Drop down and exit the room. Take your next left and open the door and get the Ultra Health. Follow the south passage to the portal and jump in.

PART II

Enter the passage with the ring of Silver Health and the Grenade Launcher and shoot the secret door to the north. Continue east to a large room. There are two humpback mantids to the left and right. Next, press four green buttons in the rooms in the center structure. Go straight towards the Shredder and press the green button. Each time you push one, a pack of cockroaches is released. After all four are pressed the elevator disk is activated. Ride it and go down the corridor. At the top of the first ramp, back into the left alcove to get the Flame Tank and then continue on. Approach the door and turn around to thwart the ambush. Keep going until you reach the Save Portal.

Keep going, pass through the door, and jump in the portal. Enter the door and look down over the edge and note the platform. Continue left and kill the mantid. Now jump down to the platform. Look down to the NE platform, sniper the mantid, and jump down. Follow the passage and before you enter the next room, dispose of the four turrets in the corners on the ceiling. After the fourth cannon is destroyed, a door will open straight across. Enter the door and destroy the cylinder to drop the force field. This opens doors on the north and south ends of the previous room. Enter the south room and go up the elevator.

Follow the passage straight to get the Full Health, and drop down. Turn left and keep going until you get the PFM Layer. Turn around and find the two secret rooms back along the path. Both contain two Grenades and a mantid. Go back to where you got the PFM, drop down, and enter the north room for the LEVEL 6 KEY. Grab it and on each wall there are three secret doors. The north alcove has the switch. Push it to activate the Warp Portal. Exit this room and enter the south passage until you come to the ledge with the platforms beneath it. Jump across them, follow the passage, and enter the large room. Enter the north room and check the corners for secrets. The east alcove has a Box of Bullets. To the north are Tek Arrows. To the west is a Box of Shells. Jump in the warp.

NUCLEAR PART - Climb the ramp and an enemy will attack right away. Don't venture too far. Above you on the catwalk are two enemies waiting to shoot. Creep out and lock on with the Cerebral Bore. Once both are dead, head up the newly opened door to the east, kill the enemy, and stock up on health and ammo - both regenerate. Before you enter the south passage, sniper the enemy around the left side of the door. Once in this room, turn the valve across from you. Turn around, cross through the room with the power-ups, and ascend the newly opened ramp. Kill the three enemies and restock with the regenerating power-ups this room provides. A couple of buddies from the next area will attack. Kill them, and before you enter the next room, use the sniper scope to kill the enemy across the room. Grab the Nuclear Part and exit through the portal.

Enter the next room, go through the south passage, and up the elevator and follow the corridor to the hole. Drop down, go left, drop down again, and follow the passage straight ahead to the portal room. Note: The power-ups in here regenerate. Jump in. Enter the door into the room with two secret rooms. The east room has nothing, but the north room has a Firestorm Cannon. Continue on down the corridor. After the second curve, there is a mantid waiting in the alcove to the right and a Full Health to the left. Just ahead is a ledge. Down to the left is a platform. Jump to it, follow the corridor, and open the door. Survey the area and push the green button.

Take the floating disc across. Note: The power-ups regenerate. Jump outside the west door to the passage below. Push the green button. Kill the swarm, go back out, and jump on the disc to take you back up. Jump to the disc out the north door and across to the ledge. Enter the room. There is a secret door with a PFM to your right. There is another in the NW. Enter the west passage and get the three Red Diamonds ahead. Go to the east passage and it's the same deal. Next, enter the north passage and push the green switch. Go back out to the main room and face the west side of the middle structure. Turn your map on and you'll see a gap. Blow this section up and face a humpback mantid immediately. Kill him and destroy the cylinder beyond. This opens up a passage in another area leading to the Warp Portal and the Whispers Talisman. Exit the room to the south and jump back to the center structure. Go through the south doorway and hop on the floating disc. Follow the passage and get the Cerebral Bore. There is a secret door in the east alcove. Destroy it to reach the elevator beyond.

TALISMAN - Go up the elevator and follow the passage past the Mag 60. When you get the Firestorm Cannon you'll be attacked behind and in front. Continue on past the Full Health, but before you reach the bottom of the passage use the sniper scope to kill the humpback mantid. Jump out to the center platform and immediately turn around and jump back. Kill the two mantids in the far wall. Jump across to the column and jump two discs to the right. In the next room, hit the switch to activate the Warp Portal. Go back to the center column and follow the platforms down to the PURPLE EAGLE FEATHER. Jump across to the doorway and in the next room there are two secret doors to destroy. Exit to the east, make the next two left turns, and take the disc up to the center structure. Go to the east doorway and take the disc down to the ledge. The south passage is now open. Follow it to the Warp Portal and jump in for the WHISPERS TALISMAN.

Get back to the center structure with regenerating power-ups and hop on the floating disc outside of the south doorway. Enter the passage, take a right, then a left, and jump in the portal.

To the right and left of the Full Health is a mantid. Keep on until the next room. When all four mantids are dead get ready for a true test against two humpback mantids. Two sets of doors on the north and south ends open, containing ammo and health. Exit to the east and down a ramp. In the next room there are two secret doors to destroy. Again exit to the east. Walk around and you'll trigger a swarm of cockroaches. Also, two sets of doors will open on the east with a plethora of Blue Health. Hit the green button on the north side of the center structure. Turn around and enter the door to the Save Portal. Go back out and exit through the east door.

Jump down in the water to get the Red Diamonds. Use the floating disc to get back up where you were. Take the disc across and in the next room you'll find a secret door to destroy on your right. Also, the health regenerates. Enter the east passage and turn left slowly. Once the mantids are dead, go get the other eight Red Diamonds. Go to the southeast platform last.

BIG FORCE FIELD GENERATOR - Near this NE platform, below the water and in the center structure, is a door. Go through it and then through another door and follow the passageway. Kill the mantid and destroy the cylinder to drop the force field. Swim out and take the elevator disc back up and return to the large room connected to the Save Portal. The NE door is now open so go down the corridor. Ride the elevator up, follow the passageway, and keep going until you can drop down to the ledge. There are some ceiling-mounted turrets in here and regenerating ammo and health. Destroy all of the cylinders to drop some force fields, including the one protecting the Master Computer near the end of the level. Hop on the disc to the north and grab the Scorpion Launcher. Head back through the SE door and ride the disc over to the structure.

Walk to the other side and jump across the series of discs to the passage in the north wall. Blow up the secret door to the left to expose a mantid and a Box of Ammo. Enter the east passage. Follow the room to the south and get the regenerating power-ups. Approach the east door to the LEVEL 6 KEY, but get ready for an ambush. Once those two are dead, go get the Key. Go back to where you started this paragraph and go north through the wacky tunnels and jump in the portal at the end.

Follow the winding tunnel and you'll run into some cockroaches. To save ammo, we found the War Blade to be effective. They'll keep coming until you enter the room ahead and launch a Grenade or PFM into the hole in the wall that they spew out of. Work your way to the north of the room while looking for power-ups and at the end, ascend the climbing wall on the east face where the mantid is. Take the left path for a Full Health, then continue on. In the large room there is a mantid up above. Shoot a grenade down the cockroach hole. Ascend the climbing wall on the west wall. Walk the translucent bridge, enter the corridor, and jump in the portal at the end.

QUEEN EMBRYO 1 - Enter the large room. Navigate it carefully. Enter the south passage and you'll enter a large circular corridor. Towards the south end, enter the passage on the inside wall. Past the pods you will find the Embryo. The two mantids regenerate so don't bother. To avoid wasting ammo, continuously circle the embryo to avoid enemy fire and only shoot the Embryo. Once it's destroyed, the mantids won't regenerate. Finish them off, exit to the corridor, and leave through the west door.

Carefully search the next room. Exit to the west and enter the portal. Go down the corridor to the outdoor ledge. Drop down to the next ledge and before you drop down again, kill the mantid just below to the left. Check the area for power-ups and scale the north climbing wall. Note the mantids patrolling the walkway above. At the intersection, take the right path through the door. In the room with three doors, you'll find regenerating ammo to the left and health to the right. Past the middle door is a Save Portal.

QUEEN EMBRYO 2 - After exiting the save portal area, follow the walkway straight ahead to the seeming dead end. In-between the Box of Shells and Box of Bullets is a secret door that can be blown up. Pass through the next door into the portal. In the large room, follow a NE passage to a humpback mantid guarding a Scorpion Launcher. Clear this room, head to the south end, and slash the pods to the circular corridor beyond. Make your way to the east end of this corridor and enter the door on the inside wall. Use the same basic strategy for Embryo 1. Exit by the south passage.

Go left and you'll see a tile for the LEAP OF FAITH TALISMAN. It brings you to the lower platform with two humpback mantids and a ton of different weapons. Next, enter the south passage to the portal and jump in. Follow the corridor to the ledge with the Full Health. Drop down to the passage below. Take a right, then a left to get back to the Save Portal.

Exit the Save Portal back outside to the translucent walkway and enter the south door. Enter the room with the BREATH OF LIFE TALISMAN tile. Ascend the climbing wall in front of you to the top of the platform. Get the goods and look up to south and nail the mantid in the distance. Jump down to the south and use the LEAP OF FAITH TALISMAN tile to access the upper corridor leading to the Ultra Health. However, if you can wait, we recommend getting this right before the last part - the Energy Totem.

(Note: if you are looking for a place to use the EYE OF TRUTH TALISMAN, this room leads to the tile. From the entrance hop in the water and swim on the bottom along the left until you reach the door. Swim down the corridor until you exit the water. Jump the floating discs and follow the walkway to the platform and enter the left door behind the pods to the portal. Jump in. Follow the corridor until you reach the Talisman tile. This path leads to the PRIMAGEN KEY 5.)

From the Ultra Health, drop down, and swim to the east end and enter the doorway above the water. Follow the corridor to the large room and destroy the two cockroach holes. Behind a rock on the west wall are two Red Diamonds and a SATCHEL CHARGE. Past the lava pit is a small pool of water with a portal in it. Ignore it for now. Walk to the ledge past the pool. To the right, behind a tree is another SATCHEL CHARGE. Follow the ledge to the left and you'll find another SATCHEL CHARGE behind a tree. Ignore the translucent ramps for now - they lead to the Energy Totem and level exit. After you have the third Satchel, jump in the pool behind you to enter the portal.

QUEEN EMBRYO 3 - Go across the walkway grabbing the SATCHEL CHARGE and various other power-ups on your way to the next corridor. Enter the portal and go into the next room. With the help of the map, you'll see a secret door to blow up along the east wall concealing tons of weapons and a humpback mantid. Enter the east door where you'll encounter a tile for the FIREWALK TALISMAN. Search the lava and the tops of each platform before you climb the east ledge. Once on top push the green button. Walk to the north end of the ledge and take the floating disc across. Here, hit the two green buttons and enter the door. Keep going to the next room with three humpback mantids patrolling below. Kill them, drop down, and scale the climbing wall to the NW. Slash the pods and make your way through to the circular corridor and enter the door on the inside wall in the west end. Use the same strategy as before, then go back and save your game.

MASTER COMPUTER - Exit the Save area and go back through the south passage to the room with the green water. Ascend the climbing wall facing you as you enter the room. Kill the mantid in the distance to the south, hop in the water, and scale the climbing wall beneath the mantid's prior location. Follow the corridor into the portal room. Destroy the secret doors to the north and east to reveal Blue Health. Jump in the portal and open the door to the large room. Cross one of the bridges leading to the center structure. If you destroyed the cylinders in the "Big Force Field Generator" section the Computer will be accessible. Place a Satchel Charge on each of the four structures immediately surrounding the Master Computer and get off the platform. Watch it blow up, and leave this place and go save your game for good measure.

ENERGY TOTEM - Exit the save area back out to the walkway and enter the south door into the room with green water. Hop in, swim to the left, and enter the door above water in the east end. Follow the corridor to the large room and cross it going south until you reach one of two ramps going down. Use the sniper scope to get the humpback mantid beyond and then jump in the portal. Use the same strategy as you have with every other Energy Totem to this point, but this time beware of the pits surrounding it.

BOSS - As usual there are regenerating power-ups to help you out. Whenever you are confronted with a swarm of cockroaches, you must kill them all first before the main boss reappears. Fight her for a while, then the cockroaches reappear. Kill them to face her again. This cycle repeats four or five times, and each time you face the main boss, there is a different part of her body you must target. Sometimes it's her tail, other times can be her head, etc. When you hit the correct part, it will glow white to let you know. When firing upon her, keep circling so she can't get a bead on you. Eventually she will lay down helpless with only a fraction of health left. For fun, whip out the War Blade and walk right up to her and attack her head. However, since she is helpless, you may want to stock up on power-ups before you finish her.

LEVEL 6 - PRIMAGEN'S LIGHTSHIP

PART 1 - SW DOOR

Follow the corridor and blast the minion in the opening ahead. In the room, note the PRIMAGEN KEY 6 surrounded by a force field and regenerating ammo. Next move to the SW door and look out for the cannon about half way down the corridor. Turn left at the cannon (the other passage contains diamonds) and at the next "T" turn right and hit the red button and enter the green portal. To the east is a door containing ammo. Move to the west door and follow the corridor to the next door. At the "Y," go to the west for some booty. Move to the south corridor and enter the fan room.

Move to the fan in the center to reach the first ION CAPACITOR and also use it to reach the platform above. On top of this platform, there is a door to the east (containing various power-ups) and a door to the west. Enter the door to the west and then move down the south corridor. You'll come to another "T." Pick either direction and prepare to retreat as two minions will ambush you. Proceed ahead for plenty of power-ups. Move to the other side of the room and up the stairs. Move around the catwalk and jump to the two blue ION CAPACITORS on the north side. Return up to the catwalk move to the elevator platform in the center of the room. Once on top, take out the minion and hit the switch on the circular console to open the south door.

Continue down the corridor to the intersection. Straight ahead is a Save Portal. Note the Flamethrower Tank behind it. Return out and move down the corridor to the east and continue through the only door that opens. You'll emerge in a cavernous room. Here move down the stairs to the left and then look under them for the Red Diamonds and the WHISPER TALISMAN tile. Use the tile to cross the cavern. Proceed around and use the other WHISPER TALISMAN tile to again cross the same cavern. In the next room hit the red switch to disable the Force Field Generator. Exit out the newly opened door and blast the minion in the opening ahead. In the room, note the PRIMAGEN KEY 6 surrounded by a force field and regenerating ammo. Next move to the SW door and look out for the cannon about half way down the corridor. Turn left at the cannon (the other passage contains diamonds) and at the next "T" turn right and hit the red button and enter the green portal. To the east is a door containing ammo. Move to the west door and follow the corridor to the next door. At the "Y," go to the west for some booty. Move to the south corridor and enter the fan room.

Move to the fan in the center to reach the first ION CAPACITOR and also use it to reach the platform above. On top of this platform, there is a door to the east (containing various power-ups) and a door to the west. Enter the door to the west and then move down the south corridor. You'll come to another "T." Pick either direction and prepare to retreat as two minions will ambush you. Proceed ahead for plenty of power-ups. Move to the other side of the room and up the stairs. Move around the catwalk and jump to the two blue ION CAPACITORS on the north side. Return up to the catwalk move to the elevator platform in the center of the room. Once on top, take out the minion and hit the switch on the circular console to open the south door.

PART 11 - NW DOOR

From the portal continue to the north for an Ultra Health. Hit the red switch and drop over the edge. You have now returned to the room where you started the entire level. Refill on ammo and then enter the NW door. Take your first right and head north, hit the switch, and enter the portal. Walk just through the next door and sniper the minion patrolling the stairs. Go to the fan on the left and float up to the next tier. Jump out to the catwalk and hit the red switch to activate the moving platform. Quickly jump back down, use the fan, and then use the floating platform to get to another switch. The west door in this room is now open. At the "T" go through the door to the right. At the next intersection, go through the door to the left (the other door contains power-ups). In this room dispose of the minion and then activate the red switch to open the large door to the south.

Jump straight out and stay over the fans on the right side of the room until you get to the other side of the room. (The Look button along with a direction will guide you up and down.) Follow the catwalk to the other side and jump to the platform holding the ION CAPACITOR. Now hit the red

Talisman: Eye of Truth
Enemies: Primagen Minions
Keys: None
OBJECTIVES:

- 1) Locate Ion Capacitors and purify the River of Sams
- 2) Destroy three automated Assembly Plants.

Destroy the pistons to the right of the switch.

switch and jump to the north-most platform and go back out. Now enter the north doorway. Follow the corridor to the intersection and take the passage for power-ups and then return down the north path through the door. Jump out over the fan, ride it to the top, and jump off into the west passage. Follow this corridor to the Save Portal.

Return to the fan, descend to the bottom and move down the east passage. At the end of the passage is a large room. Turn to the left and leap to the catwalk below, hit the switch, and take the floating platform up to the next tier. Look for a small air duct to the left and jump into it. Follow the passage until you drop down. Keep on to the south to locate the next ION CAPACITOR. Move back and follow the north passage until you reach a dead end. Jump off (to the opposite side of the cannon) and ascend up to enter the top of the room you were in a while back (the one with the moving platform). The switch on the right activates a bridge next to the RAZOR WIND and the switch to the left opens the door. Proceed through the door and move down the east passage (the very first right in this passage contains power-ups) and note the EYE OF TRUTH TALISMAN tile. Return back and follow the corridor to the north. Jump in the portal.

[Note: Once you get the Eye of truth use it to walk the narrow path to reach the top. There you'll find a switch that deactivates the Force Field Generator, giving you access to the PRIMAGEN KEY 6.]

Move north through the door and take the first left to find a red switch. Use it to open the door on the opposite side - hurry because it's timed. Inside the door ride the elevator up and take the south path (the north path offers some power-ups). Move through the door and walk to the center of the room to find a timed switch. Back into the switch and cruise to make the jump to the opened door (next to where you entered). Grab the ION CAPACITOR and next find the switch near the north-most wall. Hit that to open a door next to another ION CAPACITOR. Return back to the room of many switches.

The two switches in the center open a door on either side. Hit the switches and enter the south door to find the Power Generator. Use the Ion Capacitors to reactivate it. Exit and move to the north door and the portal exit. Move up the corridor and take a quick left. Move up the stairs to find a switch that opens the NE door. Drop down to this familiar room and find the NE door.

PART III - NE DOOR

Inside the NE door follow the passage to the room with Red Diamonds and a switch. Hit it and move through the north door to the portal. On the other side gather the power-ups to the left and then proceed back to the right (north). At the next fork, continue north (the passage to the west contains power-ups). The next room is loaded with minions with heavy firepower. Take a left down the stairs. Drop down and cross a narrow catwalk marked by Gold Diamonds. Take the moving platform to reach the center console above. Hit the switch to activate the other platform and then use it to reach the ION CAPACITOR (beware of the fans) and the other side of the room. Once on the other side follow the stairs up to the next passage. Continue past the first two red switches and hit the third to open the door. Move in and hit another switch to locate the ION CAPACITOR. Move back out the way you came in and move through the passage to the SE. At the very end of this passage is a Save Portal. Next, proceed back to an air duct and follow it. Soon you'll find a fan that will hoist you. Take the passage to the east and drop down. Move through a few rooms and you'll be shot back up. Move to the west and continue west until you reach a normal corridor.

Take the passage to the right (north) to find some booty.

The south passage leads to a portal. Go through the portal and take the west passage until you reach the LEAP OF FAITH tile (the other passage contains some power-ups). Take a leap and then hit the switch to disable the Force Field Generator. Return via another leap and continue down the corridor (west). The next room holds many villains. Once they're dead, grab the power-ups and hit the red switch on the south wall. This timed switch opens the door in the southwest corner so high that it is there to find an ION CAPACITOR. This next part is another timed event, so hit the switch and make your way to the room opposite the one you are now in. You'll eventually find another ION CAPACITOR. Now find the newly opened door in the south and exit. Hit the next red switch and move through the door you just opened. This leads to the generator. Jump from moving bridge to moving bridge to place the Ion Capacitors and recalibrate the generator. Return through the portal in the SE corner. Once on the other side move through the passage and take your first right to find the Ultra Health and hit the switch to open the SE door (do you sense a pattern?).

PART IV - SE DOOR

Stock up on the ammo and head inside the SE door. Continue down the passage and enter the portal. Enter the door. Mind the cannons as you make your way to the passage in the NE corner to clear east then back to the south where you originally entered. Hit the two red switches to open the door on the far east. Enter through the portal and proceed to the east and note the blue object as you walk under it. When you reach the "T," go north up the stairs. Activate the switch and look for a light. Return to the south to find an open door. Move through the corridor and hit the timed switch on your right. Move through the door that just opened and cross the hall to another door (that also just opened). Ride the elevator platform and ascend the stairs to the west (right). Hit the switch to activate the lift platform. Get the ION CAPACITOR and then move across the lift platform to the south. Look for minion guards as you patrol to the south. Get the switch up the stairs to open a door in the SE corner. Before entering the door, move behind the piston (in the NE corner) to expose a switch that opens the Warp Portal. Next to this switch are some noisy pistons. Blast the lock until the doors open and the innards explode. This will DESTROY PART OF THE ASSEMBLY PLANT. Also note the regenerating ammo next to the stairs. Move through the door to the south and east and note the Talisman portal entry is to the east. Continue on to the end of the passage and through the portal.

Enter the portal and move down the corridor. At the intersection take a right and enter the door. Inside you'll find some good old regenerating ammo as well as an ION CAPACITOR. For another item (making this a super bonus room), look behind the capacitor to find the GREY EAGLE FEATHER. Leave the room and return to the Warp Portal we mentioned earlier and make use of the Feather to gain the EYE OF TRUTH. Exit and return through the portal to the room where you originally found the Feather and Capacitors. Shoot and destroy the PLANT COMPUTER (with pink lights) to open a small door outside and to the left. Proceed in and down the stairs. Make your way down and grab the blue laser cells. Exit the way you came and go to the left (west). In this area is another portal. Enter it. Follow the passage to the west and note the Warp Portal on the right. Collect the Diamonds as you make your way down the stairs. Look behind the pillars (next to the red lasers) to find the red laser cells. Collect the other power-ups and move down the narrow corridor to the west. Activate the switch and enter the room. Use the red laser cells to destroy the ASSEMBLY PLANT. Return to the blue laser gate and walk through it to the south. Immediately turn to the left to activate the Warp Portal switch. Before you head back to the Warp Portal continue down the passage. At the power generator, jump in the water and you'll soon find a passage in the murky water. Move up and hit the red switch to disable the force field generator. Swim back out. Use your blue laser cells to deactivate the red beams. Now easily place your Ion Capacitors - a level objective is complete. Exit to the north and find the Warp Portal that was mentioned a little earlier.

NUKE PART - Inside the portal you'll be greeted by a cutscene. Pull out the weapons and make quick work of the legions of enemies. Activate the valves on the east and west side to open the central door. Proceed down the hall and dust the gang with some Scorpions. Hang tight on the central structure and collect the regenerating health and ammo. Look to the sky for a perching enemy. Give 'im a missile surprise from directly below. Once full, take the elevator on the west wall. At the tip follow the short corridor and activate the valve. Move back down and go through the door directly below (west). Proceed down the dark hall and toast anything that moves. (Remember, you can retreat to stock up.) Activate the valve and return to the elevator on the east wall. Activate the valve to open the door below. Again, let symmetry prevail and activate the valve. Back out and go through the south door. Proceed cautiously but forcefully and retreat for help as needed. Straight ahead is the last Nuke Part. You now have the NUKE WEAPON. Before you run off wait around for more Nuke ammo in the north corner behind you (5 shot max.). Continue on to the Warp exit.

Move out to the right, down the stairs, and to the right (west). Activate the portal and then move to the portal to the west. Exit this portal and continue to the west and you'll find the last of the red switches. Yes, you have again looped around to the place where this entire world began. Don't forget about the Eye of Truth mentioned above to deactivate another force field generator and give you access to the PRIMAGEN KEY 6 that has been sitting in center of the room the entire time.

Now move out and find the big door on the north wall (down the stairs). Here you'll find all the weapons and the level exit... Or is it?

BOSS - First form - In this form you must stay fairly close. If this mother keeps shoving his tentacle in the ground, get closer. Time the jumps over the swiping tentacles and keep shooting at its arms.

Second form - In this new form, the beast will grab the ceiling and launch out of sight. Stay stationary and keep your distance while still aiming at the shoulders.

Third form - In the third form, this blob will sprout spider legs and spew chomping critters at you. Aim at the head and keep moving.

MEET THE PRIMAGEN

First avoid the bombs. They will split into smaller bombs. When the large bugs are launched, take out all but one and stock up on health or ammo.

After you've shot down the last bug, target the tentacles at the back of the Primagen's head. Look out for the charge and especially keep the gun on 'im when he tries to recharge energy (he'll throw his head back and vibrate). If you can't keep a steady stream of fire on his head during this, things will be difficult. The Plasma Rifle works extremely well. You'll know that you have partially defeated this boss when it retreats to unleash more bombs and flying bugs.

The next time the Primagen comes out, you'll have to target the claw arm (or the head if it's trying to recharge). The beast will run at you and it will also shoot sonic blasts. It might even soar through the skies dropping fire balls. The Shotgun or Shredder work exceptionally well during charges and the Plasma Rifle will pluck him from the sky. Also note that you can shoot the pink sonic blast, but it is better to keep your distance, strafe to the right, and try to catch the arm. As soon as it retreats, avoid the bombs and stock up on supplies while nailing the flying bugs.

The last phase combines many of the past strategies, but the Primagen will spend a lot of time in the air. Targeting the head is key, but try to stay clear of the edges of the arena as it may try to shove you off the side. Keep cranking and this dude will soon be toast.

Behind this is the Eagle Feather.

Columbia Pictures To Distribute Final Fantasy Movie

Columbia Pictures reached an agreement with Square to distribute Final Fantasy: The Movie. Columbia will distribute the film worldwide, with the exception of Asia. Gaga-Humex will distribute the movie in Japan.

Gamers are already wetting their beds at the prospect of this movie. Imagine the already impressive FMV scenes in the Final Fantasy series on the big screen, with graphics that make the PlayStation characters look like stick figures.

The success of CG films like Toy Story, A Bug's Life, and Antz have established that computer animation-based movies can do big box office numbers. These films have been both financial and critical successes, but all were essentially conceived of and marketed as animated films, in the tradition of Disney. What Final Fantasy: The Movie is trying to do is a different matter entirely. Square's press release reads, "This will be the first attempt in movie-making history to simulate human emotions and movements through computer graphics that are more real than any current animated graphics."

If Square succeeds, this movie will be important for both the future of computer animation and movie-making in general. If we can create computer-generated images that are so realistic that they can actually produce an emotional response in the viewer that is comparable to that produced by live-action films, can we be far away from the demise of traditional filmmaking? The production costs in film have reached an all-time high, creating an environment where even a film that grosses $50 - $80 million is a financial loss for the studio. Computer-generated films could cut out the cost of film crews, expensive on-location shoots, and the huge salaries commanded by Hollywood stars. Why pay Cameron Diaz $10 million to star in your film when it's already been proven that a computer-designed woman (Lara Croft) can become an international sex symbol?

So when Final Fantasy: The Movie debuts in 2001, keep in mind that you might be watching more than just another killer flick. You might be watching the future of films.

New Star Wars Games To Debut on N64

Nintendo of America has reached an agreement with LucasArts granting the company limited exclusivity to distribute three new Star Wars games worldwide. All three games will debut in home console form on the Nintendo 64 and in portable form on the Game Boy Color. LucasArts will develop and publish the N64 games, while Nintendo does the same for the Game Boy version.

The first game under the agreement will be Star Wars: Rogue Squadron. Players assume the role of early '80s heartthrob Luke Skywalker (the man with the coolest bowl-cut since the Beatles) as he pilots more than a dozen vehicles. Rogue Squadron will be the first game to utilize Nintendo's new Expansion Pak memory cartridge, which inserts into the top of the N64. Screen resolution will increase to 640 x 480 pixels, allowing for great detail and visual effects as Luke flies through 16 different 3D environments.

While Rogue Squadron looks like a sure winner, the real moolah will start rolling in when Nintendo releases the first LucasArts game based on the upcoming blockbuster Star Wars: Episode 1.

We don't know any solid details about the two new games, just that they will feature interactive storylines, plus characters and settings from the new films. However, we do have a hot lead on a project codenamed Pod Racer that is supposedly in development deep within LucasArts. If Pod Racer does exist, then it might pit young Anakin against his racing nemesis Sebulba. The pod races play a big role in Episode 1; and no, the pods are not round objects, but high-tech spacecraft with unique logos and designs to suit each character's personality and look. We believe that the second game that Nintendo mentioned may very well be the action game we've heard rumors about. The Jedi versus transforming Battle Droids and 'stripped wiring' 3PO's may all be part of the package.

Jack Sorenson, president of LucasArts Entertainment, predicts that the new Star Wars games will "redefine what LucasArts can achieve in gaming...[these] new high-resolution titles on Nintendo 64 will allow our fans to feel a part of the Star Wars saga as never before."

Sega's Gamer's Day - What Happened?

Well, there's a lot going on in the hallowed halls of Sega these days. Recently, a group of gaming journalists were invited to take a look at some of Sega's new wares. So, what happened? Roving cub reporter (and editor) Andy McNamara was on the scene, where he saw (and listened to) Sega push the upcoming Dreamcast. Here are the more interesting tidbits of info Andy's allowed to talk about...

First, the item previously known as the VMS is no longer the VMS. It's now the VMU. Why? Apparently, another company already has the moniker "VMS" copyrighted in the States. So, the name has officially changed to the VMU.

Virtua Fighter 3tb will come with a second disc when it hits Japan later this month. This disc will contain footage of Yu Suzuki's super-secret labor, Project Berkeley. No other information was given concerning Project Berkeley.

Sega is in negotiations with Electronic Arts to bring games to the Dreamcast. No games are currently in development. However, once negotiations are finished, EA can begin work immediately, as it already has the development kits in hand.

Some of the minigames for Sonic Adventure were announced. Apart from the one we have already seen that has Amy playing a derivative of Whack-A-Mole, there's a shooting game and a fishing game. No other surprises surrounding Sonic Adventure were revealed.

The Dreamcast game discs are officially called "GD-ROMs," a proprietary format developed by Sega. These discs will hold about 1.2 gigabytes of data, and resemble a double-density CD. This is being done to curb piracy.

Previously, we reported that Turbine Entertainment was working on some sort of online-only sci-fi adventure. Now there are a few more details. The game, which is still untitled, contains an entire world for players to explore. Everything seen in the distance can be reached, and there are no "backdrops" to the game. Meaning, if you want to see what's on top of the mountain in the distance, you are more than welcome to head there and check it out. The world will be populated with characters that are, in reality, other players. To finish quests, players must join with other players to create well-rounded parties. Millions of character designs are possible, and players can create their own looks, including form, functions, and shape. Colors and more can also be altered to allow for extreme customization of characters. This is pretty neat, as you should be able to recognize friends, as well as enemies, in a crowd. This game is Sega's attempt to draw players of such games as Ultima Online into its folds. Let's hope it turns out well and is exciting.

A lot more happened, but our friend the NDA (non-disclosure agreement) is keeping our lips sealed until March 1. Prepare, gamers, for the return of Sega.

Think about this!

by Robert Stoute

Are We Ignoring Something?

The gamers of the world have been duped. Always, when I've thought of better graphics on a new gaming system, I have also thought of more interactivity. More people running around because you just blew up their summer cottage. More items to pick up and grab so you can beat on the next evildoer coming your way. But that doesn't seem to be the way things are heading at all.

Instead, the focus on graphics seems to place an overzealous attention on how much "pop-up" there is, or how many polys something is made out of. "The character is made out of 350 polys, 75 more than the last game," we hear developers brag. But do you really care that Lara's boobs have 20 more polys than last year's version? I don't. I wanna run head-on into a cult of 25 people and annihilate them. I want to invade a hidden temple, only to face down a den of 10-15 lions.

Is this too much to ask of today's systems? Sure we look for excellent graphics, but if it comes to a choice wouldn't real gamers prefer larger worlds to explore and more interaction? Why aren't these possible? Because we would have to give up some sacred "level of detail"? For shame!

The most recent example that emphasizes where we are headed is the new graphics king, Sonic Adventure for Dreamcast. The game is super-fast in some parts, and the graphics are overwhelming. But what about enemy interaction? At most I have seen three enemies onscreen at once! The Sonics for Game Gear had more enemies onscreen. And this is true of many games receiving the 3D upgrade. Super Mario 64 suffers from this reduction in challenge, as does the new Mega Man Legends. What is happening to the bar we have set for challenge in our games? Unfortunately, to the developers making the games challenging is not nearly as important as making them "pretty."

So for those of you who wish developers would use the new hardware capabilities for more interaction, you are not alone. Or is it me who is alone?

PlayStation Has Resident Evil 3, Dreamcast Gets Resident Evil 4

Capcom has created quite a stir with its recent unveiling of Resident Evil for the Dreamcast. Known as Bio Hazard: Code Veronica in Japan, this game has legions of fans ready to jump at the next title in the successful series. However, Capcom is making it clear that Code Veronica is not Resident Evil 3. When Code Veronica was announced last November, Capcom's Mr. Okamoto stated that this game is technically the fourth episode in the series because Capcom began developing the PlayStation version (the third) before Dreamcast version (the fourth) had begun. So where's Resident Evil 3 for the PlayStation? There is a good chance it may appear before the Dreamcast version.

In other Resident Evil news, the long reported Nintendo 64 game by Resident Evil creator Shinji Mikami has been scrapped. This game was reported to be a Resident Evil spin-off with a martial arts theme. Mikami is said to be working on another top secret game with some of the Resident Evil team.

Gex, Pitfall, and MIB To Get Jiggy on Game Boy Color

Crave Entertainment is bringing three of its high-profile titles – Gex: Enter the Gecko, Pitfall: Beyond the Jungle, and Men In Black: The Series – to the Game Boy Color.

All three titles will be backwards-compatible with older Game Boy models, but Crave promises that they were designed specifically for the 56-color palette and increased CPU speed of the Game Boy Color.

Gex and Pitfall are 2D versions of the 3D originals and will have all the moves and levels featured in the originals. Men In Black: The Series is based on the popular cartoon of the same name.

PlayStations Becoming Common Sight

Sony Computer Entertainment America (SCEA) announced today that the PlayStation is outselling the rest of the competition by a 2 to 1 margin. In the month of September, sales soared 97 percent over the previous month. This is particularly due to the price reduction of the system (packaged with a Dual Shock controller) to $129.

Kaz Hirai, executive vice president and CEO of SCEA, said, "Consumers have made it overwhelmingly clear that PlayStation is the number one choice in video game systems. Consumers don't look for toys anymore when they shop for video game entertainment. They look for long term value and a wide variety of titles, which is why PlayStation will remain an attractive entertainment option through this holiday season and beyond."

His last statement is the most interesting one. Apparently, Sony is not swayed at all by the looming release of the Dreamcast. We'll see if that attitude is continued by Mr. Hirai in the coming year.

Game Informer Loses Editor

The GI staff is losing one of its members. After more than two years of gaming, associate editor Jon Storm is leaving to pursue his other passion – fishing. Look for Jon's work in North American Fisherman magazine.

Storm's new boss may fire him if he can't pull in bigger fish than this.

EA Gets FIFA Exclusive for 8 Years

Electronic Arts announced that it acquired the exclusive rights to three of the world's major soccer brands: FIFA, FIFA World Cup, and the UEFA European Football Championship. The agreement will last for eight years and includes the next two World Cup competitions.

This licensing agreement means two things. One: for the next eight years any game that comes out regarding FIFA, the FIFA World Cup, and the UEFA Football Championship will be from Electronic Arts. Two: If EA markets future footie games like it did this year, we'll have FIFA games up to our ears. Better get on that road to the World Cup early.

Sony and 989 Grow Bigger and Bigger...

Sony announced the opening of a new 989 Studios' product development house in Santa Monica, CA. 989 Studios currently operates its headquarters in Foster City (Blasto, Tobu) and a software development studio in San Diego (Shoot Out, GameDay).

Kelly Flock, president of 989, promises the new studio will be "dedicated to pushing the boundaries of PlayStation by diversifying 989's product mix." The Santa Monica studios will be staffed with the producers and designers of the original Twisted Metal and Jet Moto franchises.

New Grand Theft Auto in the Works

One of last year's more controversial releases, Take 2 Interactive's Grand Theft Auto, is now due for a sequel. Tentatively entitled GTA 2, this game should appear on PlayStation (and PC) in October of 1999. No other information is available about this upcoming game, but you can expect it might be even more controversial than the last. With the first Grand Theft Auto shipping over one million copies, Take 2 expects big things from the sequel.

More Mega Man From Capcom

Like you couldn't see this coming, Mega Man sequels have been a mainstay of Capcom's development strategy since Mega Man 2 appeared in 1989. Another Mega Man is indeed on the way, and this game is a follow-up to the first 3D Mega Man. PlayStation owners should expect Mega Man Legends 2 (Mega Man Dash 2, Japan) to appear at the end of the year.

Data File:

Rumors and speculation continue to surface concerning the next PlayStation. Reports out of Japan have named Toshiba as a probable hardware partner with Sony. Toshiba apparently has a RISC-based processor that clocks in at 250 Mhz which is slightly faster than the announced Dreamcast CPU. As reported in November, industry pundits expect Sony to announce some of its PlayStation 2 plans surrounding the launch of the Sega Dreamcast in Japan. At press time, Sony had not made any official announcements concerning its next video game system.

According to the NPD Group, retail sales of video games in the U.S. went through the roof in 1998. Against the same period in 1997, sales went up 32%. Sales went up every month in 1998, with increases varying from 16% to 52% per month.

Sony Music Entertainment will release an upgraded edition of Tenchu in Japan. Entitled Tenchu: Shinobi Gaisen, the new version for PlayStation will feature additional missions (found in the U.S. version), improved controls, and a new edit mode that allows players to design their own missions. This game is scheduled to hit Japan in February.

Sega of Japan has launched its official Dreamcast site, Japanese users of the system will refer to this page frequently as their main meeting place for new information concerning the upcoming system. Currently, there isn't much there except for some new pictures from the Sega New Challenge conferences and the Tokyo Game Show. The U.S. will also get a site for stateside gamers later this year.

VM Labs, creator of the chip code-named Project X, has finally come up with an official name for the platform, as well as a logo. The moniker, NUON, has apparently taken some time and patience to come up with. After tons of focus groups, professional groups designing the logo, and countless think tanks, NUON was chosen, suggesting that the name reflects something entirely "new, powerful, and futuristic." Let's hope VM Labs spend a lot more money convincing people to make games for the thing than it spent on coming up with the name.

The ultra-hot classic in the making, Gran Turismo is still flying off the shelves since its release in early May. Now, The Right Stuff record label has released the official soundtrack from the game. All of the songs from the game will on the CD, including tracks from Garbage, David Bowie, Blur, Ash, Supergrass, and more. Get the CD, titled The Sound of Gran Turismo. The hills are alive...

Nintendo announced that The Legend of Zelda: Ocarina of Time racked up over 325,000 presale reservations before it was shipped on November 23.

PocketStation Support for Crash 3...in Japan

With Sony ramping up efforts to garner PocketStation support in Japan, many games are being given at least some level of interaction with the new gizmo. Crash Bandicoot: Warped is no exception.

With the addition of the Time Trials found on each level of Crash 3, players can download their best times onto the PocketStation and carry these around with them. The top scores can be traded with other PocketStations, allowing for a sort of ranking to be created among the Crash players of Japan. Unfortunately, neither the American nor the European versions of this game will have PocketStation support. So why is Sony waiting on the release of the PocketStation in the United States? Is the company waiting for something everyone else is unaware of? Sony could not be reached for comment. Here are some pictures of PocketStation Crash.

Zelda for GB Color Has an Extra...

The new Game Boy Color revision of Zelda: Link's Awakening DX has a great extra. Apart from the 56 new colors, there is also an extra dungeon containing a brand new item. Excellent! This is a great incentive to pick up a new Game Boy Color and replay a deluxe (DX) version of the best Game Boy game of all time. The Game Boy Color is available now and Zelda: Link's Awakening DX is scheduled to arrive on December 14.

Eidos Girls Just Wanna Have Fun

Comic book publisher Top Cow enjoyed success with the issue teaming its voluptuous comic character with another well-known girl from the video game world (we think you know who). The Witchblade/Tomb Raider partnership will continue with a new comic and even a Witchblade video game in collaboration with Eidos Interactive (who else?).

The details are sketchy as to the development of Witchblade the game, but we do know that it is scheduled to release this spring for the PlayStation. Top Cow did design the characters for Eidos' Fighting Force and we can only speculate that the Witchblade game will be action-packed. Both Top Cow and Eidos are pretty quiet, but have dropped a few hints about Witchblade.

The new comic is 32 pages and Top Cow states that this comic will be an action-packed thriller, and the events within will actually effect the future of the Witchblade character. This exciting release will feature three different versions: the standard newsstand edition, an edition featuring a rare alternate cover (one of every four issues), and another edition featuring an ultra rare holo-foil cover (one of every fifty issues). All of the content will be the same (whew!). A week before this comic ships, Top Cow will be reissuing the original comic with a brand spanking new cover. Yabba-bahlo!

Mario Kart 64 Toys!

Wow! Remember those Toy Biz toys we previewed a few months ago? (See GI News, Nov. 1998.) Well, as it turns out, they are actually Mario Kart 64 toys!!! Skitchin'!!! Right now, Toy Biz has only announced three racers (Mario, Bowser, Yoshi). But if we, the all-important consumer, consume these toys, more will likely be made. Buy three or four. Heck, a case if you have to. We want a Toadstool toy more than anything in life. Yes, we are serious. Anyway, the toys can fire the weapons you see, and yes, the weapons are interchangeable. Kickin' tomatoes!!!

Virtual Pet + RPG = Guardian's Crusade

Activision's Guardian's Crusade adds the concept of a virtual pet to the RPG genre. In this PlayStation title, a player becomes a knight who must reunite a baby monster with its mother. The monster's abilities change based on the knight's relationship with it.

Guardian's Crusade features 3D polygon graphics and dozens of monsters, spells, and weapons. Cinematic cutscenes feature classic Japanese style anime.

Players are also equipped with "living toys" that can be used to attack their enemies. For example, the voodoo doll slowly dismantles enemies one body part at a time. Even more intriguing is the Freud toy. Does this toy cause your enemies to have the hots for their moms and resent their dads? No, but it does cause them to go nighty-night under a hypnotic spell.

Unique features like this make Guardian's Crusade a game to watch for. It is scheduled to release this March.

Crystal Dynamics Signs New Voice Talents

Crystal Dynamics already has the exceptional voice talent of Dana Gould locked up as the infamous Gex, but it has recently acquired the talents of two other actors for Gex 3: Deep Cover Gecko and Akuji the Heartless.

The voice of Marilee Andrada will accompany that of Dana Gould as she takes on the role of Special Agent Xtra, Gex's sultry partner. Andrada was Miss March 1998 in Playboy magazine and currently fills the role as lifeguard Skylar Bergman on Baywatch.

Richard Roundtree is another actor selling his talents to Crystal D for use in its upcoming game Akuji the Heartless. Some may recognize Roundtree as the actor who portrayed John Shaft in the films Shaft, Shaft in Africa, and Shaft's Big Score. Roundtree is currently starring in the upcoming television series Rescue 77.

Akuji the Heartless is slated for a December 1998 release, and Gex 3: Deep Cover Gecko should be out in March of 1999.

The Christmas Pool!

Cartoons have always been one of the most popular choices for licensed ports. The Simpsons, Beavis & Butt-Head, Rugrats, Animaniacs, and almost every other show to land on Saturday morning programming (with the exception of Life With Louie) has been transformed into a video game. The kids love this software. They gotta have it all. The toys, the PJs, the games, all of it. But South Park is a different story entirely. It is a cartoon, but it's specifically for adults. Explicit violence and coarse language have forsaken this show to late night cable. But adults love cartoons as well, and South Park garners some of the highest cable ratings each and every week it airs. But will it have the same impact on the game market as the Saturday morning shows? Acclaim Entertainment is counting on it.

It's out there now folks. The first South Park video game is now on retail shelves all across the nation. And yes, the violence and language is all there. Kenny dies, Cartman swears, and Mr. Hankey abounds. With the Turok 2 engine under its heels, the flat chopped-up imagery of the South Park cartoon has been transformed into a fast moving three-dimensional video game. And if you are a fan of the show, six scenarios have been created by recycling themes from the show. The turkey menace, the mysterious Suzzlebutt, the mutated South Parkians, and the alien invasion are all here.

Developer Iguana Entertainment has created a new backstory that intertwines all of these scenarios into one big story. You see, a large green comet is on a collision course with South Park and as it approaches closer and closer, more strange things happen. The first four levels in the game deal with the killer turkeys. It then moves on to the strange mutations, and so on and so on. To fill you in on events, Kyle, Stan, Kenny, and Cartman consult Chef for important updates and clues. Don't expect simple subtitles. Iguana has created a new means to incorporate tons of voice-overs into the game. Matt Stone and Trey Parker, the shows creators and voice talent, have recorded exclusive new material for the game. The game also features the complete theme song composed by Primus. Impressive.

The gameplay is very much like Turok 2, but not as plentiful in options or variety. The controls are basically the same, as is the movement, but the game doesn't really deliver the exploration and adventure that Turok 2 does so nicely. Basically, the play in South Park is comprised of one mission repeated over and over again through each and every level. The goal is very basic. Run from beginning to finish. And as cheesy as it sounds, there's even a finish line at the end. Cross it and the level is over. Along the way there are plenty of enemies (all the same kind) and power-ups to find. If you stop the larger enemies, entitled Tanks, from reaching a South Park sign at the beginning of the level, you'll be awarded with a hidden character to use within the multiplayer mode. To accomplish this feat, you'll need to follow every sign, duck into every nook and hunt down every enemy. To make this feat easier, South Park is loaded with tons of weapons ranging from simple pee-soaked snowballs, to crazy cow launchers. For those of you with friends, South Park is equipped with a GoldenEye-like multiplayer mode. Up to 4-players can compete in 18 arenas. In this mode several other characters are available for play (if you unlock them). Ike, Starvin' Marvin, Jimbo, Mrs. Cartman, Wendy, and many others are here, and yes, they all have authentic voice samples as well. ■

With the Super Sniper Chicken enemies can be yolked from great distances.

Visit Chef for helpful updates and clues.

Starvin' Marvin, Ike, Pip, Mephisto, Big Gay Al. They're all here.

I'll fart on your grave!

Gathering your three friends allows you to carry different weapons.

"Obviously, the South Park TV show is pure genius, but unfortunately for us, its video game counterpart isn't. It is too bad, because the introduction and player select screen will crack you up, as will the lines during gameplay. The bad news is, that they say the same freakin' lines over and over again. Which isn't too bad in itself, but when you mix that with the fact that the gameplay is absolutely dull; the game becomes a pure test of willpower. Shoot the same stupid enemies over and over. And over and over. And over and over. I think you get the point. The only way to play this game is multiplayer. So my advice to you is that you go rent this game, invite your friends, and play it all night. Then return it and never play this game again."

"Anytime Acclaim touches a TV or movie license I shiver. Who can forget The Crow or any of the Batman games? I can't. Luckily, Acclaim comes through with South Park. The cast of characters with accompanying voice-overs are abundant and hilarious - as is the game's original story. The only problem is that you see most of the cast only in multiplayer. This isn't a problem if you have a code, but unlocking characters through the normal story mode gets a little old. Every level objective is virtually the same. South Park is a very entertaining game, but it lacks polish. South Park isn't the best game when you compare it to Turok 2 or Goldeneye, but it does the TV show justice. That's good enough for me."

Each mission showcases a strange boss.

The objective on every level is the same: Stop the tanks before they reach the South Park sign.

"It's good to see that Acclaim has resorted to its roots. You know, creating piles of junk based on hot properties. What were they thinking?! I thought the 'Batman nearly bankrupted us' incident made Acclaim see straight. But I guess not. This could have been a great piece of software, but it was rushed to meet the holiday deadline. The engine that this game is running on is smooth, really freakin' smooth, and the animation and weapons are great, but the gameplay is horrible. Each and every level contains the same objective and only one type of enemy in two sizes. What?! The multiplayer is decent, but the areas are too small. And I love the voice-overs but they come up too often. It needed more time. Acclaim jumped the gun."

We've said it before. The Nintendo 64 has been deluged with racing titles and here is yet another to add to the pile. But be sure to keep Top Gear Overdrive near the top of the pile because this title moves out. Sure, nearly one out of four N64 games is a racer, and this is the follow-up to a fairly mediocre offering in Top Gear Rally, but Overdrive goes back to its Super Nintendo roots and offers a fast-paced, arcade-style racing game.

The graphics in Overdrive are crisp and quick, even without the use of the 4MB RAM Pak. The visual effects, which include dynamic lighting and changes in weather conditions, are excellent. The detail of the vehicle models is also impressive and even includes fiery crashes. All of this is happening without the RAM Pak. If you double the RAM (via the RAM Pak), the graphics are even better. The looks don't change drastically, but the clarity is better.

Looks aside, the racing consists of a season mode called Championship and a single race mode called Versus. In either mode, one to four racers can jump in. The object in the Championship is to place in the top four to advance. Advancing to the next race also awards you cash that can be spent on upgrades in handling, acceleration, and top speed. If you have the cash, you can also buy extra nitrous tanks for speed bursts. However, saving the cash is probably the best bet as the extra dough can buy new, more aggressive machines. The cars are similar in design to many of today's more recognizable sports cars, but do not bear any official names or logos. All 15 of the cars have different characteristics when it comes to speed and handling, but every car has the same simple controls.

Simple is an understatement. Despite the excellent graphics and overall speed of the game, Top Gear Overdrive will likely be way too easy for the strict racing fan. It took us only a few hours to see every track and every car. Keep this in mind when you are thinking about a purchase. ■

Hit the nitro and hang on.

Pick up nitrous tanks for that extra boost.

This car resembles the Toyota Land Cruiser.

That car just grabbed the cash.

Up to four players can race at once.

Top Gear features plenty of air.

"Surprisingly, Top Gear Overdrive is pretty entertaining, though not for long (the game ain't too hard). However, the game features nice, clean graphics, and speed like few N64 games ever achieve. And speed is probably Top Gear Overdrive's selling point, since the computer opponents have absolutely no artificial intelligence and the collisions are, at times, confusing. But in the end, Top Gear Overdrive puts a lot of N64 racers in their place (namely Automobili Lamborghini, Multi Racing Championship, & GT 64...the garbage). If it comes down to the question of a purchase, I say rent it for a night since you should have no problem beating this one. But you just may find yourself addicted to this game's shortcuts and high speed."

"Seeing and playing a new N64 racing game is starting to make me cringe. Other than Mario Kart, Diddy, and a couple others, I find every N64 racer incredibly short and extremely uninteresting. This game is one for two. The graphics are quick and the environments look excellent (even w/o the RAM Pak). Controls are simple, but the execution is challenging. Where Top Gear misses is with the length of gameplay. You can see all there is to see in a weekend. With only two cars to start, the thought of building up to a garage of 15 was enticing. Getting there is just too quick. If you're 'jonesin'' for a new N64 racer, you just need to rent this game for a few days. Otherwise, let it quickly slide into the bargain bin."

"Overdrive relies heavily upon its SNES heritage for the basics of gameplay. No, the cartoon voice balloons have not been implemented into this version. On the other hand, the Nitros have made a triumphant return, and push Overdrive's already impressive speeds to the limit. This game hauls serious bejesus, and to accompany the terror of flying out of control, Snowblind Studios has supplied beautiful graphics and lighting effects. But as with every odd numbered Star Trek movie, Overdrive has serious problems. The tracks are extremely short and packed with too many shortcuts. The options and season set-up just plain suck. And at the tip of the complaint list, Overdrive can be conquered within a few hours. This game runs like a dream, but soon turns into a nightmare."

THOSE GREEDY PUNKS

NBA JAM 99

The title of this article is a little harsh, but it's not aimed at the folks at Acclaim or their product, NBA Jam 99 for the Nintendo 64. As we write this, the real NBA season is already two weeks overdue. If you're a fan of these wealthy whiners (both owners and players), the lockout is frustrating because you know you should be watching the games and seeing the highlights on SportsCenter, but there is just nothing out there. Instead, we have to sit through extra NHL highlights and special reports on Androstenedione. And what makes it worse, the negotiating between the two sides is moving with no urgency. Do they think we'll be here forever? Maybe... Luckily for now there are tons of NBA products for both the Nintendo 64 and PlayStation to tide us over.

Basketball on the two leading American consoles is at an all-time high with both the NCAA and NBA flourishing. One of the veterans of video game basketball, NBA Jam, is making a return to the N64, but this time it isn't the 2-on-2 scorefest that we've come to love. Although there is a Jam mode that allows high-flying dunks, flaming ball trails, and excessive contact, NBA Jam 99 makes a serious attempt at becoming a basketball simulation. There is no 2-on-2 game, instead it's 5-on-5, and the amount of gravitational exaggeration is not nearly as out of proportion as in the past. On occasion you can witness a player flipping in midair before a dunk, but mainly, Jam mode offers you and your opponent many opportunities to cheat by doing things such as decking the ball carrier in order to get a steal.

In addition to the Jam mode, there is an NBA mode that allows sim fans to play the kind of game they like in either Exhibition, Season, or Playoff modes. Jam 99 also features all 29 teams with complete rosters, special moves, icon passing, and 29 offensive plays. With the 5-on-5 addition, it's plain to see that NBA Jam 99 is going in an entirely different direction. Does this new approach pay off? Find out in next month's review of NBA Jam 99. ■

Russell launches the three...

...and one.

Stanley Roberts is HUGE!

Jam 99 uses a tedious free-throw interface.

Capcom Debuts With Disney

Surprisingly, Capcom's first N64 title is not Resident Evil or Street Fighter, but Magical Tetris Challenge (MTC) – a Tetris spin-off with new features and four playable Disney characters. MTC has a story mode that centers around a mysterious stone Donald accidentally snags while fishing. Depending on which character you select – Donald, Mickey, Minnie, or Goofy – the perspective changes, but the story remains the same. To progress through the story and discover the mysteries of the stone, you must beat other characters (playable and non) in a series of Tetris showdowns.

There are three playmodes in MTC: Endless, Magical, and Updown. Endless is a 1-player traditional Tetris game without the story mode. However, the Endless mode can also use the special shape attacks of Magical Tetris. Magical Tetris, along with Updown Tetris, must be played against a computer or human opponent. In Magical Tetris, every time you clear a line, or a series of lines, an awkward shape is sent to your opponent. These hard-to-place shapes can take the form of huge five-by-five blocks or a large diamonds. Updown is similar in concept, but instead of sending over odd shapes, complete lines appear at the bottom of your opponent's screen, effectively shrinking the space he or she has to work with.

Andy, The Game Hombre

"Magical Tetris Challenge takes a classic puzzle game and adds a great new dimension with the wacky special shape attack pieces. Trying to get these new pieces to fit into your standard Tetris creations is about the only thing that separates this game from its Game Boy counterpart. Nothing spectacular but a solid title."

Paul, The Game Professor

"Forget about Tetrisphere, this game is the real deal. A great game, but you might get your fix by renting it a few times."

Jon, The Greedy Gamer

"Tetris is awesome, everyone knows that, but this N64 cart packs a few surprises, including some really crazy new shapes. The story mode is very short, but fun for the kids. However, I just don't think an "Improved" Tetris is worth the big money. Rent it first."

A helpful feature is the Temporary Landing System (TLS) that true Tetris fans may frown at because it makes fitting puzzle pieces much easier. The TLS casts a shadow below the falling piece so players can tell where and how the piece will land.

And To Think Some People Collect Stamps.

OK, you've started collecting Pokémon™ and you're on your way to becoming a master trainer and you want to catch 'em all. How do you do it? Grab a Game Boy® Game Link® cable, grab a friend, hook up and start trading. It's that simple. So what are you waiting for?

The Evil Has Awakened

After becoming an overnight success on the PlayStation, Activision and Kalisto Entertainment immediately went to work porting Nightmare Creatures to Nintendo 64. Featuring button-mashing excitement not found in many games today, players can now break out Nightmare Creatures, regardless of what platform they own, and slice zombies, werewolves, and gargoyles into little tiny pieces.

Embark on this horror-filled adventure as either the priest Ignatius, or the hot tart Nadia. Both have similar skills, but Ignatius is stronger and Nadia is faster. Also, while Iggy carries a staff of the holy, Nadia carries a sword for the wicked. Both weapons are capable of dicing enemies into nothing. Utilizing combos like the "Westminster Goose Step," and the "Bloody Ballerina," these two cohorts take great pleasure in punishing the evil villains of the night.

And not only is there a solid fighting engine to pull off such ghoulish moves, there are tons of items to use as well. Like the triple-barrel gun that sweeps around the player in an arc of bullets. And the trusty dynamite, used to obliterate the harshest of foes. These items are obtained by smashing in some boxes, as well as finding some secret areas. While these areas are most often off the beaten path, they usually contain more than a fair share of wholesome zombie-busting items.

So, action-craving Nintendo 64 owners, get ready for Nightmare Creatures. It should be out in stores by now, but if you were waiting for the thumbs up from Game Informer, check out the reviews.

Andy, The Game Hombre

"Even a year after its original release, Nightmare Creatures is still a good game. The graphics are a little better on the N64, but otherwise it's pretty much the same. If you missed it on PlayStation, definitely check it out."

Paul, The Game Professor

"You have to be patient with the controls because they are difficult (even more so when the camera doesn't cooperate). This action/adventure stands with a select few on the N64. Not great, but a welcome addition to the N64."

Reiner, The Raging Gamer

"You gotta love Nightmare Creatures' combat engine. It's quick, responsive, and loaded with blood-splattering combos. Be warned though, this version doesn't have cutscenes (so the story is boring). Rent it first. I enjoyed it, but most of you probably won't."

CAN YOU HANDLE IT?

Bottom Line: 9

By the time you see this article, you are either (A) sick of reading about Tomb Raider III, (B) already own a copy of this wonderful game, or (C) still haven't quite made up your mind. So at this point our job is simple. The people in group "A" and "B" could give a rip, so we just need to concentrate on those in group "C."

Now, we have some questions for those of you who fall into group "C." Did you play and enjoy the other Tomb Raiders? If you did, then stop reading this article right now and go get yourself a copy of Tomb III. If you played the other Tomb Raiders and didn't like them, don't expect Tomb Raider III to be much different, as it is basically the same game you've played before. If you have never played Tomb Raider, then boy do we have a surprise for you!

Tomb Raider is Indiana Jones come to life. The goals of the game are simple: explore massive environments for various keys and switches and eliminate all enemies or animals that get in your way. Sounds easy, but there is more to this game than meets the eye. On each level there are secrets to find, puzzles to solve, guns to collect, and on some levels, vehicles to master. And each level will take you to some exotic corner of the world and let you kill its inhabitants. What more could any adventurer want?

Tomb Raider III is by far the best Lara Croft adventure yet, with better graphics, new moves, lots of "cute" outfits, and new vehicles to keep even seasoned Tomb Raider veterans interested. So if you're ready to uncover the mysteries of Area 51 or explore the jungles of India, Tomb Raider III is the game for you. ■

"Ahhh, another Tomb Raider. For fans of the series, Tomb III will definitely not disappoint. But it is really different from the previous games? Well, yes and no. The new high resolution graphics and lighting effects make Tomb III look tons better than Tomb 1 or 2 but you don't really notice it, unless you put in the older games. The levels are well designed and the new moves are cool, but they haven't changed the game that much. Tomb Raider III is still the same adventure you've played before, but it's worth the money. This adventure will have you glued to your TV for weeks, screaming bloody murder when Lara falls to her death for the bajillionth time, and giggling with delight when you find the new vehicles."

"Lara looks better than ever. The environments are massive, and conquering the first area will take a good chunk of time. Exploring every nook and cranny while meeting with some success and failure is what this game is all about. Sometimes it is beyond frustrating, but finding the next killer weapon, level exit, or phenomenal-looking new room is plenty of reward. A lot of the playcontrol is still the same and the gunplay is again weak (although improved). Core also cut back on the vehicles they had promised. Even with these gripes, Lara's third adventure is far better than the other two put together—well worth the money. Easily one of the best PlayStation games of the year. "Tomb III features the same exploration, the same 'larger than life' hero, and the same action that we've manhandled for the last three years. And you'd think that after all of this time, the series would finally lose its flavor. But it doesn't... and probably never will. As with Tomb 2, this adventure is enhanced and includes higher resolution, several non-linear aspects, and the standard fare of new vehicles, weapons, and moves. Tomb III is much easier, but now, gathering all of the hard-to-reach secrets is actually worth something. But to my dismay, the horrendous combat and object blockiness are still intact in their frightening and unappealing forms. Yes folks, Tomb III may be the same tired old rag, but it's still one fun ride. Don't be afraid to dive in again."

Different, but Still Twisted

When 989 Studios took over the creation of Twisted Metal from SingleTrac, it embarked on a treacherous road. In an effort to evolve the Twisted Metal series, 989 Studios completely redid the game engine. Risky business, considering that even if you do it right you may still get reamed by the critics for altering a game that could easily be considered a PlayStation classic.

The benefits of this new engine are better graphics (as you can see from the pictures) and realistic car physics (which 989 has dubbed Tru Physics). Basically, what Tru Physics does is give the car a suspension. In TM1 and 2 the car turned on a single axis placed in the middle of the car. In TM3 the cars have a point for each wheel on the car as well as the carriage so that the car will react to its environment like a real car. For example, quick changes in weight distribution – like flying off a set of stairs at full speed then taking a hard turn – will send the car into a roll resulting, more times than not, in your vehicle landing on its back as helpless as a turtle. So driving these cars is a tad tricky and even frustrating, but it is realistic.

The rest of the game is standard fare for the Twisted Metal series. There are weapons and power-ups galore, as well as special advanced attacks like freeze and rear attack. In all, there are 8 environments and 12 vehicles (plus 2 hidden) each with their own rendered FMV ending. New this year however is the soundtrack which features Rob Zombie (yeah!), Pitchshifter, and Lance Lenhart (who?).

The last innovation in TM3 is level-specific weapons. In a majority of the levels there are special weapons hidden that attack a specific area of the environment. On the Egypt level you can fire a death ray from the top of a pyramid, in Area 51 you can signal the UFO to zap your enemies from above, and in Tokyo you can have the satellite wreak destruction on any that are close by. A great addition that can injure numerous enemies at a time.

Certainly Twisted Metal 3 is a worthy addition to the series, but it isn't the same car combat game you've grown to know and love. For some this is a good thing, for others the changes are unacceptable.

"At one point I was really concerned that 989 was going to screw this game up. Fortunately they didn't, but it does feel like a different game. For instance, the Tru Physics model creates an interesting mix of entertainment and frustration. Sometimes you go through a series of jumps and the handling is just great, other times you want to turn the game off after your car ends up on its roof for the billionth time. The graphics are definitely better than TM2, but I think the environments are disappointing (they're small, a tad too realistic, and definitely lacking in the secrets department). TM3 is not as good as Rogue Trip, but it is still a solid game that is fun to play. And unlike Rogue Trip, this game has separate endings for each character."

"Twisted Metal 1 and 2 are still a couple of the best games for PlayStation, but 989 really has dropped the ball with Twisted Metal 3. It's not that the graphics aren't respectable, but I think the new car physics make too much of a statement. The more time I spent waiting for my car to flip back over, the more I despised the physics. The physics started barking at the combat arenas and told them to stay small and boring. And the physics probably had something to do with limiting the number of enemies. It's all a physics conspiracy, yuck. Racing enthusiasts may like the physics, but I think this missed the mark after playing Vigilante 8 and Rogue Trip."

However, it's far from perfect. The level designs lack the destructive interaction and artistic flair of the two previous Twisted installments. In fact, I'd have to say that some of the levels are nothing short of conceptually retarded. The north pole? Santa's workshop? Lame-ol!!! I was also rather disappointed with the new weapons...or should I say simplistic napalm variants. To make matters worse, the difficulty is much reduced. The CPU is actually a tough competitor – great! But 989 incorporated three lives for every password entry – bad idea. Three lives for each level totally kills the 'if I don't win I'm gonna shove this controller up your rear' aggressiveness. Twisted 3 is quite enjoyable but not as polished as Rogue Trip."

"Live 99's most noticeable improvement is the artificial intelligence. While it still isn't perfect, at least it offers up some kind of challenge on the harder difficulty settings. But this game has undergone some less obvious changes. The control has been tightened up. There are still little hitches, but the control is definitely a lot smoother. The music is better, and the multiple seasons will keep NBA fans playing for weeks building their dynasty. However, without an NBA season in progress, I found myself less than excited about playing this update, even though it is improved over last year's. "There hasn't been that much competition for this long running franchise and it looks as though there won't be any for at least a month or two. With the real NBA season ground to a halt, a good video game is needed to pacify the masses. Live 99 does a pretty good job. The new facial expressions and updated look of the players are great upgrades to the graphics. The playcontrol does welcome a couple of new moves, but overall the feel is fairly sluggish. The one-player competition is still fairly easy. Expert players will have to boost the difficulty to have any fun. Matching up with a human opponent is the most entertaining part of the game, but it still can be terribly unrealistic. I haven't seen Shoot Out, but Live 99 is solid."

The fantasy options are simply overwhelming, CPU team management is resourceful and intelligent, and the daily updates and stat tracking are right on the money. But if you want gameplay, then be wary. Each year, EA ups the graphics and options, but the gameplay and framerate are sacrificed. This year, the graphics are drastically improved, and are accompanied by new attitude-driven facial expressions and tons of new animations and moves. Very cool. Apparently $2 billion is not enough money for the owners and players of the NBA to survive on. When this piece was written, the NBA season was two weeks overdue with no end in sight to the lockout. Fans wanting to see some NBA action are limited to the Classic Sports Network or the many NBA video games emerging. Some pathetic soul in the GI office is even using Live 99 just to watch the computer play itself in an attempt to resurrect the season.

Live 99 is similar to last year's offering with a couple of exceptions. Live 99 boasts facial expressions for the players. It's almost impossible to see during gameplay, but on instant replays, "player of the game" displays, and stuff like that, a player's face will contort to show different emotions. Let's say Charles Barkley gets called for a foul. Charles, of course, never commits fouls, so it's quite natural for him to get a little upset when the ref blows the whistle. If you're lucky, you might see Charles' face cringe and his mouth open up to scream. It's right on the money. EA has included other details like background chatter. When the clock is running down you can sometimes hear your coach yell, "Watch the clock!"

In the past, GI has been less than impressed with the Live's AI. Although it has improved somewhat, it could still be better. On the positive side, when the computer opponent is on offense and the ball carrier gets double teamed, it's good about finding the open man and getting an open shot. However, when you are playing on defense your computer teammates often look about as smart as deer in headlights. Rotating on defense still remains a big problem, and open lanes to the basket are exposed far too often.

As expected, Live uses icon passing - a great tool for distributing the ball to specific teammates. Unfortunately, Live does not assign the same icon to a player or position consistently throughout a game. Plus, if a player is not on the screen, you can't see his icon. We like it when an icon will appear no matter what, informing you of the player's general location on the court.

But we are sounding too negative. Live is definitely a solid game that has everything modern day video basketball games possess including the full NBA license, season play, and the best create player in the business. If you want to know more, read the reviewers' bottom line.

Use these to teleport around the level.

This is one of the many guns Tiny will acquire.

Ugh...lava...

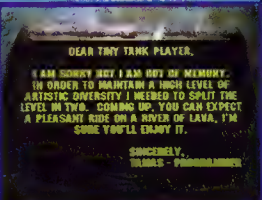

Of the handful of companies that have had humorous speaking characters, most of them have experienced little to no success. Usually, this has to do with the game being very dull. Appaloosa and AndNow are attempting to rectify this with their newest endeavor, Tiny Tank. These two companies are best known for their work on the Ecco: The Dolphin series, and its ability to immerse players in the created world. Tiny Tank follows suit. From the interesting physics to the constant "radio" transmission that is being produced by the evil Mu-Tank, to the FMV cutscenes, the game envelops you, and tells you a story of a world overtaken by sentient robots.

Created by humans to fight war for us, these tanks decided that they didn't need humans, and more importantly, they decided that the earth's atmosphere was going to have to be removed. Why? Because it causes rust, which is very uncomfortable for any thinking tank. So, the robots set out to remove the atmosphere, and have done a rather fine job up to this point. When Tiny Tank finally awakens from a horrible accident (caused by Mu-Tank), he realizes that this situation is just plain wrong, and sets out to stop Mu-Tank before it is entirely irreversible, constantly cracking jokes along the way.

In the realm of graphics, Tiny Tank tries to offer a fast-moving game with few restrictions. Because of this, the game constantly rube up against the system's limitations, causing polygon tear, disappearing walls, and more. The characters are all heavily detailed as well, making the game chug when too many things are happening. But when it is working right, it is a beautiful sight indeed. Huge lighting effects, even in already well-lit places, are the first things you'll notice. Other noteworthy details are the animations. Tiny Tank acts alive, and bumps to the music, for example.

This game attempts to extend beyond the mindless action/shooter to create difficult situations and objectives to complete. Of course, the other robots TT faces are much more powerful and evolved, but definitely not smarter. Tiny Tank can take positronic brains and add them to his own to use for a variety of purposes. These brains are allocated to different assignments. For example, the brains can be used to heal faster, to make certain weapons lock on with more accuracy, and even to make the Teeny Weeny tanks do different things, from attack to defend.

On top of the interesting character design, Tiny Tank also adds many different objectives for the levels. There are few levels where the objective is to get to the end, and few bosses as well. Instead, the game regularly puts the player in a limited situation that has a distinct task. Fortunately, the tasks are often difficult to complete, and the puzzles usually have grave consequences. This will frustrate many players, but it does give the feeling of your back always being against the wall. As it should. Prepare for the end, humans, it is at hand.

Apology accepted.

Firefights are common.

Must...have...brains...

"Tiny Tank walks the fine line between being funny and being annoying. There are times when his strange personality really makes me laugh and there are other times when I want to punch a hole through my TV just to shut him up. The mission directives are easy to follow, but the control of the little fellow can be clumsy at times. Overall, this game may not be that bad to play (the levels are pretty interesting and I love how you distribute the positronic brains), but the constant chatter and horrific music just gives me a headache. This is one of those games you either love or hate. Someone out there will love it, but I hate it."

"Ha...giggle...smirk, Tiny Tank is not at all humorous. In general, comedy runs a fine line between what's funny and what's downright stupid. Tiny Tank is the latter. The story creates this ridiculously stupid universe that's stuck somewhere between South Park and the Transformers. The graphics are pretty weak. There are numerous incidents where you'll mysteriously meld with the sides of corridors, and the appearance overall is extremely dull. The dialogue for Tiny Tank is so annoying and repetitive that I wanted to pull the game out and snap it in two. Sure, there is an option to turn off the voice, but then what's the point of even having it speak? As far as gameplay goes, the combat is not too bad. Yet, the platform jumps and general navigation are both ultra lame. Lck."

"Oh mother mercy! What's more annoying than Bruce Willis? A stupid little tank that never freakin' shuts up, that always tries to be freakin' funny, and absolutely drives me freakin' insane whenever it appears on-screen!!! To make matters worse the basic premise of this game is asinine as well. Let's see...it's the Love Bug meets the Yellow Submarine meets the Terminator meets Andrew Dice Clay. As for the game itself, the play is riddled with slowdown, but features an interesting weapons system, great variety in missions, and intuitive controls. Granted, if MGM removed Tiny Tank's personality and voice...well...it would still blow...but it would be greatly improved. Die Tiny Tank. You horrible little thing."

Real Racing Revolution

In 1995, the original Ridge Racer hit the PlayStation and changed the face of racing as we know it. Already, the Japanese market has received the fourth installment of the series, and you can expect R4 to be released in the U.S. sometime around March or April. While greatly changed from the original, R4 still is one of the premiere racing games. The newest addition is the Grand Prix mode. Here you are challenged to a season of racing where you must qualify to advance. There are three save points along your journey, and you'll receive a new car at each interval. During your Grand Prix experience the Crew Chief from your team will talk to you about how finished and how the cars is running. Defeating the Grand Prix mode will unlock cars (which you can trade via the PocketStation) as well as other secret modes.

Racing Teams & Manufacturers

Namco claims to have over 300 different combinations of colors and cars, but we just don't see it. The way it looks to us there are 20 different cars in R4 and lots of colors. You can unlock the different types of cars by beating the game with different team/mannufacturer combinations (of which there are 16). Then, through other modes you can unlock the 4 super cars. However, it is interesting to note that some cars are designed for Drift and others for Grip. The difference between the two is that cars in the Drift mode feature the familiar powerslide from the original Ridge Racer, and cars in the Grip mode stick to the road.

Manufacturers

These are the four basic manufacturer models. There are 3 upgrades for each for a total of 16 cars.

Teams

8 New Tracks

One of the biggest improvements to R4 is the number of tracks. While there are common sections between a couple of the tracks, overall they are fairly unique. Some of the track highlights include Brightest Night's huge jump, Wonderhill's light sourcing, and Out of Blue's neck-breaking 90 degree turns.

Bonus! Ridge Racer 60 FPS

If R4 wasn't enough to get your motor running, Namco has packed in a new 60 frames per second (FPS) version of the original Ridge Racer. Still sporting the greatest track ever made, Ridge Racer 60 FPS moves out like nobody's business with clearer graphics and most of the cars from the original. Unfortunately, you can only race against one opponent, but you can save your times from the Time Attack and Time Trial modes.

Every once in a while a company comes up with a game that reminds us why we do all this. Why we wade through tons of junky games to search out the gems. And why the anticipation of great games remains so high. Final Fantasy VII was one of these gems. And the latest Zelda was also one. Another game of this caliber could be coming from a company that is no stranger to blockbusters: Namco.

A handful of old-school gamers can recall Dragonbuster for the Japanese MSX. An even smaller number can boast that they beat the game. So, why revive it? Well, Namco has been on some sort of retro kick lately. Bringing out all of those museum discs, as well as Tekken after Tekken, reveals their current mindset. But Namco pulls it off so well, and we reap the rewards. And we are about to be rewarded again.

Dragon Valor is an action-oriented game with some interesting RPG elements. The basis of the game is that a man has chosen to dedicate his life to destroying dragons. But there are far too many dragons for him to slay alone. So, what should our hero do? Why, find a bride, and have children to continue in his footsteps, shackled to the job that he created! Now did HIS father crusade against dragons before him? Probably not. His father was probably a pea farmer who hoped to pass on this heritage to his son! But nooooo...

Anyway, play through multiple generations and discover interesting facts about the family, all while trying to annihilate the dragons. Along the way, meet interesting people, and help them with their daily lives. Remember to leave no stone unturned, as the one place unchecked may be the spot a potential bride is waiting! Find the bride that best suits your character and marry her. The story changes depending on which person a character chooses to marry. Carried over several generations, this creates many different possible storylines, all of which will most assuredly be rich in detail.

And the dragons aren't exactly stock either. Every dragon your character will face during the game is different. Sometimes a dragon will be red, and breathe fire; other times one may come across a blue dragon that breathes lightning. Each dragon will probably have a name and be easily identifiable. This adds another level of interest, as players can compare their stories with others that have played a different route in the game.

So for those of you who have felt that the Action/RPG genre is not very well represented these days, as it was on the NES, then prepare yourself for Dragon Valor – a blast from the past, but a fresh new title nonetheless. And keep on checking out Game Informer for the latest on this upcoming title. ■

Funky Moves
and Weapons
Galore

If one were to pigeonhole Dead in the Water, it could be called Mario Kart Meets Twisted Metal. Yes, this new vehicular variation is a cross between these sub-genres. First, it features two modes of play: Racing mode and Combat mode. Second, it offers players the ability to purchase upgrades and items, both useful and not. There are quite a few other similarities as well. The characters are basically outrageous extremists who don't fit in any conventional slot. And the levels are all filled with insane jumps, interesting themes, and lots of secrets. Secret places to ambush your foe. And secret stashes of money. So why hasn't anyone else done this simple combination of two neighboring genres? Currently the control is a little touchy, but it is probably being tweaked as we speak. So, let's take a closer look at some other parts of this game that brings two genres together.

WHAT ARE THE PICKUPS?

There are many different secondary items to use against your foes: There's the standard Rocket, the slightly more powerful Double Rocket, the Torpedo, the Heatseeker, the Grenade, the Flamethrower, Lightning, the somewhat fruity Skipdisk, the all-purpose Mine, the ever-popular Oilslick, and the irritating (yet satisfying) Shockwave. Other pickups include Nitro, ghosts, and money, all of which the champion needs in abundance.

WHO ARE THE CHARACTERS?

The characters in this game can almost all be traced back to some pop-culture reference. Ebony Justice is the Shaft of the group; the infamous Number 7 is supposed to be the Six Million Dollar Man; the Crochet Family comes across as a familiar group of hillbillies that happen to be millionaires; and so on. Expect also to see a Baywatch ripoff, as well as caricatures of James Bond, and even a Crocodile Dundee-type character – something to suit everyone's personal fetish. Each character also has three sayings to match a particular occurrence such as taking first place, blowing up opponents, and performing stunts. All boats are rated according to five different areas: Armor, Acceleration, Engine, Weapons, and Special.

WHAT ARE THE RACES?

Currently, there are two choices of play modes. There's the typical Race Your Foes, complete with tons of weapons and upgrades to purchase. Here, coming in first is all that matters. The other mode, Destroy Your Foes, is a straight rip of Twisted Metal. Play through both modes. It's like two games in one! Plus, you can take your saved boat from one and put it through another.

SATURN NOT REQUIRED

The speed and amount of frames used in Alpha 3's animation is an amazing spectacle. We'd even say that the way this PlayStation port moves is comparable to the performance of a 4-Meg RAM enhanced X-Men Vs. Street Fighter or Darkstalkers 3 for the Japanese Saturn. The loading has also been cut in half, and as tradition would have it, Alpha 3 comes equipped with several PlayStation-only features like the always helpful Practice mode, and the mysterious new PocketStation compatibility. This is a large fighter that features 25 mighty combatants. Karin and Mika are the only new creations. Blanka, Honda, Vega, and Balrog are all SFII resurrections, and Cody originally duked it out in the Final Fight universe. The play in this game is smooth and very arcade-like. Early predictions say Alpha 3 should turn out to be Capcom's finest PlayStation port to date. No slowdown and incredibly fast play should put it on top.

ENHANCED BLOCKING

Each time you block, the Guard Power gauge depletes slightly. Continue blocking and it will eventually empty out. When this happens your character becomes dizzy. The Guard Power gauge will refill slowly when a character doesn't block.

POCKETSTATION SUPPORT

Alpha 3 may very well be one of the first U.S. games launched with PocketStation support. Using this new PlayStation accessory, players can train their characters by competing in several PocketStation-exclusive LCD minigames. The competing characters will gain experience through the PocketStation and ultimately unlock new moves and techniques to use in the main game itself.

IS IT SPECIAL?

If you thought the Custom Combo was a drastic change in the SF norm, then think again. Alpha 3 is equipped with options galore. Before each match the player is forced to pick one of three different -isms. Here are the options:

A-ism (Standard Mode)

The A-ism grants the ability to utilize various Super Combos (just like in Alpha 1 and 2). The "Z" that you see in the pictures stands for Zero. It will be changed to "A" to be consistent with Alpha.

X-ism (Simple Mode)

This -ism received the mighty "X" in its name for its similarities to the Japanese SFIIIX (SSF2T here in the States). It is the most powerful of all the -isms, but it only allows players to use ONE predetermined Super Combo. The X-ism also disables air blocking, Alpha Counters, ground recovery rolls, and all taunts except for Dan's. The Super Combo gauge fills at a slow pace as well.

V-ism (Variation Mode)

The Custom Combo gauge charges at an extremely quick rate; however, using this -ism shells out less damage per hit. Also, Alpha Counters suck half of the Combo gauge. This mode's single benefit is the greatly enhanced Custom Combo. The "V" stands for Variable Combo which is the Japanese equivalent of the Custom Combo.

CONTENDER

Eating mat after a Super Punch.

Boxers have painful facial expressions.

Blond Elvis takes a wallop.

Though boxing fans may be declining in numbers, their intensity and devotion are second to none. Sure, wrestling fans are devoted too, but excessive face paint and lame sign after lame sign show how unbalanced many of these folks can be. Boxing fans, on the other hand, are above all of that nonsense and carry themselves with a pride that comes from knowing their sport is real. Plain and simple, boxing is a slugfest, but when the blood spills, it's not from a self-inflicted wound.

Despite an undying loyalty to their sport, boxing fans have been left out in the cold on the PlayStation. Recently, however, things have been looking up. Last spring, EA unveiled its plans to release Knockout Kings for the PlayStation and sure enough, once that happened, someone else got in on the boxing action. Not surprisingly, that company is Sony Computer Entertainment America. Sony, along with Victor Interactive, plans to release Contender for the PlayStation in January.

If you're a simulation fan, then Contender might be somewhat of a disappointment, since it's being billed as an arcade-style game. But hey, with only two games to choose from, boxing aficionados can't afford to be too picky. In all, Contender uses 40 characters, 20 of which are playable. With every fight, players can build up their fighters' speed, strength, and stamina. Then, fighters can be saved onto a memory card to be used against another player's saved fighter.

The 40 boxers in Contender have been given realistic character reactions. Fighters twitch on the mat after being knocked unconscious, their eyes blink and their faces grimace in pain whenever an opponent's glove lands a facial hit. Also, as bouts continue, black eyes and other facial bruises start to appear.

In the quest to become the boxing champion of the world, Contender has something for boxing purists as well. The game uses a true boxing scoring system and three different fighting styles - Detroit, Open, and Peek-a-boo. But when those disciplines begin to fail, players can always use a super punch that has three times the power of a regular punch.

So there you have it. After a long drought, two boxing games will suddenly appear on the PlayStation. Soon, GI will inform you which is worthy of the championship and your money.

Many spells abound.

Hello mister dragon!

What? You want a treat? Bark three times and run in a circle... then we'll talk.

The characters love to talk...

Even dragons from "A Never Ending Story" periodically appear.

A good book is reprinted and rebound. A good movie is remastered and reformatted. But what of a good game? What happens to the classics that breathed life into the console machines of old? What happens to the games that revolutionized genres and lived large as timeless legends?

In an industry obsessed with the future and constant transformation, the past is hardly called upon. Thus, the classics usually wilt and die. It's the nature of the beast. But sometimes a developer defies the push of the mainstream and veers off to do something a little different. Take Game Arts for example. This Japanese developer couldn't move forward until it made amends with the past. Game Arts released Lunar: Silver Star Story for the Sega CD, but was not entirely happy with the finished product. Actually, it was disgusted with 90% of the game. So instead of dwelling in the past, Game Arts has ported Lunar to the PlayStation and reworked it from its original form into the game it was originally intended to be.

In this revamping of sorts, only 10 to 15% of the original script has been kept the same. The rest is brand-spankin' new material. New scenes and supporting characters have been added. As have more verbal jousting and drastically altered personalities within the main party of characters. Game Arts has also implemented over 45 minutes of dubbed FMV anime cutscenes. It's like a freakin' movie and RPG all in one!

Don't worry, this reworked Lunar will not be restricted to Japanese PlayStations. Working Designs, who happens to be the developer that ported both Lunars to the Sega CD, will bring this version Stateside. And in typical Working Designs fashion, this game is receiving the red carpet. Especially the packaging. Get this, the box will feature a chromium cover, a color manual, and as an added bonus, a cloth map inserted within. Besides the two lengthy game discs, Working Designs has also included the complete soundtrack and a new "making-of" disc that features new interviews with the producers and designers from Game Arts and Working Designs. Wow!

In every shape and form, Lunar is definitely a classic. Now it comes to the PlayStation. The look of this RPG is definitely old-school, but still quite comparable to some of today's most recent releases. And the gameplay? Oh momma! The gameplay and story will blow you off your feet! Inventive combat, massive lands, swarms of enemies, and more magic than you can shake a staff at make Lunar very playable.

Like the upcoming Final Fantasy VIII release, Lunar: Silver Star Story introduces gamers to a different tone - a love story. The main character, Alex, must choose between the woman of his dreams and his undying lust to become a Dragonmaster. Can he find the perfect balance between the two? Or will he be forced to choose one over the other?

As with every other RPG, most of the enemies are butt ugly.

The graphics are definitely old-school, but still quite impressive.

The combat chemistry is unique and loaded with options.

Jon, The Greedy Gamer

"For 2-player arcade-style battles, GB '99 is lightning fast and very hard-hitting. But for single players, or serious strategists, GB '99 doesn't offer much. I continually ran the same plays up and down the field with no challenge whatsoever."

Paul, The Game Professor

"Obviously, this is GameDay with college teams. The good thing is, 989 fixed many of the bugs found in GameDay. Even though Keith Jackson says 'Whoa Nellie' way too often, this is a good college game."

Reiner, The Raging Gamer

"GameBreaker delivers a drastically improved GameDay '99 engine that absolutely crushes EA's college offering. The money plays and poor defensive coverage that destroyed GameDay have been tightened and partially fixed. But the overall play is still too loose and floaty."

It's Got Spirit, How 'Bout You?

If you are a fan of Prairie View or the University of Minnesota, you'll probably have no interest in this game. After all, these horrible teams are accurately portrayed in GameBreaker '99. Slow, shallow, and with few skills to rely on, these basement dwellers of Division 1A college football can be punned easily by teams like Ohio State and Florida State. However, even though they have little chance of winning in the real season, you can change that in GameBreaker '99, if you're up to the challenge. Sure, it's possible to produce the big upset immediately, but by building your team with patience and persistence, you can turn your favorite underdog into a collegiate juggernaut.

Of course, you can create a player and have him walk on to any campus in the country to help boost the talent pool. But in GameBreaker '99 you can also try your hand at team management. Go recruiting for the top players in the country and if enough of the top players commit, you'll be well on your way to turning the program around.

Many other things will draw the diehard college football fan to this game, including the sounds of marching bands playing in the background. Another is the Heisman trophy award presented at the end of each season. Getting your prime offensive star to accumulate the stats needed for that prestigious award can become a game in itself. Other aspects of the college football experience included in GameBreaker are Bowl games and, more importantly, the electric sounds of Keith Jackson coming out of the microphone. Does GameBreaker '99 have enough spirit to capture football fans?

Andy, The Game Hombre

"Even though the Bruce Willis voice-overs are utterly annoying, this game ain't bad. Graphically, it's very impressive with tons of explosions and lighting effects. I really like the level designs too, but in the end it is what it is - a shooter. If you're a fan, at least rent this one, you may find you really like it."

Paul, The Game Professor

"To its credit, this game makes excellent use of both the analog pads. Bruce Willis' voice-overs are pretty cheesy, but it is an enjoyable shooter nonetheless."

Reiner, The Raging Gamer

"If you thought Bruno was annoying before Apocalypse, just wait. You'll hate him with a passion after this game. ONE...er Apocalypse presents non-stop action, impressive effects, and a load of comedy with what Bruce calls acting. Check it out. You'll laugh. You'll cry. But you'll dig it."

To All Good Things Comes a Bruce

In the voice of those hilarious Budweiser frogs, Bruce Willis is a BAD-ACT-OR. Now now, don't jump down our throats just yet. We love the Die Hard series just as much as we love our brothers and sisters, but let's face it, Bruce Willis should never be cast in a role with tons of dialogue. He's a silent film kind of guy. Okay, we may be a little jaded towards Bruno, but we have good reason to be. You see, in Apocalypse (Bruce's first video game role) he never shuts up. Never! And to make matters worse, he tries to be funny with everything that comes out of his mouth. Everything!

Yes, ladies and gentlemen, Bruce even tries to imitate the great James Brown. Ouch. As you play you'll hear Bruce say something every five seconds or so. Your ears will tingle with the over-used clichés like "Open up a can of wup ass!" and "Can't we all just get along?" Your ears will ooze with pain as Bruce preaches, "Let God sort 'em out" and "Smell the humanity!" And before long, your ears will bleed profusely as Bruce belches out, "Strap one on and let's jam!" The horror.

Fortunately, there's a great voice toggle that allows you to shut Bruce up. With Bruno silenced, Apocalypse shines. It blows away Contra and delivers a gameplay experience that is very similar to ASC Games release ONE. Apocalypse features Smash TV-like controls, awesome firepower, and amazing effects and graphics. The challenge is definitely there and the levels are loaded with everything from plenty of cannon fodder to tricky platforming. Apocalypse is a good game, you just have to get past its Hollywood aspects to truly appreciate it.

Andy, The Game Hombre
 "Capcom is getting better at the PS-X versions of the team battle games, but they still suffer from slowdown. The Cross Over mode is a move in the right direction, but after seeing Alpha 3, that's the only Capcom fighter I want to play."
Jon, The Greedy Gamer
 "Although not up to an import Saturn standard, this game is pretty darn good. The character tagging, even though it's limited, works pretty well and the Super slowdown isn't too bad. It's a lot better than PlayStation X-Men Vs. SF."
Reiner, The Raging Gamer
 "Besides featuring a strange pallet of characters from both the Marvel and SF universes, this Capcom fighter shines and crushes X-Men Vs. Street Fighter with improved animation, very little slowdown, and more options. SF and Capcom fans will be quite pleased with this release."

More Cross Overs Than Ru Paul

After the meager showing that X-Men Vs. Street Fighter had on the PlayStation, one might assume that Capcom wouldn't dare try again, right? Wrong. Capcom is once again testing the boundaries of what the PlayStation's memory can handle, and has made some small progress. In Marvel Super Heroes Vs. Street Fighter, players can now actually play in Tag mode without inputting some silly code. Of course, there are still some drawbacks, such as only being able to fight with two identical teams. However, this is done rather well. To conserve memory, the computer randomly selects an identical second character for both teams. And the tagging happens pretty quickly, giving the "feel" of actually playing on the arcade machine. Unfortunately, slowdown still seems to plague this game.

As far as characters go, there are 18 characters immediately available. There are others, but they are hidden. After choosing a fighter from the Street Fighter or Marvel universe (which includes Hulk, Blackheart, and Captain America), players then select a supporting character. This character does not do much except offer the occasional counter and the chance for a Team Super. The "rules" are based on the Vs. series engine, with lots of aerial attacks and big, flashy, slow-the-action supers.

If you were ecstatic about getting X-Men Vs. Street Fighter for the PlayStation, and you don't feel like you got burned, then maybe you'll want to check out Marvel Vs. Street Fighter. The rest of you may want to rent it first.

Mud for the Masses

The original Rally Cross blended speed, air, off-roading, and crashes to create one of the most addicting racing experiences on the PlayStation. If you liked the racing in the original game, you might be disappointed with Rally Cross 2 (RC2). However, if you thought the original too easily caused your car to perform a series of somersaults like a hyperactive three-year-old after a gulping a carton of Quick, then you might appreciate RC2. The wrecks are still huge in RC2, but they happen a lot less frequently and are much easier to recover from.

Basically, RC2 is set up exactly like the first game: there are 10 cars and 12 tracks. Place first in a season (there are three seasons in all) and new tracks and cars become available to you. As far as cars go, there is an assortment of small hatchbacks as well as a pick-up, jeep, utility vehicle, and more. Overall, the tracks in RC2 have more pavement and less off-roading. Other than that, expect the expected. There is a desert course, a snow-covered mountain course, an indoor arena course, and others.

RC2 has made some solid additions. Now you can tweak your car's performance to fit the circumstances (and your racing abilities). On a more technical course you might increase your acceleration in favor of top speed. Or, on the snow course, you may switch to narrower snow tires. Perhaps the best addition to RC2 is the track editor. While not completely flexible, you can design a course with a variety of obstacles and bumps and save it to your memory card. Do these additions make RC2 a worthy sequel? Let's check the Bottom Line.

Andy, The Game Hombre
 "Personally, I thought Rally 1 was better, but there are a lot of cool things going on in Rally 2. The track editor is good (though it could be better), and the graphics are much improved. I just miss the awesome jumps and seat-of-your-pants action of the first. Good racer, just not as fun as the original."
Paul, The Game Professor
 "This game needs more than four cars racing at a time. Why the heck did they get rid of the squeaky shocks? However, for off-roadin' and mud slingin', there is not a better racing game."
Reiner, The Raging Gamer
 "I like the out-of-control physics and weight balancing in the original Rally Cross better than the training-wheel-like control in Rally 2. As a complete package though, Rally 2 is an okay sequel that produces higher speeds, more tracks, a track editor, and the same thrilling competition. If you liked the original for the physics, then beware."

Up Sega's Sleeve

The story told in Blue Stinger centers around a small island that was created during an earthquake near the Yucatan Peninsula. A year after the quake, geologists returned to the area to chart the island, but were never heard from again. Years later, strange creatures begin to appear in society. Where are they coming from? Well, duh, but as Elliot Blade, Dogs Bower, or Janine King, it's your job to take care of these pests. Each character has unique advantages over the other two. Elliot is good with his hands. Dogs is an expert gunner. And Janine is the hacker of the group. Accompanied with the mysterious Nefilim, the characters attempt to get to the bottom of the situation and return peace to all who deserve it.

Many have speculated that Blue Stinger will be extremely similar to Resident Evil. While the game is 3D and features huge guns, that's where the similarities end. The backgrounds are all polygonal-based, and not simple textures on a flat poly. The lighting features of the hardware will be put to use, with lots of explosions, neon signs, laser beams, and more just waiting to cast some new glow.

But the definite kicker to this game is the attention to small details that the Dreamcast can handle. The writing on signs and even on clothing is readable. Each bottle on a shelf is individually rendered out of polys, and the smallest of particles can be seen flying off the different alien bodies after you've punctured them with your weapon of choice. There will also be some effects to the environments, but exactly what this will amount to remains unknown.

Blue Stinger looks like a very promising Dreamcast title, but we'll have to hold judgement for a few more months.

Mascots, Mayhem, and More

Our initial response to Sonic was a little lukewarm, but there's no denying the graphic detail in this game is nothing short of amazing. The game is quick, but not all the characters are fast. Big, Amy, and Knuckles all seem to have a major deficiency in the afterburner department. So what, right? Well, the areas are seriously huge. Each area has to be large enough for Sonic to gain some real speed, so the obvious result is that the slower moving characters will take more time to get across the same level. However, lack of speed will be made up for by the ability to search in many unique areas, as well as enjoy the sights.

But there is more to Sonic Adventure than the differences between characters and their respective styles. The A-Life system is alive and well in Sonic Adventure, after two outings on Nights and Burning Rangers. Players can meet the Flickys and other animals they already freed from the clutches of Robotnik. The game will allow you to play with the little creatures, trade them with friends, and otherwise collect them. Players should also expect to unlock new areas, as well as other goodies.

Among the new areas that have popped up in photos over recent weeks is a city with casino games and the like. Also, there are some very interesting mini-games, including some fishing with Big the Cat, a Sonic-ized version of Whack A Mole, and more. Plus, Sonic Team is planning to incorporate the Internet to connect players throughout Japan. Get ready Sega fans, Sonic Adventure is headed to these shores later this year.

by Bergren, The Game Burrito

Many of the games I'm waiting for have yet to arrive at the office, but I have discovered some games to tide me over. Axis & Allies is a great re-creation of the classic board game, and some other solid games this month are Fallout 2 and Plane Crazy.

Die by the Sword: Limb From Limb Interplay - 7.5

This expansion pack delivers all of the same hack'n/slash action found in the original game. This time, however, there are different playable characters to choose from in the Quest mode: three different warriors, a minotaur, dwarf, sorcerer, and orc. There are also some new arenas added to the deathmatch competition, including a rather boring game called "Ogre Hockey" - a nice idea, but poorly executed. You can even access a 2-player cooperative mode amid these selections. The highly responsive VISM control is intact, making slicing and dicing enemies almost second nature. There are plenty of puzzles to hinder your progress through the game as well.

Fallout 2 Interplay - 8.5

Basically, this RPG is an enhanced version of the original Fallout. The graphics are impressive and the interface is easy to use (just like in the first game). But the folks at Black Isle added some other goodies in the form of a new story, new ways to kill enemies, and twice as many weapons. Plus, you can instruct non-playable characters how and when to fight, or even retreat. Also, you can upgrade their weapons and armor, and teach them abilities. The new story is decent and there are plenty of sidequests to keep you busy and help you gain experience. Fallout 2 is a worthy sequel, but I had more fun with the original because everything was so fresh. I would like to have seen more experimentation with Fallout 2, but fans of the original will be pleased that everything in the first game can be found in the second.

Sin Activision - Preview

Ellexis, a psychopathic biochemist, plans to take over the world with her army of genetically-engineered mutants. Fortunately, Colonel John Blade is ready to put a stop to this overused plot. When you begin playing Sin you'll mow down baddies out the side of a helicopter. After that, it's fairly typical first-person action. The graphics of Sin seem average, but the gameplay is better. Mission objectives play a big part in completing levels and help to move the story along. If the demo is any indication of how things will work, there is plenty of ammo, but little in the way of health power-ups. Enemies move fast, are quick to shoot, and often show decent intelligence by running for cover or grabbing a hostage. Keep an eye on this one.

Deer Hunter II Wizard Works - 6.75

If you liked the original, you will most certainly approve of Deer Hunter II. By implementing a simple 3D engine, this game allows you to explore different environments - Washington State, Michigan, New England, and Georgia - in first-person, and track your prey by spotting hoofprints, droppings, and the occasional splatter of blood. There is also a GPS unit and a variety of weapons like a crossbow, powder rifle, .44 Magnum, shotgun, and more. A wind gauge is included as well to help you stay upwind. Deer Hunter II has made many solid improvements, but I still don't think it's that great a game, no matter how many millions it sells.

Plane Crazy SegaSoft - 7.75

This racing game is nuts. You get to pilot WWII-style planes and race them in courses that seem tighter than a pair of blue jeans straight out of the dryer. The six courses are filled with all sorts of terrain like narrow canyons, tightly packed skyscrapers, and winding tunnels. These are the kinds of tracks that you have to learn; it's tough to win on instinct and piloting prowess alone. Plus, you have to deal with eight other planes and any weapons they acquire from the various power-ups. The weapons aren't that great, but flying through these varied and colorful tracks is downright fun and challenging. It's too bad there are only six tracks. You can also upgrade your plane by winning races and earning money in the Championship mode.

Extreme PaintBrawl Head Games - 5

I became curious about Extreme Paint Brawl (EPB) when I read it had no violence. I like blood and gore in my games, but it's nice to see developers making games that are appropriate for younger kids. It's a nice effort; the only problem is EPB isn't very fun. Rarely do graphics alone make or break a game, but in this case I'm willing to make an exception. Another thing I dislike about EPB is the musical score. If you like Satriani rip-off artists you'll appreciate it, but it made me cringe with horror. If you are still interested in EPB despite my trashing of it, you may like to know there are 8 paint weapons and 10 fields of battle in desert, urban, space, and medieval environments.

Axis & Allies Hasbro - 8.25

As long as you don't miss rolling real dice, you will most definitely enjoy Hasbro's resurrection of Axis & Allies on the PC. In this turn-based strategy game, you control one of five armies during WWII, while working together with your allies to conquer the enemy. The graphics are decent, but hey, it's only a board game. There are even some cinematics added to the mix. One to five people can play, and an AI level can be set for each computer opponent. The big difference in the PC version is several changed rules, all of which are optional for traditional fans. For instance, planes can retreat from an amphibious assault; Western Canada no longer borders on the Atlantic Ocean; and when an aircraft carrier is sunk, surviving planes can relocate.

Return Fire II Ripcord - 8

The Return Fire series is basically capture the flag, Soldier of Fortune style. You get to wreak havoc with a garage-full of tanks, Jeeps, ASVs, helicopters, jets, and PT Boats. Veterans of Return Fire (which I am not, may be wondering what's new in the sequel. Well, you now have an aircraft carrier that launches half your vehicles. Return Fire also sports sharp graphics, fast gameplay, and first- and third-person views. As a one-player game it lacks depth, but the multiplayer is much more intense, spurring great competition among participants. There is also a medal board that keeps track of your military ranking and various other awards.

Speed Busters Ubi Soft - Preview

This game uses the F1 Racing Simulation engine, but it's a far cry from a racing sim. The backgrounds for the six tracks (plus one hidden) are outstanding. There are also seven cars (plus one hidden) that are rated on speed, acceleration, braking, and grip. The demo of Speed Busters has five tracks, but only two of them impressed me - Louisiana and Nevada. However, the Hollywood track has tons of interactive objects like Jaws, King Kong, and a T-Rex. The bulk of this game's entertainment might be the Championship season mode where money is awarded for placing high and registering high speeds on radar guns. You can then purchase upgrades, nitros, or make repairs. You can even buy car insurance if you're a sloppy driver. Speed Busters also has short-cuts, alternate paths, and plenty of jumps.

This month, there is only one game in the old Arcade Brigade. However, it is a doozy. Read on...

War: Final Assault

WAR

This game could start a new trend in arcade games. Since the fighting game genre, no other genre has managed to break itself into the arcade industry with much success. But now, that may change. While the first-person shooter genre has been around awhile thanks to high-end PCs, it hasn't managed to really dent the arcades except in select locations. But now Atari wants to infiltrate the rank-and-file of arcades with War: Final Assault. Featuring graphics running off a 3dfx board, lots of explosions and destruction are the norm. Huge weapons give players the ability to wreak havoc among evil beings - or among themselves.

The game is based on an escaped group of humans who are seeking to stop a maniacal dictator threatening to enslave the entire planet. He seems untouchable, as nuclear attacks on his home base prove useless. He has created huge factories where unimaginable killing machines are being created. Take him down using one of four different characters, all killing machines in their own rights.

But the assault on the enemy is not the only game. There is also a Deathmatch Mode that allows you to massacre other players mercilessly. Item grabbing, time extensions, and killing your friends are what this mode is all about. There are a number of different Deathmatch arenas, which though limited in size, are still big. These areas have hard-to-reach places that contain more health, huge weapons, and time extensions. Not to mention, these places are usually very strategic killing points.

There is even more. The detail in the game is amazing. Players can mark different parts of a target's body, and the blood flows like the river Styx overflowing its banks. Exploding heads, spraying blood, and dismembered bodies are the prize for waxing an opponent. And let's not forget the great explosions and gun animations. This game simply rocks, and could spark another movement in arcades. Look for War: Final Assault sometime early next year in your local arcade.

The Super Combo - Crash has perfected his Jump into a helicopter-like work of art. To see this magnificent marsupial perform this maneuver, then follow these easy directions. At the end of the Slide hit Jump to access a Super Jump. At the peak of the Super Jump press Jump again to perform a Double Jump. And at the highest point of the Double Jump use the Continuous Spin to float like a helicopter. You won't have access to this move until you conquer N. Tropy's challenge.

Time Trials - This is where the severe difficulty hides within Crash 3. To unlock this mode you must first gather the Crystal from a given Level. Return to that same Level and a gold Clock will be sitting near the beginning. Run into the Clock and the Time Trial begins. The goal of this mode is to acquire a Talisman. The Talisman opens up hidden levels within the Secret Secret Zone. There are three different kinds of Talisman: Sapphire, Gold, and Platinum. You'll need to beat the predetermined time to collect these. Platinum poses the greatest challenge. If you collect Gold or Platinum on all of the Levels you'll gain an extra completion percentage point. Beat the Sapphire time and you'll unlock the Gold times. Beat the game with 100% and you'll unlock the Platinum times to beat. Beat the game with all 105% and you'll see the overall best times set for each level. NOTE: Don't bother with the Time Trials until you've received the Running Shoes from Cortex.

Time Trial Techniques - We wanted to chart how to finish with the best times on each level, but as you will find out, racing as fast as you can really changes the way Crash is played. You'll develop your own techniques, a different timing for jumps, and all sorts of wacky maneuvers to skim a few seconds off your time. We've listed key strategies for a few of the levels. Key maneuvers that we used for Gold or Platinum were: the Super Combo over almost every large pit; running along the rails of levels; and the quick Jump (just tapping the button). Find the pattern that leads to the Negative Time Boxes and always use the Running Shoes.

Secrets - There are no codes in Crash 3. This is one of those games that can only be beaten by kickin' serious butt. There are a few secrets you can find though. Jumping on the feces-chucking monkeys gives Wumpa Fruit. Beating Cortex with a 100% ranking will unlock a Bizarro version of Crash on the shore of Makin' Waves. There are also several different endings.

This guide reveals many of Crash secrets and may spoil your enjoyment of the game. USE AT YOUR OWN RISK!

WARP SECTOR 1 - GEAR WORKS

If you marched through Crash 1 & 2 then be prepared for a drastic change in gameplay and overall game length. Crash 3 is plentiful in variety and challenge. You'll find out for yourself soon enough.

Level 1 - Toad Village

If you can't get the Clear Gem on this stage, then you might as well quit trying to collect everything...or seriously improve your Crash 3 skills. Honestly, you truly don't stand a chance if you can't get this one.

If you can't beat this Level, consult your manual for gameplay assistance.

Level 2 - Under Pressure

A third of the way through this level a Checkpoint Box is sitting just in front of the tube filled with spinning fans. Don't hit the Checkpoint Box quite yet. First, go down and break all of the Boxes within the tube. Ascend back up through the tube and smack the Checkpoint. Doing this will save you some time (and frustration) as the next two legs of this level feature two tricky submarine rides. If you lose the submarine, then you will have to try again. Blast all of the red coral with torpedoes and you'll accomplish Box Completion.

Clear out all of the Boxes then return to the Checkpoint Box.

Level 3 - Orient Express

You don't need to evade the rolling barrels. Smash 'em! SMASH!!! SMASH!!! Also, hit the second springboard (which is actually a man holding up a trap door) to reveal three well hidden Boxes atop the lookout. Avoid the rest of the springboards and don't use the run button too often. This shouldn't be too difficult...unless, of course, you still haven't acquired Box Completion on Level 1.

Apply the Run button to stay ahead of the danger.

Level 4 - Bone Yard

This first Gem is a cakewalk. In the Bonus Round, reduce the large stack of boxes down to two, then jump off the topmost Arrow Box over to the extra life and additional Boxes. At the end of this Level, spin wildly so that you hit the two boxes and the Nitro Exclamation Box all in one swift movement, otherwise the odds of getting crushed are extremely high.

After picking up the Red Gem in Level 12, return to Level 4 and use the newly formed Red Route to launch to a hidden sector. Complete this brief challenge and another Clear Gem awaits.

You know what to do.

Level 5 - Makin' Waves

If you miss a Box, then don't waste any time starting over. Just go back and find the Box (or Boxes) that you missed. Isn't 3D cool!

Simply follow the arrow to the exit to snag all of the Boxes.

Boss - Tiny Tiger

Dodge Tiny's jumps, then smack him when his weapon becomes planted in the coliseum floor. Avoid the lions by either running away or spinning them dead. Tiny's first pattern consists of five jumps. His second pass is six, and you guessed it, his last run is seven jumps. Tiny is once again a really easy boss. Note: If you return with the Continuous Spin (gained after beating N. Tropy) you'll receive a free life for every five consecutive lions killed. This is the best 1-up loop in the game.

Maim five lions with one Continuous Spin to gain a free life.

WARP SECTOR 2 - THE PERSIAN ROOM

Level 6 - Gee Wiz

As this Level name states, the wizards within are a pain in the orange fur. The plethora of frogs are kind of annoying as well. Jump up on the brick walls (on the sides) to avoid any menace. In the Bonus Round don't hit the first Exclamation Box until you hit the Box floating to the right. If you mess up in the Bonus Round simply jump off the side and try again.

Use the ledges to your advantage.

Level 7 - Hang 'Em High

Shortly after the first Checkpoint, you'll come across two bouncy tarps. Follow the stack of Wumpa Fruit on the second tarp straight up to an offscreen Box. Then, after the next Checkpoint, don't hang with the scorpion too long or a Timer Box will be rendered "disabled." In the Bonus Round, the second Timer Box needs to be hit so that the TNT Box appears. Doing this will create a Steel Arrow Box that will launch you to a free life and four Boxes.

See Level 27 for the whereabouts of the pesky Yellow Gem.

Don't spend too much time here or this Timer Box will expire.

Level 8 - Hog Ride

Come on! There are only 13 Boxes on this stage! Just steer into them.

Time Trial

Here's a really cool trick. It is possible to ride a wheelie from the first turbo pad all the way to the end of the level. You'll have to memorize the track and have a fair amount of luck on your side, but it is possible.

It's possible to ride a wheelie from the first pad to the last.

Level 9 - Tomb Time

Don't attempt to get all of the Boxes until you have secured the Purple Gem from Level 13. At the Bonus Round, destroy the lower two Boxes in the TNT stack, then quickly bounce off the top Box before the TNT goes boom. Angle your leap to the right and snag the free life and Box. Then, after the Bonus Round, head to the only fork in the road and veer to the left. With the Purple Gem in hand, the door will open. Snag all of the Boxes and a Clear Gem from this area, then head backward through the level and snag all of the Boxes you missed. Proceed to the end, and a second Clear Gem awaits.

Use the Super Combo to cut back a few seconds on these large gaps.

Level 10 - Midnight Run

Apply the knowledge you learned on the last Great Wall level and amplify your skills tenfold. You'll need to do a lot of running and jumping to get all of the Boxes from the balloons. But otherwise, this level shouldn't suck too many lives away.

You don't need to dodge these barrels. Smash 'em!

Boss - Dingodile

Dodge his fire bombs and then his fire blasts. Let Dingo clear out enough crystals so you can run in and whack him, then run right back out. Don't get too cocky, Dingo's last fire bomb hurrah is a doozy.

Avoid his blast, then enter his crystal world.

WARD SECTOR 3 - FINE CHINA

Level 11 - Dino Might!

Acquiring these Gems is fairly tricky. You'll also need the Yellow Gem from Level 27. First, run past the Yellow Gem and clear out all the Boxes all of the way up to the side-scrolling segment (past the two t-rex as well). Then, run back to the Yellow Gem and ride it to a new route. Clear all of the Boxes here and grab the Clear Gem at the end of the road, then return to the main level and finish it off. Another Gem awaits.

Secret Level Entrance

Hold on! This Level is far from complete. Return to the Yellow Gem Route and when you come to the segment where you are running at the screen, have the second Pterodactyl carry you away to the 32nd Level.

Let this Pterodactyl carry you to a Super Secret Secret Level.

Level 12 - Deep Trouble

A good portion of the way through the level you will run across a stack of metal and TNT Boxes. One Box is missing though. Proceed up the tube to the left of these Boxes and grab the submarine. You'll have to keep this vehicle until you pass by all of the Nitro Boxes. After this, hit the Exclamation Box and proceed down to the stack of Boxes you examined earlier. Touch the new TNT Box and back off. Complete this next portion and you'll find the Red Gem and a Clear Gem waiting to be snatched up. Combo meal!

Torpedoes rule!!!

Level 13 - High Time

Simply march from beginning to end hitting all the Boxes and this Gem will be yours.

Pass by the Bonus Round platform and run forward a few feet to the Death Route.

Take this dangerous pass to an exciting new zone and the Purple Gem awaits at the end.

Time Trial

Before you hit the Clock, use your Bazooka (you received from N. Gin) to remove the baddies throwing cocktails. Also, use the huge Super Combo to launch across large pits.

Blast the cocktail chuckers before you start the Time Trial.

Level 14 - Road Crash

Remember, you don't need to place first to get Box Completion. Take your time and always, always, always! hit the turbo pads when dealing with Boxes dangling over jumps.

Secret Level Entrance

On the left-hand side, one of the road signs has an alien face spray painted on it. Drive your hog into this sign and you'll warp to a super secret level.

Ram this sign to warp to a Super Secret Secret Level.

Level 15 - Double Header

This level shouldn't be too much of a hassle. The Bonus Round is the only segment posing any kind of difficulty. Don't hit the TNT Boxes until you hit the Exclamation Box.

Bouncy bounce.

Boss - N. Tropy

N. Tropy is kind of like the Boba Fett of the Crash universe. He looks great, has a massive stash of weapons, but doesn't amount to much when it comes to combat. Simply dodge the fur-seeking missiles, jump the magnetic energy, and hop across the platforms over to N. Tropy. Smack him and repeat this easy process two more times. No problem.

Dodge N. Tropy's magnetic energy blasts, then run over and slap him.

WARP SECTOR 4 - EGYPTIAN PUPPY ZONE

Level 16 - Sphinxinator

D There are no Boxes to the direct left, just a slew of free lives. To get over to the left area you'll need to use a Super Combo to glide over the massive pit. Good luck. The first four Boxes on this Level are directly behind you from the start. Tricky tricky. Continue forward and every other Box is right in front of your freakin' face.

R To get your paws on this Gem on this Gem you'll first need the Blue Gem from Level 20. Follow this Level's dangerous curves to the Blue Gem. Jump on it and cruise through the slippery slick to the Clear Gem.

Time Trial

Go back to the hidden four Boxes and pull out your Bazooka. Blast the Clock directly and smash the two -3 Boxes to get a four or five second headstart.

Run back and shoot the Timer to unearth a great secret.

Level 17 - Bye Bye Blimps

D There really is no direct strategy or path to follow here. Just blast all of the balloons and/or Boxes hovering like unmarked helicopters to get the Gem. To avoid enemy fire keep the fighter planes offscreen. They will not fire at you unless they are flying directly at you.

If you keep the enemies offscreen, they won't fire.

Level 18 - Tell No Tales

D To get all of the Boxes make sure you don't miss the alcove hiding five Boxes. This alcove is located to the right of the three consecutive jumps (with the extra life underwater). After the first checkpoint you should have 34 Boxes.

Veer to the ship on the right to find the missing Boxes.

Level 19 - Future Frenzy

2 See Level 29 for the whereabouts of these two Gems.

Don't bother waiting for the timed lasers. Glide around them.

Level 20 - Tomb Wader

D March from the beginning to the end of this hazardous Level and a Gem awaits (if you smash 'em all).

D Return into this nasty Level and jump on the Egyptian Death Route just a few steps after the Bonus Round. Complete this harrowing area and you'll receive the Blue Gem. Score!

Don't be afraid to get partially wet. Crash is safe up to his armpits.

Boss - N. Gin

Little Coco wants revenge! And N. Gin wants her dead! Blast away the guns on the mecha's arms then target the missile launchers on the shoulders. Lastly, destroy the yellow dot in the center of the mecha. When it transforms, focus all firepower on the lower weapon, then the two plasma cannons on the sides. Now, just the missile launchers remain. Position yourself so that your blasts land on at least one of the launchers. The mecha's pattern doesn't change and the missiles always fly in front of you, so you can sit there motionless with the button held down and defeat this boss without even taking another hit. Heck, at this point you don't even need to watch the screen.

When only the bombs remain, stay put and this menace will do you no harm.

WARP SECTOR 5 - BLADE RUNNIN' COOTS

Level 21 - Gone Tomorrow

2 R Use the Bazooka on everything. Enemies, Boxes, every stinkin' thing. To get the first four Boxes to appear in their white translucent shells use the Bazooka to hit the Exclamation Box in the distance. On the side-scrolling segment, don't hit the Exclamation Box sitting in a stack over a translucent Box. Nor should you hit the TNT Box in a stack a few feet down. Use the Green Gem Route to secure the first Clear Gem and activate the last Exclamation Box. Now, go back and activate the Exclamation Box and destroy the TNT you passed up.

Use the Bazooka to rid these robotic freaks.

Level 22 - Orange Asphalt

D What a pain in the keester. Memorizing the Box placement is the only way to succeed. Again, use the turbo pads to hit the Boxes above ramps. Also, keep a lookout for a Box across a pit. You'll need to launch across to break it.

In the Time Trial, do whatever you can to cut back time.

Level 23 - Flaming Passion

D You know what to do. Just run to the end of the Level. Use the Bazooka as much as possible to reduce the difficulty.

D Proceed up to the Death Route and take it to a much more difficult sector. Complete this area and the Green Gem is yours.

Time Trial

The Super Combo works extremely well here. Master it so you can pull it at your convenience and you'll have no trouble securing the Gold.

Use the Super Combo to clear most of the large gaps on this level.

Level 24 - Mad Bombers

D Use the same technique you did before to acquire this Gem.

Shoot out the bomber's engines.

Level 25 - Bug Lite

D Run like a bandit through this poorly lit level. In the Bonus Round don't pick up the firefly until you've destroyed most of the Boxes with your Bazooka. Memorizing where the Boxes are increases the chances of success in this Bonus Round.

D (ALL COLORED GEMS REQUIRED)

After you run through the first building structure use the Blue Gem to access a new area. Don't come here until you have all of the colored Gems. Also, entering this zone with the Running Shoes will help you sprint past the poison darts.

The Blue Gem Route is full of danger.

Boss - N. Cortex

Cortex has always been wicked, but he's never been the best combatant in the world. This time around, Aku Aku is inactive and actually engrossed in his own battle (which means you cannot take a hit). Study Cortex's movements and avoid the masks to find victory.

Jump! Jump!! Jump!!!

WARP SECTOR 6 - SECRET SECRET ZONE

Level 26 - Ski Crazy (Requires 5 Talismen)

This level just tries to sucker you into dinging. Avoid the Nitro Boxes above the jumps, and keep your eyes peeled for the Nitro Exclamation Box toward the end of the level. Otherwise, be careful, and good luck.

Level 27 - Hang 'Em High - Back Entrance (Requires 10 Talismen)

Hopefully, you didn't search the normal segment of Hang 'Em High for too long. All you have to do is run past the dangers and launch over the Nitro Boxes to grab the Yellow Gem. Now, drop back into Hang 'Em High and finish the level to add the Yellow Gem to your collection.

Up and over.

Level 28 - Area 51? (Requires 15 Talismen)

Box Completion grants this puppy. Stick near the center line and the Boxes will explode beneath your tires.

For placing in first you'll receive a Gem.

Hit the gas just before the green lights glow to achieve a quick start.

Level 29 - Future Frenzy - Back Entrance (Requires 20 Talismen)

Run to the end of this segment and a Gem awaits.

Collect all of the Boxes in this tiny segment, then drop back into the main Level. Head to the right and hit the Checkpoint. Now, proceed back to the beginning of the level. Yes, that's right. It's time to go all the way back. Grab all of the Boxes, then return to the end of the Level. Ouch! This is a tough one.

Shooting into the distance to clear Boxes and enemies is a great technique.

Level 30 - Rings of Power (Requires 25 Talismen)

Hey! It's Naughty Dog's second Rings of Power game. Use the ■ button to spin through the rings and gain maximum velocity. Blow away all the balloons to capture the first Gem.

Place in first to snatch up the second Gem.

Spin through the rings to gain maximum velocity.

WARP SECTOR 7 - SUPER SECRET SECRET ZONE

Level 31 - Hot Coco

How do you get here? See Level 14 for the answer. This level is completely circular and loaded with challenges. There are only a few Checkpoint Boxes, no Aku Akus, and tons of dangerous jumps to master. Pace yourself on hitting the Checkpoints and use every technique, even diving below the water, to avoid the bombs.

The Nitro Exclamation Box is dead ahead.

Level 32 - Eggipus Rex

There are no Boxes to break. Just a ton of Wumpa Fruit to collect and several tricky dino jumps to conquer. Make it to the end and a Gem awaits. This Level is a great 1-Up loop as well.

Time Trial

Grab the t-rex before you hit the clock to cut back three or four seconds.

Do you have what it takes to get to this room?

FIFA 99

FIFA 99 comes to us courtesy of the makers of World Cup 98 with a Season mode and a European Dream League. The Season mode has a Cup season or League season. Plus, each of these seasons can be customized in a number of ways. The player determines the format, number of teams, number of matches, and even the name of the cup or league. There are plenty of other fantasy elements with a create player and extensive team management that allows players to choose team strategies, formations, and more. Overall, FIFA 99 is a decent soccer game, but the bottom line is that it's pretty much the same as last year's game, and neither measure up to International Superstar Soccer.

WCW Nitro

WCW Nitro is one of the most popular "sporting" events where fans can expose their true wrestling colors and faithfully cheer on their favorite grapplers. If you dig the show, you should appreciate THQ's upcoming Nitro video game even more. After all, unlike the real Nitro, this game gives wrestling fans the opportunity to watch complete matches between opponents that fans would actually care to see. Heck, this game could save an individual hundreds of dollars in Pay-per-view bills alone. Plus, there is ten times the action without commercial breaks every five minutes. And this is where this game excels — action. Although Nitro 64 will have new grappling moves, it emphasizes a traditional fighting interface of kicks and punches and is more a brawler than anything else.

The Legend of Legaia

Everyone is talking about Legend of Legaia, and most are calling it, "Sony's answer to Final Fantasy VII." That description may not be far off the mark. Legend of Legaia is an RPG of epic proportions, spanning across a vast world of intrigue, fantasy, and evil. What immediately separates Legaia from other RPGs is the battle interface. Like Square's Xenogears, characters have access to combos; but in Legaia, the combos function like those in a 3D fighting game. After choosing a combo, the battle screen changes into what looks like a 3D fighter. Then, the character performs his or her attack combo, while hit points are displayed for each limb attack. Add to this the beautiful graphics, and deep magic system, and Legaia could be the next RPG sensation (until FF VIII, that is).

Darkstalkers 3

For PlayStation-owning Darkstalkers fans, it has been a long time since a Darkstalkers game appeared on the system. Unfortunately, the game still has many of the flaws that plague PlayStation 2D fighters. With difficult controls and lots of slowdown, this game comes across as mediocre. To its credit, Capcom has added many new characters that PlayStation fans have never seen before. Plus, the option to choose to play using the original "rules" from the first game is added as well. Unfortunately, these goodies don't manage to defeat this game's shortcomings. There just isn't that much fun involved after figuring in the touchy controls and the problems with animation.

A Bug's Life

Some people will complain about this game being a little too easy. But it's not really. A Bug's Life is certainly geared toward a younger audience, although older animation fans will still head to the theaters to see the film. The game is simple, with only three buttons to push. It is, however, creative, and while a child could finish the game, very few will find all of the items and collectibles in each area leading to a perfect finish. The only problem is the fact that the control is a little touchy, and there are some camera concerns. Overall, this is a pretty solid game created from a license.

March Madness 99

Wouldn't it be great if EA told the NBA to stuff it and use the Live engine on the college game, since it's the only one in town anyhow? Whatever. You can keep up with your favorite players of the future with this game, March Madness 99. Sure, you'll have to remember their names, but that's a small price to pay, right? Anyhow, MM99 features all that cool stuff like Create Player and Dynasty Mode. There are also the 16 women's teams that made it to the NCAA Tournament round known as "Sweet Sixteen." Also, the controls are pretty simple to use and the animations are solid. Expect more on this game in the coming months.

Hardball 99 – PlayStation Bottom Line: 7

If you were beated too many times in Little League, or simply want to waste your time in the worst possible way, then give Hardball 99 a whack. Baseball never looked so bad.

Life – PlayStation Bottom Line: 5

If you are such a loser that you can't get some friends over to your house to play the board game, then this might be for you. Otherwise, this game moves way too slow to even be considered a video game.

Tiger Woods 99 PGA Tour Golf – PlayStation Bottom Line: 2

Raise the roof Tiger! And while you're at it, why don't you load for while? Yes, that's what Tiger does this whole game – drops loads. Even if you can get around the annoying load times, you'll be greeted by mediocre golf and annoying music and voice-overs. This game is bad!

Jeopardy – PlayStation Bottom Line: 8

Trivia nuts will love this one! It's like letting Alex into your living room without all the dandruff!

Wheel of Fortune – PlayStation Bottom Line: 7

Show me the money! Wheel of Fortune rocks! If you like gameshows, you'll enjoy this television classic. There is a one-player mode, or you can become a part of the show with Vanna as your host. OK, so she's not the host on the show, but she's cheaper and better looking than Pat Sajak!

FIFA 99 – PlayStation Bottom Line: 7

At the rate EA spits out these soccer games, it's getting more and more difficult to keep up. Is it better than last year's? Ummm...sure. Can we keep all these soccer games straight in our heads? No. If you like soccer, rent it and find out for yourself.

Irritating Stick

In Irritating Stick, the goal is to guide a metal stick down a path. What makes the game interesting, however, is that players cannot touch the sides of the path. It's very similar to the carnival game found at state fairs, but more extravagant. The game is based on a show in Japan where people compete for cash and prizes. Obstacles, such as giant slot machines, robots, falling bolts, revolving gates, and more are there to impede progress. Once players become bored with beating the pre-made levels, they can create their own with a number of shapes at their disposal. This very unique video game will be heading to U.S. shores sometime early next year.

Bust A Groove

Some loved PaRappa. Some completely hated it. This game will affect people in much the same way. Bust A Groove is centered around a visually pleasing dance competition where players outscore each other with dance moves. Different styles are represented, from capoeira to jazz. Using d-pad and button combinations, players keep the rhythm and build points. Direct attacks keep opponents at bay. Some things that were changed for the U.S. release, like the drinking and smoking, are OK. But the new lyrics for the songs are horrid, and should not have been done. Like PaRappa, Bust A Groove will either be loved or hated. Renting is the only way to find out.

Warzone: 2100

Strategy fans have slim pickin's when it comes to console games. There's Command & Conquer, Final Fantasy Tactics, and X-Com, but why aren't there more? Eidos attempts to help occupy the strategist with Warzone: 2100. In Warzone, players establish a base and then create troops with energy mined from the ground. Sound familiar? Well, that's where the similarities end, as here players are able both to create troops from different parts they research, as well as to directly control the movement. For those who don't want to get involved in a campaign, there's the Fast Play mode, which lets you jump into the action, with your only concern being the annihilation of the enemy. Look for Warzone: 2100 early next year.

No One Can Stop Mr. Domino!

This is a very odd title, one typical of ArtDink. Mr. Domino is either a game that gets you, or a game that you don't get at all. Basically, you try and lay dominoes in strategic locations to cause huge chain reactions. Since you only have a certain amount of dominoes to drop, some strategy is involved. Then there is a time limit thrown on top of that. Many will think this is simply silly. And they will have a valid point because the rewards are pretty small. But others will think that this is one cool game. There's just something creepy about Mr. Domino that's different from the rest of the games out there.

Asteroids

When Asteroids made its debut on the arcade scene back in 1979, no one would have thought that 19 years later a new version would be hitting the shelves. But lo and behold, it's back. Being released under the same moniker, Asteroids brings back level after level of asteroid- and alien-busting action. The control features a laser, thrust, hyperspace, flip, and shield button. But the best addition to this enhanced game is the wildcard button that lets the player unleash any of the 13 power-ups found floating on the level including Homing Missiles, Mines, and Trigger Bombs. Besides new weapons, the game also features interactive backgrounds housing such menacing things as black holes and exploding suns. Asteroids certainly isn't innovative, but it's fun for old-school players looking for a new challenge.

Freestyle Boardin' '99

Released more than a year ago in Japan, Capcom is working on porting FCI's ZAP! Snowboarding Trix to the States this February as Freestyle Boardin'. Created with input from real Japanese snowboarders, Capcom's first entry into the snowboarding genre should be an interesting one. The control interface is archaic; using the left and right shoulder buttons as the brakes and carve makes turning a clumsy experience. The trick interface is simple, but uneventful with three jump buttons. One turns you left, one turn you right, and the third lets you do flips. However, this game does have one interesting feature. In the championship mode you can win points that can be used to increase your character's stats.

Knockout Kings

While you have to give Electronic Arts some points for initiative on the desperate need for a boxing game, you cannot forgive the sad state it arrived in. The control is far too "sticky," not nearly responsive enough. There are a sizeable number of boxers, and yes, there are lots of them you can create on your own, but the gameplay simply kills this title. Also, it is sad to see only portions of reality displayed. For example, you cannot change weight classes if you want to do so, but you can hit a button to make the boxer "train." Rent it if you are a boxing fan; everyone else should wait until somebody does it right.

Super Black Bass

Anyone who has played Hot-B's SNES fishin' games will be able to dive right into this second Game Boy version. The only real difference is a smaller lake. Otherwise, the tournament structure is exactly the same. The object is to win the four tournaments, which each take place on different lakes. To help you along, an annoyin' young lad offers his services as a guide. He has some good information at first, and tells you how to fish the lake and what lure to use in certain situations, but you'll quickly choose the option that basically tells him to shut up. The graphics are good, and everything is clear and easy to see. Hot-B is the king of fishin' and this new Game Boy cart is no exception.

Hexcite

Though Hexcite looks like Chinese Checkers, it is in fact an intense puzzle/strategy game that takes brains and foresight to win. In a battle of wits against a computer or player opponent, the object is to alternate placing pieces on the grid. Each piece must connect to a previously placed piece, with higher points given for matching multiple sides. But it takes careful planning as completing a hex is worth bonus points, and any unused pieces will take points away at the end of the round. It sounds easy, but this game is a real mind-bender. The computer is relentless, and one misplaced piece can lead to a horrible score. If you love strategy, Hexcite will not only drain your brain, but your batteries as well.

Test Drive 5 – PlayStation

Bottom Line: 3.5

The wrecks aren't as huge as before, but Test Drive 5 now has more cars, hi-res graphics, and a chase mode where the player is the cop who pursues the law breakers. If you have Test Drive 4 you don't need this game, but Test Drive 5 is one of the most entertaining racers on the PlayStation.

Test Drive Off-Road 2 – PlayStation

Bottom Line: 6.5

All the killer jumps, incredibly long tracks, and modifiable vehicles cannot save Test Drive Off-Road 2's ghostly racing engine. Off-Road 2 could have been one sweet ride, but the play is too choppy to be anything but annoying.

Animaniacs Ten Pin Alley – PlayStation

Bottom Line: 4.5

There's no way around it, Ten Pin Alley is the best bowling game for PlayStation. This Animaniacs update runs off the same engine and delivers an almost identical game. The only changes are the inclusion of wacky characters, FMV clips, bumper bowling, and a few new camera views. Same game. New look.

Eggs of Steel – PlayStation

Bottom Line: 2.5

You gotta have eggs of steel to play this game. It's loaded with some of the worst platforming and graphics ever to hit the PlayStation. Eggs succeeds in delivering a game that is just as stupid and unattractive as its name. Impressive.

Rugrats – PlayStation

Bottom Line: 7

This is a great game for kids. It also has cool mini-games. However, camera troubles plague it, as well as sometimes questionable control.

Smurfs' Nightmare – Game Boy Color

Bottom Line: 8.5

This game would be better if it had better control and more variety. The graphics are pretty cool, though.

International Tour Tennis

Availability: Common
Replay Value: Low
Similar Games: Racket Attack (NES), Super Tennis (SNES), Pete Sampras Tennis (SG), Amazing Tennis (SNES, SG), ATP Tennis (SG)
Created by: Electronic Arts
Access Tip: For a topspin serve, hit the ball cursor slightly at the top. This may ace your opponent.
Overall: 5

IMG International Tour Tennis was EA's attempt to do for tennis what it did for football and hockey on the Genesis. While Madden Football and NHL Hockey have become game institutions, IMG International Tour Tennis, released in 1993, was never seen again. After playing this game, it's not hard to tell why. EA's usually superior gameplay is nowhere to be found here. The serving is hard to control, and aces come at seemingly random times. Sometimes your opponent will rocket back a wicked topspin serve, other times he'll whiff on an easy second serve. It's also hard to hit passing shots on the run, because your player has to stop and go through his full hitting motion, usually resulting in a missed shot. Especially annoying is a glitch that allows your opponent to return your shot after it's bounced TWICE, making you want to throw a racket (or controller) smashing hissy-fit. Tennis fans are advised to check out Super Tennis on the SNES for a truly classic tennis game.

Tecmo Bowl

Overall: 9

Until Tecmo Bowl, console football games lacked personality. Loosely based (very) on the arcade title of the same name, the NES version features a selection of mock NFL teams, but with real marquee players from the NFL. The Bears have a "sweet" running attack with Walter Payton and the Giants' Phil Simms can kill you from the air. Each team has essentially the same playbook, but a number of teams have "the play" and it is very hard to stop. Just like the real game, calling plays is a mind game between you and your opponent. That's the beauty of Tecmo Bowl. Although some of the teams (Bears, Giants) are just too good for the game to be fair and there are only 9 guys on the field, there is still a great satisfaction with calling the right defense and stuffing your opponent. We've come a long way since Tecmo first hit the NES in 1989, but we have to say that this is still one of the best football games ever.

F1 ROC

Access Tip: For a mere $200 the Hi-Grip tires are a great addition.
Overall: 6

F1 ROC is a racing game that garnered a lot of respect from the Game Informer staff when it was first reviewed in 1992. In retrospect, the game has many racing essentials. The 16 authentic track layouts, the car upgrades, and solid control make for an enjoyable experience. Utilizing Mode 7 graphics, the look of F1 ROC is essentially F-Zero with race cars. Even though the graphics engine is fast, slowdown is evident with more than two cars onscreen. The graphics are also hindered by annoying directional arrows that pop up to warn you of a turn. Piling on more criticism, F1 ROC is extremely easy. Once you start earning a few dollars, car upgrades will make placing in the top three simple. Not bad for the novice, but extremely boring for gaming veterans. Time has not been kind to F1 ROC as our fond memories of this title have been tainted after playing it again.
